Introduction

Note: This introduction to Info Source is in large print to assist persons with visual disabilities.

About Info Source

This book, Info Source: Sources of Federal Government Information, will make it fast and easy for you to find out about the Government of Canada, its organization and its information holdings. It will help you determine where you should go, write or call to make government enquiries, and is likely to be the first and only step you'll need to take to locate the source of the information you want.

This book is also the key to learning how to exercise your rights under two Canadian laws – the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act. This Introduction tells you what you need to know to request information under those legislations.

First, however, it is helpful for you to understand the basic differences between the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act. The information contained under each Act is different and there are different procedures to obtain it. The following pages describe the essential details.

Info Source combines and replaces the Access Register and the Index to Personal Information, two publications you might have seen or used before.

The annual edition of Info Source is complemented by bulletins, the Directory of Federal Government Enquiry Points and the Directory of Federal Government Databases.

Inside Info Source

This book has three main components:

Table of Contents

The Table of Contents is organized alphabetically by the commonly used name of the department or agency, such as Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada or Health Canada, rather than by their legal titles, Department of Agriculture and Agri-Food or Department of Health.

Introduction

The Introduction includes:

- information about the terms used throughout the book, some essential points about the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act, and directions on how to go about locating information by using Info Source or by making a formal request under either Act;
- a listing of Access to Information and Privacy Coordinators, which is organized in the same order as the Table of Contents, gives you the address and telephone number of all Access to Information and Privacy offices; and
- the description of the Standard Program Records. This is a category of records of an administrative nature which have been standardized across the government.

Chapters

There is one chapter for each federal government department or agency subject to the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act, or to the Privacy Act only.

Except for the institutions subject to the Privacy Act only, each chapter contains:

General Information about the institution, including:

- Background
- Responsibilities
- Legislation
- Organization

Information Holdings including:

- Program Records
- Standard Program Records
- Personal Information Banks

- Classes of Personal Information
- Manuals

Additional Information including:

- Address of a central information source, as well as regional addresses, if any
- Reading Room(s)

Useful terms

Access to Information and Privacy Coordinator Each federal government department or agency has an Access to Information and Privacy Coordinator. The Coordinator's Office is staffed by people who can answer questions and help you identify the records you wish to see. The Coordinators may be contacted in person, by telephone or by letter. If you send a letter, include as much information as you can to help the staff locate the records you want and send you a reply as soon as possible.

Classes of Personal Information Other personal information not used administratively or not retrievable by personal identifier, for instance unsolicited opinions, complaints or correspondence, is described under "Classes of Personal Information". This category was included to ensure that government departments and agencies account for all personal information which they hold.

Manuals The manuals listed under this title contain the directives, instructions, guidelines or procedures which are used by the employees of a department or agency to carry out its operations, activities or programs.

Personal Information Banks Personal Information Banks provide a summary of the type of information about individuals which is held by federal departments and agencies. The Privacy Act requires that Personal Information Banks include all personal information that is organized and retrievable by a person's name or by an identifying number, symbol or other particular assigned only to that person. Personal Information Banks must also include personal information which has been or is being used, or is available for use for an administrative purpose.

Personal Information Banks – Federal Employees The Personal Information Banks for Government of Canada employees are now described in a separate publication, Info Source: Sources of Federal Employee Information. This book will be available in the office of the Access to Information and Privacy Coordinator at each federal government department or agency, federal government personnel offices and federal libraries.

Program Records The Program Records provide pointers to program information held by each federal government department and agency, and describe the subject areas covered by these programs.

Program Record Number or Bank Number The Program Record Number or the Bank Number you see at the end of each Program Record or Personal Information Bank helps the Access to Information and Privacy office to locate the information you require.

Reading Room The Access to Information Act requires all government institutions to provide facilities where their manuals can be inspected. The location of one or more reading rooms is provided under this heading.

Standard Program Records Many departments and agencies use Standard Program Records to list information on administrative subject areas which are common to many institutions, for example Accounts and Accounting, Budgets, Buildings, etc.

Access to Information Act

The Access to Information Act gives Canadian citizens as well as people and corporations present in Canada the right to have access to federal government records that are not of a personal nature. The Act complements but does not replace other procedures for obtaining government information. It is not intended to limit in any way the access to government information that is normally available to the public upon request.

Wide range of information You can ask for information, no matter what form it is in, including letters, memos, reports, photographs, films, microfilms and computerized data. This Info Source book has been designed to help you pinpoint the department or agency where the information is held and assists you in obtaining it.

Using the Access to Information Act

Some information may be exempt or excluded under the Act.

- Exemptions: Exemptions protect certain types of information that could cause harm if released. For example, some information on national security, law enforcement or trade secrets falls into this category.
- Exclusions: The Access to Information Act does not apply to public information that is already available, such as publications and material in libraries and museums. It also excludes material such as Cabinet documents. Of course, the Act cannot give you access to records that are not controlled by the federal government, such as those maintained by provincial or municipal governments or by private organizations such as commercial banks and credit bureaus.

How to apply

Once you have decided to make a formal request under the Access to Information Act, there are certain simple procedures to follow:

- Consult Info Source to find the appropriate department or agency.
- Obtain an Access to Information Request Form from any location where Info Source is available.
- If it is not convenient for you to fill in a form, you may send a letter, mentioning the Act (see details below).
- Enclose the application fee (see details below).
- Send the form or the letter to the Access to Information Coordinator at the appropriate department or agency.

If you decide to submit a letter, you must state clearly that you are requesting information under the Access to Information Act, and include the following:

- name of the government department or agency you believe has the information you want;
- description (be as specific as possible) of the records you want to see;
- preferred method of seeing the records (e.g., do you want to receive photocopies of the original documents or see the originals in the government office where they are located?);
- your name, street, address, city or town, province or territory, postal code, telephone number(s) and your signature;
- date of your request;
- application fee.

Fees and costs An application fee of $5 (subject to change) applies and additional costs may be charged for each request. You will be notified in advance if there are additional costs and you may be asked to make a deposit. Cheques and money orders are payable to the Receiver General of Canada.

Turnaround time Government departments must acknowledge your request under the Access to Information Act within 30 days. However, in special cases, they may need more time to process your request. If you feel it's taking too long, you can complain to the Information Commissioner.

Information Commissioner

The Information Commissioner investigates formal complaints from members of the public arising from the Access to Information Act. If you have a complaint about the denial of access to information, fees charged for access, the time taken to respond to requests, refusal to give access in the official language requested, the Info Source book (as well as the Info Source computer database) and other matters that relate to requesting or obtaining access to records, you may contact the office of the Information Commissioner at:

Place de Ville, Tower B
112 Kent Street, 3rd Floor
Ottawa, Ontario
K1A 1H3
Telephone: 995-2410 (Ottawa-Hull)
1-800-267-0441 (national toll free number)

When the Information Commissioner's investigation is complete, an individual who is of the opinion that they have not been given access to all information which they are entitled to receive has the right to apply to the Federal Court – Trial Division for a review of the matter.

Privacy Act

In its day-to-day operations, federal government departments and agencies collect personal information from almost all Canadians. The Privacy Act gives Canadian citizens and people present in Canada the right to have access to information that is held about them by the federal government. It also protects against unauthorized disclosure of personal information. In addition, it strictly controls how the government will collect, use, store, disclose and dispose of any personal information.

Most information available when you ask Because much of your personal information is available to you informally at your request, this Info Source book has been designed to help you pinpoint the department or agency where the information is held and assist you in obtaining it.

Types of personal information held You probably already know about many of the programs and operations of the government that use personal information such as income tax at Revenue Canada, citizenship at Citizenship and Immigration Canada and the employment insurance program at Human Resources Development Canada.

Some personal information is confidential The federal government must keep some personal information confidential under the Privacy Act, much of which relates to other people, national security or law enforcement.

How to apply

When you have decided to make a formal request under the Privacy Act, there are certain procedures to follow. Remember, you will find what you are looking for faster if you already have a good idea of which department or agency has the information you want.

- Obtain a Personal Information Request Form at any location where Info Source is available.
- Fill out the form and identify yourself in such a way that the government can verify who you are, i.e. that it is you, and not someone else, asking for your information. The more precise the information you provide, the faster your request can be answered.
- Send the form to the Privacy Coordinator of the appropriate department or agency.
- There is no charge to apply for information under the Privacy Act.

To change the information If you believe the information which a federal institution has on file about you is untrue or misleading, you can ask to have it corrected. Even if the department or agency does not agree to change this information, it must make a note that you have asked for the change and attach it to the file.

Safeguarding personal information The protection of your personal information and privacy is also a very important purpose of the Privacy Act. The Act states how and when the government can collect, store and dispose of personal information. It also covers specifically why and how the information can be used or given out, as well as who can use or receive it.

Giving out information The government can only disclose your information to someone else with your consent or when one or more of the criteria in the Privacy Act are met, such as to comply with a subpoena.

Turnaround time Under the law, all or most of the information you ask for should be disclosed within 30 days of receiving the request. If a time extension is required, you will be notified within the first 30 days and told why up to another 30 days may be needed.

Privacy Commissioner

The Privacy Commissioner is a representative of the people with the power to look into complaints of improper collection, use, storage, disclosure or disposal of personal information. The Privacy Commissioner can also help if you are dissatisfied with the results of your formal application or the time it has taken to see your personal information.

When the Privacy Commissioner's investigation is complete, an individual who is of the opinion that they have not been given access to all of their personal information which they are entitled has the right to apply to the Federal Court – Trial Division for a review of the matter.

You can write or call the Privacy Commissioner's office at:

Place de Ville, Tower B
112 Kent Street, 3rd Floor
Ottawa, Ontario
K1A 1H3

Telephone: 995-2410 in Ottawa-Hull
1-800-267-0441 (national toll free number)

Using Info Source quickly and effectively

Determine the correct chapter Turn to the chapter of the department or agency you think has the information, and check the Program Records and the Personal Information Banks.

If you are unsure about the correct department or agency, a telephone call or letter to any Access to Information and Privacy Coordinator's office should provide the answer.

For persons with disabilities: Individuals who are unable to exercise their rights using regular procedures may obtain further assistance from any Access to Information and Privacy Coordinator's office.

Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada

Chapter 1

General Information

Background

The Department of Agriculture and Agri-Food was established in 1867, the year of Confederation, by an act of Parliament. The formation of the Experimental Farms System followed in 1886 and a Dairy Commissioner was appointed in 1890. The aim of the Department of Agriculture and Agri-Food is to develop and assist the Canadian agriculture and food system to provide for the needs of Canadian consumers and export markets in a manner which ensures a dependable supply of safe, nutritious food at reasonable prices; to ensure equitable returns to producers, processors and marketers; and to meet Canadian food and technological aid commitments to international development. The Minister of Agriculture and Agri-Food, the Department and agencies administer 35 acts concerning food and agriculture industries. The activities of the Department extend from the farmer to the consumer, through all phases of production, processing and marketing of crops and livestock. The Department also assists farmers through crop insurance, price stabilization and agricultural adjustment programs to alleviate losses caused by the weather, changing markets and certain other hazards. While the collection and use of personal information is necessary for the performance of most activities, it is especially important for the following activities: research; regulation and licensing of imports and exports of livestock and plant products; control and eradication of animal diseases; and administration of the various loan and subsidy programs.

Responsibilities

The mandate of the Department of Agriculture and Agri-Food is to promote the growth, stability and competitiveness of the agri-food sector through policies, programs and services most appropriately provided by the federal government to assist the sectors to maximize their real contribution to the Canadian economy. The Department's responsibilities embrace most aspects of the agricultural industry. It carries out research into the physical and economic problems of agriculture; inspects and grades farm products; and carries out programs aimed at keeping our crops and livestock safe from disease and insect pests. The Department enforces laws governing the sales of feed, fertilizers and pesticides; and assists farmers through measures such as price stabilization and crop insurance. It also supervises race track betting.

Organization

Canadian Grain Commission

The Canadian Grain Commission administers the provisions of the Canada Grain Act and the Grain Futures Acts. In the interests of producers, it must establish and maintain of quality for Canadian grain and regulate grain handling in Canada to ensure a dependable commodity for domestic and export markets. In addition, the Commission supervises trading on the Winnipeg Commodity Exchange.

Communications Branch

The primary purpose of this branch is to ensure communications of the department's policies and programs, promote public understanding of AAFC's initiatives and policies; and raise awareness of the sector's importance to Canadian society

Corporate Services Branch

This Branch assists operating branches in achieving efficient, effective and economical delivery of departmental programs through provision of administrative and financial systems, consulting and library services, informatics services and standards to the Departmental Programs. The Corporate Services Branch, through corporate, branch and regional units, assists all management and operational elements in the Department in fulfilling their responsibilities for program delivery. It provides assistance, interpretation and direction to operational branches to ensure that central agency and parliamentary requirements are met. The branch also handles inquiries about Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada and the Canadian agri-food industry.

Departmental Secretariat

The Secretariat is responsible for the correspondence, briefing and activity scheduling systems for the Minister and the Deputy Minister, for tracking and reporting on major current issues of concern to the Department, for Parliamentary Relations, and for providing secretariat services to the Departmental Management Committee and the Executive Committee of the Department.

Food Production and Inspection Branch

This Branch consists of the Animal and Plant Health Directorate, the Food Inspection Directorate, the Assistant Deputy Minister's Office and the Canadian Pari-Mutuel Agency. This Branch protects the health of the Canadian plant and animal resource base; maintains and improves the marketability of agricultural and forest products; protects the wagering public at race tracks and assists in maintaining a viable racing industry and has the mandate for federal agri-food labelling and fraud prevention.

Human Resources Branch

The Branch promotes and facilitates, in partnership with managers, the optimal management of Human Resources towards the achievement of departmental objectives. The Human Resources Branch develops and administers human resources policies and programs and provides staff training and other related services for a staff of over 9,000 employees of the Department, at various locations across Canada.

Market and Industry Services Branch

The mandate of the Market and Industry Services Branch is to work with the agri-food sector to enhance its global competitiveness and in so doing, increase the sector's share of both domestic and international markets for agriculture and agri-food products. The Branch priorities are implemented by responsibility centres located in Ottawa (7) and 7 regional offices. The International Trade Policy Directorate's role is to improve and secure markets for agri-food products, improve trade rules and work towards reducing unfair competition in domestic and foreign markets. The Agricultural Industry Services Directorate provides services and coordination to enable Agriculture and Agri-food Canada to meet clients' needs related to market access, market information and intelligence, export market development, market readiness and sector competitiveness. The role of the International Markets Bureau is to assist Canadian agriculture and agri-food industries to expand their exports, and to develop and implement a range of programs and services for the industry with emphasis on the provision of advice, information and programs related to international market development. The Food Bureau's role is to assist Canadian food processors to increase domestic and international sales and to ensure that food industry interests are understood and fully considered in all federal policy, program and regulatory decisions which have a major impact on the industry. The Strategic Planning and Regional Operations Directorate Headquarters coordinates Branch strategic planning and corporate support activities. The Regional Offices (Atlantic, Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and the Territories, British Columbia) provide "single window" access for regional clients and stakeholders to all of the programs and services of the Branch and work with clients and stakeholders to help the agri-food industry achieve its goals. The Management Services Division provides support and advice related to operational planning, resource management, human resources training and development, information systems and general administration.

Policy Branch

Policy Branch is the departmental organization that provides the focus for the development and coordination of policies, strategies and programs consistent with government objectives for the agriculture and agri-food sector within the overall economy. The goals of the Branch are: to lead and integrate federal efforts in consultation with other branches of Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada, other federal departments, provincial governments and the agri-food industry, in policy development and analysis for farm development, finance, income, production and market risk, agricultural adjustment, and commodity policies; to develop sectoral commodity strategies and market outlooks; to coordinate strategy and policy planning in the department; by providing economic analysis and data, commodity information and policy support. This is carried out through the sub-activities of Policy Analysis and Evaluation, Economic Research and Analysis, Policy Coordination and program delivery. The Policy Analysis and Evaluation develops policy options for the Department, analysis economic factors that affect the performance of the agri-food sector, identifies policy impacts in term of adaptation and environmental sustainability and establishes strategic directions to guide the Department's operational activities. The Economic Research and Analysis activity provides short, medium and long-term forecasts of economic activity in the agri-food sector including its impact on the external economic environment and trade for use in policy evaluation. The Policy Coordination integrates economic and social developments and overall government objectives into the policy planning and development process, and coordinates policy development within the department.

The Program Delivery activity involves managing the federal partnership role in supporting farm income. The branch is involved in negotiating farm income support agreements with the provinces and producer organizations. Federal/provincial agreements are carried out under the Gross Revenue Insurance Plan (GRIP), the National Tripartite Stabilization Program (NTSP), the Net Income Stabilization Account (NISA) and the Crop Insurance Program; all of which fall under the authority of the Farm Income Protection Act. The Branch also manages the implementation and delivery of adaption programs and provides administrative services for the Co-operatives and rural Secretariat.

◆ Co-operatives Secretariat

Provides federal focus on issues of interest to Canadian Co-operatives and a link between the co-operative sector and many of the federal departments and agencies; primarily in legislative and program areas. Acts as the secretariat for both co-operative and credit union provincial government officials who meet regularly to discuss legislation issues and development programs. Establishes a close partnership with the co-operative sector, provincial governments and universities for research and development projects.

◆ Grain Marketing Bureau

Coordinates and carries out trade development activities and contributes to the development of trade policy for grains and oilseeds products. It has close relations with various Crown agencies and quasi-governmental bodies involved in the grain industry and the private grain trade. It administers the Grains and Oilseeds Program and, in conjunction with the departments of Agriculture and Transport, provides support to the minister responsible for the Canadian Wheat Board. The primary objective of the Bureau is to encourage sustained and orderly growth in the production, processing and marketing of grains, oilseeds and their products.

◆ Livestock Feed Bureau

Ensures the availability of adequate feed grain supplies and storage space to meet the needs of livestock producers in eastern Canada and British Columbia, contributes to reasonable price stability for such supplies, and assists in equalizing feed grain prices to livestock feeders in eastern Canada and in British Columbia.

◆ Net Income Stabilization Account (NISA)

Administers the NISA program in which individual producers make deposits to an individual account and contributions are matched by the federal and provincial governments. The producer is entitled to make account withdrawals when his net income is falls.

◆ Western Grain Stabilization Administration

Presently in the process of finalizing the program by collecting overpayments made to producers who participated in the Western Grain Stabilization Program during previous years.

Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration (PFRA)

The Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration (PFRA) works with people on the prairies to develop a viable agricultural industry and sustainable rural economy. In partnership with other levels of government, farm groups, producers and industry, PFRA protects Prairie soils, develops and conserves the area's water resources, and encourages diversification into new crops, value-added processing and other wealth-creating activities. The investigation of degradation problems and the promotion of solutions serve to conserve the soil resource for present and future use. Dependable water supplies for agricultural and other related uses at the farm, community and regional level allow greater variety of agricultural activities and render the economy less sensitive to drought. Operation of community pastures on land not suitable for cultivation and distribution of tree seedlings to promote farm shelterbelts assist in conservation of the soil resource. Operation of water storage and irrigation projects and the development of new water resource projects in cooperation with the provinces enhances economic security and provides development opportunities on the Prairies.

Research Branch

The Branch's mission is to improve the on-going competitiveness of the Canadian food and agriculture sector through the development and transfer of innovation technologies. The Branch focus is on research that is valuable to Canada but which the private sector could not provide profitably, working alone. Specifically, the Branch's research is directed toward reducing the cost of producing and processing food, improving the quality and safety of food products, advancing environmental practices that sustain agricultural production and transferring technology.

Review Branch

This Branch provides senior management with accurate, objective and timely information and advice on program effectiveness, efficiency and relevance. The principal activities of this Branch include: developing corporate policies for Review activities (including audit evaluation, SUD, Benchmarking ect.), developing annual and long-range plans and schedules for reviews, and conducting reviews of departmental programs and operations primarily on the basis of management needs and priorities.

Scientific Analysis

Description: Information on analytical tests to ensure conformity with established quality-assurance and safety standards for certain products and facilities. Topics: Requests for analysis; analytical reports; test results; product safety; sampling programs (quotas); provision standards; consultation with national and international, governmental and non-governmental organizations; methods of analysis; statistics; laboratory accreditation protocols; audits; check samples; quality assurance protocols. Access: Files arranged by date sampled, laboratory number or by commodity, region, date and type of test. Certain files are kept in regional laboratories. Storage Medium: LIMS computer database contains samples received and reported, tests requested and performed, and computer-generated certificates of analysis are machine-readable. Additional data stored in Personal Computer Databases in the Agri-Food Safety and Strategies Division. Program Record Number: AAFC FPI 065

Seed Potato Programs

Description: Information on the planning and maintenance of a national program designed to provide seed potatoes of a class and quality that will meet the demands of both domestic and export markets. Topics: Seed potato certification standards; import requirements of foreign and domestic markets; export and domestic certification standards. Program Record Number: AAFC FPI 161

Seed Projects

Description: Information on the characteristics of seed varieties, foreign and domestic movement of seed, and availability of adequate supplies. Topics: Seed varieties; importation of seeds; exportation of seeds; statistics; contract multiplication; international liaison. Storage Medium: Seed inventory and seed sealing are machine-readable. Program Record Number: AAFC FPI 095

Seed Standards

Description: Information on the development of new or amended seed quality standards; packaging and labelling. Program Record Number: AAFC FPI 105

Standards and Labels

Description: Information on the development of and compliance with standards and labels to ensure quality, nutritional value and safety of agri-food products. Topics: Label review on microfilm; approved Canadian and foreign labels (machine-readable list); packaging; food standards — formulas and preparation; additives; policy development. Program Record Number: AAFC FPI 085

Standards and Specifications

Description: Information on guidelines, specifications and standards on seed potatoes. Topics: Standards and labelling; laboratory facilities; transportation; storage; seed potato varieties; policy development. Program Record Number: AAFC FPI 120

Surveillance Research

Description: Information on all aspects of research into race track surveillance. Topics: Diagnostic activities; drug detection; recording of races on film or video tape; effect of drug administration on horses. Access: Files arranged by drug study. Storage Medium: Film, videotapes and photographic prints. Program Record Number: AAFC FPI 190

Training for Inspection and Monitoring (Meat Hygiene)

Description: Information on training for the inspection and monitoring of food animals, meat products and plant sanitation. Topics: Inspection techniques for various species, sanitation practices, humane handling, food processing; basic meat science; basic microbiology; food borne pathogens; biological residues. Storage Medium: Training materials in written format as modules with visual components on video or filmstrip with audio cassette. Program Record Number: AAFC FPI 076

Variety Registration

Description: Information on the evaluation of new varieties of seeds for the purpose of registration. Topics: Registration of seeds; list of registered varieties (machine readable); unregistered varieties. Program Record Number: AAFC FPI 110

Relief Assistance Programs

Description: Information on crop loss assistance programs that cover emergency situations not provided for under ongoing crop insurance programs. Topics: Federal-provincial agreements; crop loss assistance program details; federal contributions to programs; soil moisture and crop condition reports; audit reports.

Resource and Environment Programs

Description: Information on environmental issues related to agriculture and programs to encourage environmental management of resources. Topics: Soil and water conservation management studies, wildlife habitat/agriculture interface, environmental assessment and review processes, National Soil Conservation Program, Green Plan initiatives, Environmental Sustainability Initiatives, Land Management Adjustment Program, and pesticide price monitoring. Storage Medium: Hard copy and/or computer diskettes. Program Record Number: AAFC POL 490

Stabilization Payments and Levies

Description: Information on stabilization payments to grain producers and levies on grain sold. Topics: Stabilization payments list, levies. Access: Files arranged by Canadian Wheat Board permit number. Program Record Number: AAFC POL 350

Waterfowl Crop Damage Compensation Program

Description: Information on compensation for individual producers in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and Québec who have suffered serious waterfowl crop loss damage. Topics: Federal-provincial agreements; federal contributions; the Crop Damage Prevention Program and policies; program subsidies; waterfowl crop damage compensation policies; program audit reports. Program Record Number: AAFC POL 365

Western Grain Transportation Consultations

Description: The western grain handling and transportation consultation process focused on 1) the Western Grain Transportation Act (WGTA) method of payment options identified by the 1990 Transportation Committee under the Agri-food Policy Review, 2) western grain transportation system efficiencies, 3) the costs associated with moving grain from Thunder Bay to St. Lawrence shipping points, 4) Minimum Compensatory Rates (MCRs) for canola products and 5) the impacts of policy change on rural communities. The consultations were designed to solicit the views of a wide range of stakeholders, primarily at the "grass roots" level. There were approximately 154 public meetings, from coast to coast — but mostly located in western Canada. The information was used to assist in evaluating various options and to assist in making decisions. Topics: Views on options, and method of payments for the above mentioned subjects. Program Record Number: AAFC GOB 801

Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration (PFRA)

Alberta Irrigation Rehabilitation Program

Description: Information on the Alberta Irrigation Rehabilitation Agreement of 1973 providing for the transfer to Alberta of Canada's interest in the St. Mary and Bow River irrigation projects and for financial contributions by Canada for the rehabilitation of irrigation works in Alberta. Topics: Implementation Board; agreements; finance; drainage; irrigable areas; land; individual project files; individual service, supply and construction contracts related to each individual project file. Program Record Number: AAFC PFA 535

Assiniboine River Diking Program

Description: Information relating to the construction of a system consisting of about 160 km of dikes to control flooding along the Assiniboine River between Portage la Prairie and Winnipeg and the operation and maintenance of these dikes. Topics: Advisory Board agendas and minutes of meetings; Property and Land Committee of the Advisory Board; Saskatchewan Lands Tripartite Committee of the Advisory Board; Cost Sharing Committee of the Advisory Board; land; individual service, supply and construction contract files. Program Record Number: AAFC PFA 540

Drought Monitoring Program

Description: Information relating to the risk of drought on the Canadian Prairies, including water supply, soil moisture and pasture condition assessments. Topics: Drought; water supply; wind erosion risk; soil moisture; pastures; committees; workshops; remote sensing; prairie drought monitoring network. Program Record Number: AAFC PFA 561

Engineering Services Projects

Description: Information relating to the investigation, planning, design, construction and maintenance of various works pertaining to water development, irrigation and infrastructure programs in the prairie provinces; and the provision of technical assistance to other federal departments and provincial governments with respect to water resource planning and management. Topics: Agreements; Community Wells Program; irrigation; drainage and flood control; dam maintenance; engineering assistance; safety inspection and investigation; individual project files; individual service, supply and construction contracts related to each individual project file. Program Record Number: AAFC PFA 520

Irrigation Demonstration Program

Description: Information relating to the operation of the Saskatchewan Irrigation Development Centre at Outlook, Saskatchewan. The Centre is a joint Canada — Saskatchewan facility and provides a focal point for the investigation and demonstration of irrigation management techniques that can be evaluated for a wide range of new and established crops. It provides specialized information to farmers and the agricultural industry on irrigation, drainage, special crops, fertilizers, weed control and special equipment. Topics: Vegetable Project Committee; Research Committee; Demonstration Committee; reports on various crops; land; irrigation. Program Record Number: AAFC PFA 545

Land-Use Program — Community Pastures

Description: Information relating to the operation and administration of PFRA community pastures, the conservation of land resources, the reduction of the impact of drought, the stabilization of western beef breeding herds, the improvement in the quality of beef cattle and the provision of supplemental grazing for farmers. Topics: Pasture agreements; agreements; cattle brands; pasture breeding services; wildlife control; control of pests by the application of pesticides and herbicides; animal health; land purchase program; pasture improvements; ecology and preservation of grasslands; land development program; dugout excavation and dugout enlargement; grazing applications and allotment notices; individual service, supply and construction contract files related to each individual project file; surface leasing agreements. Program Record Number: AAFC PFA 510

Shelterbelt Program

Description: Information relating to the operation of the Shelterbelt Centre at Indian Head, Saskatchewan, established in 1902 by the Department of the Interior and transferred to PFRA in 1963. The program involves the production and distribution of tree seedlings for farmstead and field shelterbelt plantings throughout the Prairie provinces. Topics: Water supply; roads and utilities; irrigation; buildings; landscaping; domestic water agreement with the Town of Indian Head Land; shelterbelts; infields and farmsteads tree distribution policy. Program Record Number: AAFC PFA 550

Soil Conservation Program

Description: Information relating to analysis and discussions of soil conservation and land degradation issues on the Canadian prairies, together with activities that deal with such problems at farm and regional levels. Topics: Project reports; local conservation organizations; soil conservation committees; Dryland Salinity Control Association; individual service; individual project files; agreements; applications for assistance; letters to government agencies and farm organizations; conservation workshops; soil conservation and degradation; unproductive land; economic and regional development agreements; the following database: Crop Residue Survey. Program Record Number: AAFC PFA 560

South Saskatchewan River Project

Description: Information on the construction, operation and maintenance of the Gardiner and Qu'Appelle River Dams forming Lake Diefenbaker in accordance with an agreement between Canada and Saskatchewan dated July 25, 1958. Topics: Policy; agreement; damage claims and adjustments; educational arrangements; photography; publicity; inaugural ceremonies; water analysis; buildings and lands; equipment; finances; personnel; development boards; contracts; dams and reservoirs; irrigation; power facilities; recreational facilities; reports on climate, economics, engineering, power, soils and recreational features. Program Record Number: AAFC PFA 525

South-West Saskatchewan Irrigation Projects

Description: Information on the construction of twenty-seven water storage reservoirs and six irrigation projects in southwest Saskatchewan. Four of the reservoirs have been turned over to the province while the remainder continue to be maintained and operated by PFRA. The irrigation projects are located at Consul, Eastend, Maple Creek, Rush Lake, Val Marie and West Val Marie. Topics: Assignments and agreements for sale of land; letters patent; drainage; irrigation; leases; application for land; spring runoff records; land levelling; letters to debtors; individual project files; individual construction contract files related to the project files. Program Record Number: AAFC PFA 530

Water Development Program

Description: Information relating to the provision of financial and technical assistance to individuals, groups and communities for the development of water and land resources; the establishment of on-farm, community and regional water supplies, including dugouts, stockwatering dams, irrigation schemes as well as farm wells, pipelines and reservoirs. Topics: Community Wells Program, agreements; dugouts and small dams; irrigation; submissions for community projects; farm well program; individual project files; applications for water development grants; economic and regional development agreements; the following database: Prairie Rural Water Development Program Projects. Program Record Number: AAFC PFA 515

Research Branch

Animal Production Research

Description: Information on the efficiency of production and the quality of animals in support of market development. Topics: Beef, dairy, swine, poultry, sheep, and honey bees; breeding; nutrition; management practices; physiology; feeding; protection; reproduction; behaviour; carcass quality and grading; genetic resources. Program Record Number: AAFC RBR 220

Biological Resources and Scientific Support Services

Description: Information on Canada's biological resources, and on the scientific support services for research programs; Topics: Classification and collections of vascular plants, insects, arachnids, nematodes, fungi; bacteria and viruses; plant gene collections; the following database: Sustainable Agriculture Task Force Database. Program Record Number: AAFC RBR 230

Biotechnology

Description: Information on the assessment, development and utilization of biotechnologies in support of agricultural research. Topics: Recombinant DNA technology, eucaryotic/prokaryotic molecular genetics, expression vectors, tissue culture, immunological and nucleic acid probes/diagnostics, gene mapping, cryogenics, microbial (eg. rhizobium/rumen) inoculants, biocontrol of pests excluding insect releases. Program

Record Number: AAFC RBR 250

CAB International

Description: Information on centre for Agriculture and Biosciences International formerly the Commonwealth International Agricultural Bureau. Topics: Information Service — agricultural scientific information, journals and book reviews; identification service — identification of pests and plant diseases; and biocontrol services — pest evaluation, survey and review services related to the introduction of biological control agents. Program

Record Number: AAFC RBR 245

Crop Production Research

Description: Information on the efficiency of production and quality of crops in support of market development.

Topics: Wheat and other cereals; oilseed crops; forage crops; horticultural crops; field crops; breeding; physiology; management practices; protection; disease resistance; plant nutrient studies; N fixation; genetic resources. Program Record Number: AAFC RBR 225

Crop Protection Research

Description: Information on the protection of crops from diseases, insects and weeds, and on minimizing environmental impact from agricultural practices. Topics: Plant disease organisms, insect pests, weeds, pesticides, chemical and biological control, integrated pest management, pesticide management. Program Record Number: AAFC RBR 210

Food Processing and Distribution Research

Description: Information on efficiency in the processing and distribution sectors through technological innovation and product improvement. Topics: Food processing (technological innovation, equipment and utilization); the development of new ingredients; packaging and storage (physiology and storage conditions) non-food use of agricultural materials. Program Record Number: AAFC RBR 240

Food Quality and Nutrition Research

Description: Information on the safety, quality and nutritive value of edible agricultural products. Topics: Food safety — toxicants and contaminants; food quality — food composition, nutrient availability, nutrition, quality measurement. Program Record Number: AAFC RBR 215

Research Branch — Study Data Base

Description: This data base contains information on agricultural and food research studies underway in Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada — Research Branch. Topics: Computerized input and retrieval system for scientific information on agricultural and food studies undertaken at research establishments. Program Record Number: AAFC RBR 221

Soil Research

Description: Information on the maintenance, availability and better utilization of agricultural land to meet current and future agricultural and food production needs.

Topics: Soil management and conservation (erosion problems, tillage, reclamation, fertilizer use); soil components (organic matter, mineral content, physical, chemical and biological properties); soil mapping; land inventory (classification, surveys, mapping); soil and land evaluation; soil quality and indicators; the following databases: Agroecological Resource Areas, Canadian Soil Information System (CANSIS), Generalized Soil Landscape Maps (GSLM) Degradation File, Land Potential for Agriculture Database, Soil Landscapes of Canada. Program Record Number: AAFC RBR 195

Water and Climate Research

Description: Information on the use of water resources and the effects of weather and climate on agricultural production. Topics: Irrigation, drainage, water quality, desalination, conservation; winter survival of crops, meteorological and climatic indices; crop development models (yield prediction through use of climatic indices); atmospheric carbon dioxide; meteorological records and data; the following database: Agriculture and Meteorology (AGMET). Program Record Number: AAFC RBR 200

Review Branch

Program Reviews

Description: Information on the Reviews of departmental programs. Topics: Documentation relating to results of reviews of departmental programs, objectives; analysis of effectiveness and audits of programs systems functions and organizations. Storage Medium: Hard copy and/or computer diskettes. Program Record Number: AAFC RB 415

Canadian Agri-Food Development Initiative

Description: Information on a financial contribution program introduced in 1990 to assist the agri-food industry in undertaking developmental projects including information on CMISI applicants and assisted projects. Topics: Marketing, production and human resource development. Storage Medium: Hard copy and/or computer diskettes. Program Record Number: AAFC MIS 484

Information may also be used for the purpose of locating individuals in order to collect a debt owing to the Crown. Consistent Uses: The Government of Canada may use Canadian Wheat Board records, and/or Crop Insurance, Gross Revenue Insurance Plan, Net Income Stabilization Account, Special Canadian Grains Program, and Prairie Grain Advance Payments Administration records relating to the applicants' farming operations for 1989, 1990 and 1991 to verify the applicants' declarations. These records may also be used for program evaluation purposes. Retention and Disposal Standards: The retention and disposal schedules are currently under review. Related to PR#: AAFC POL 805 TBS

Registration: 003141 Bank Number: AAFC PPU 184

Feed Freight Assistance Adjustment Fund

Description: The bank contains applicants' names, addresses, social insurance numbers, kind and cost of purchased equipment, and the amounts of grants approved for payment. Class of Individuals: Farmers and corporations. Purpose: To improve production and utilization of feed grain in Ontario by offering incentives for capital expenditures. Consistent Uses: To issue grants to individuals and corporations to partially offset their capital expenditures. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files are retained for 10 years. PAC Number: 77-005 Related to PR#: AAFC POL 368 TBS Registration: 000903 Bank Number: AAFC PPU 170

Freight Equalization Payment Records

Description: Records of payments effected by the Bureau according to the Livestock Feed Assistance Act and Regulations. Class of Individuals: Feed manufacturers and livestock producers located in grain deficient areas of Canada. Purpose: For program administration purposes and for statistical purposes related to domestic grain movements to eastern Canada and British Columbia. Consistent Uses: Financial account and statistical purposes. Retention and Disposal Standards: Six years. PAC Number: 74-008 Related to PR#: AAFC POL 805 TBS Registration: 003142 Bank Number: AAFC PPU 179

National Farm Business Management Program (NFBMP)

Description: This bank contains information on the NFBMP including information necessary to effectively deliver the various activities. NFBMP is an initiative funded by Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada. Implementation is generally through a provincial delivery organization which undertakes to have training materials developed, and training provided to eligible applicants. Program elements differ significantly between provinces. Class of Individuals: Farm producers participating in training courses. Contractors and consultants hired to develop materials and deliver courses. Purpose: This bank is used to identify and address the farm management needs in the agricultural sector and those contracted to undertake the development and delivery of farm business management courses. Consistent Uses: This bank is used to monitor farm management training and related services provided to producers. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files will be retained for the purpose of delivering the three-year initiative and for audit and evaluation purposes by the delivery organizations for periods specified in the agreements; after which, files will then be destroyed. Related to PR#: AAFC POL 487 TBS Registration: 002940 Bank Number: AAFC PPU 253

Net Income Stabilization Account (NISA)

Description: NISA is a voluntary stabilization program in which individual producers make deposits to an individual account and contributions are matched by the federal and provincial governments. The producer is entitled to make account withdrawals when his net income is low.

Class of Individuals: Eligible Canadian producers.

Purpose: This information is collected on an annual basis to support producer and government contributions to individual NISA accounts. Portions of this account may be held with private financial institutions such as banks or credit unions. Consistent Uses: (1) In order to ensure that information submitted is consistent with information provided to Revenue Canada for income tax purposes, a link with the Social Insurance Number (SIN) or the Corporate Tax Number will be required. (2) Data obtained may be used for further verification or for program evaluation purposes. (3) Approval on the use of the SIN will be covered under the enabling Safety Net Legislation. (4) Data consisting of producers' NISA bank deposits, for example, will be exchanged with institutions with the producer's consent. (5) Names and addresses of producers may be used for distribution of material on new agricultural programs. (6) Information may be used to garnish payments received by individuals under several Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada programs. This activity would be made under the Family Orders and Enforcement Assistance Act. Retention and Disposal Standards: The retention and disposal schedules are currently under review. Related to PR#: AAFC POL 805 TBS Registration: 002929 Bank Number: AAFC PPU 183

Resource and Environmental Programs

Description: This bank contains information on clients' names, addresses, description of projects and level of assistance requested from Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada. Some files may contain farm data on the number of hectares in production, type of crops and manure handling facilities. The goals of these agreements are to define and implement the activities, programs, coordination processes, and levels of human, technical, and financial resource commitments by the federal and provincial governments to soil conservation. The overall purpose of these activities is the development and adoption of the most appropriate technology in soil resource management and use that is within practical economic limits and is compatible with the soil's capability, in order to sustain the long term productivity of the land. Class of Individuals: Dependent on the agreement, it may include individuals, groups of farmers, legally incorporated special interest groups, farm and agri-food organizations, conservation districts, universities, colleges, cooperatives, environmental groups, aboriginal groups, other provincial and municipal governments or agencies of these governments, provincial crown corporations, non-government corporations and financial institutions. Purpose: This information bank is used to determine the eligibility of the applicants, to establish the level of assistance, to carry out the objectives of the federal/provincial agreements on environmental sustainability under the National Soil Conservation Program, Environmental Sustainability Initiative, Land Management Assistance Program and the Green Plan in the following provinces: Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia, and to make payments to farmers, farm organizations, consultant firms and research institutions. Consistent Uses: This bank is used to record payments received by farmers, farm organizations, consultant firms and research institutions. Information may also be used to garnish payments received by individuals under several Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada programs. This activity would be made under the Family Orders and Enforcement Assistance Act. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files are retained for 3-6 years. Related to PR#: AAFC POL 495 TBS Registration: 002933 Bank Number: AAFC PPU 246

Special Canadian Grains Program

Description: This bank contains records of applications for income assistance (1986 and 1987) as a result of international trade subsidy wars. This information includes producer names, addresses and land locations, types of crops, number of acres planted and, where applicable, crop insurance numbers, Canadian Wheat Board numbers, irrigation license numbers and Irrigation District/Prairie Farm Rehabilitation project names. Class of Individuals: Producers of grains, oilseeds and specialty crops affected by the international subsidy war. Purpose: This information was collected in order to implement the program. It is used to determine the eligibility of producers for assistance and the level of assistance they will receive under the program formula. It is also used to issue payments. Consistent Uses: The information will be used by the provinces to collect accounts receivable owing to the federal government from several federal agricultural programs under the Farm Income Assistance Initiative. The information will be used to mail information about new agricultural programs. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for six years. PAC Number: 77-005 Related to PR#: AAFC POL 835 TBS Registration: 002375 Bank Number: AAFC PPU 181

Western Grain Stabilization Program

Description: The bank was used to administer stabilization payments to grain producers. It contains the grain receipts and levy payments of holders of permits issued by the Canadian Wheat Board in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. Class of Individuals: Grain producers in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. Purpose: Files in this bank were used to calculate and issue stabilization payments to participating grain producers. Consistent Uses: Disclosure: (1) On an individual request basis, account information supplied to Revenue Canada to assist in its investigations. (2) The four western provincial crown corporations (Manitoba Crop Insurance Corporation, Saskatchewan Crop Insurance Corporation and the Farm Income and Crop Insurance Branch of the British Columbia Ministry of Agriculture and Food requested use of our data bank. Information provided concerning specific producers' sales by grain type and tonnes (not sales value) and generally extends over a number of crop years. The requests are ongoing and average perhaps one per week involving perhaps a dozen producers at most. In addition, we also provided computer tape files of our participants identified by permit number only while quoting the outstanding levy to be deducted from these accounts. This information was used in conducting audits of crop insurance claims and in pursuing fraudulent claims through the courts. The computer tape files used for matching participant to claimant in order to determine the amount of levy to be deducted from the claimant's indemnity payment (the provincial corporations were registered as designated purchasers under the WAGS Act). (3) Western Grain Transportation Agency: Grain sales information specific to producers in a specific area covering a ten year period was provided. This was an annual request. This information is used to establish compensatory amounts for the additional cost of transporting grain by truck as a result of rail line abandonment and the closure of grain elevators contiguous to it. As additional rail lines become eligible each year for removal from the network, more producers are affected by elevator closures. (4) Canada Grains Council: Historical data which are non-specific as to producer. The data are statistical in nature and used by the council for various analysis and studies. This was an annual request at one time but we have not received a request for the past two years. (5) Auditor General: Complete copies of our master file of name and addresses as well as our payout file. The information is requested annually. The information is used to verify the propriety and accuracy of stabilization payments. (6) RCMP: Detailed information specific to individuals is provided which would include name and address as well as grain sales for one or more years. The information is requested on an as needed basis (very infrequently). This information is issued to conduct criminal investigations. (7) Statistics Canada: Statistical information is provided on an ad hoc basis. Requests are very infrequent. The information is not producer specific and is used to conduct various analysis and studies. (8) Canadian Wheat Board (CWB) Payouts: Producer permit numbers, participant status and the amount of levy yet to be deducted is provided to the CWB once or twice a year. Conversely, each week the CWB furnishes WGSa with a computer tape of name and address changes and new permit number issues. The information enables the CWB to match participant files to their payment files in order to deduct the WGS levy from interim, adjustment and final payments. Information on the payout and the levy by producer is returned for processing to the WGS accounts. The CWB also forwards information weekly providing information about new permit book numbers and name and address which is used to update the WGS data base prior to levy refunds or stabilization payouts. (9) Revenue Canada: Statutory set-offs are received and recorded to intercept amounts owing to the Crown. Levy refunds and stabilization payments are matched to the file of set-offs and may confirmed amounts are diverted to Revenue Canada. (10) Family Orders and Agreements Enforcement Assistance Act: Monthly a computer tape file is received from Justice Canada to perform a name and address match against the WGSa master file. The matching is carried out to identify payees against whom there is an outstanding summons. WGSa payments are intercepted and set aside for instructions from Justice as to the amount to be diverted. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are held for 20 years. PAC Number: 77-005 Related to PR#: AAFC GOB 350 TBS Registration: 001715 Bank Number: AAFC PPU 180

Soil and Water Conservation Programs

Description: Programs and activities which involve the storage of personal information include the PFRA Shelterbelt Program, the Southwest Saskatchewan Irrigation Projects, the Irrigation Demonstration Program, the Community Pasture Program, the Soil and Water On-Farm Activities, including the Rural Water Development and Soil Conservation Programs. Class of Individuals: Prairie farmers Purpose: The information is used to administer programs on stabilizing and rehabilitating lands sub-marginal for cereal production and conserving and storing water on the drought-prone prairies. Consistent Uses: Information may also be used to garnish payments received by individuals under several Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada programs. This activity would be made under the Family Orders and Enforcement Assistance Act. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are held for 53 to 66 years. PAC Number: 84-010 Related to PR#: AAFC PFA 510, 515, 520, 525, 530, 535, 540, 545, 550, 560. TBS Registration: 001719 Bank Number: AAFC PPU 220

Soil Conservation Survey of Attitudes

Description: This bank contains the results of surveys conducted in order to determine farmers' attitudes towards soil conservation, and to understand the limitations of soil conservation activities as perceived by farmers. Class of Individuals: Prairie farmers who have received technical, financial and material assistance from the Soil Conservation Program and prairie farmers whose farms are located in the vicinity of Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration groups. Purpose: The survey provides baseline data for future evaluations and the subsequent progression of soil conservation activities. This information is used to evaluate the level of satisfaction of farmers who received services under the Soil Conservation Program and the program's effectiveness, according to farmers, in sustaining soil resources. The results will be used to evaluate the existing programs and to develop future programs. Consistent Uses: Personal data will be cross-referenced with responses from the survey in order to assess the relative needs of certain target groups. The evaluation of the needs assessment may be used in revising existing programs as well as in the development of future programs. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for five years. Related to PR#: AAFC PFA 560

Special Canadian Grains

Program 1987 Extension Evaluation

Description: The bank contains information about opinions and perceptions collected from participants of the Special Canadian Grains Program 1987 Extension. This information will be collected in two phases. Participants' perceptions of the financial and farm-level (production decisions, use of inputs) impacts of the SCG 1987 program as well as their opinions about the Program and its improvements over 1986 will be collected in focus groups. Class of Individuals: Grains and oilseeds producers in Canada who received payments from the Special Canadian Grains Program 1987 Extension. Purpose: Information is compiled in order to evaluate the Special Canadian Grains Program 1987 Extension. The focus of the evaluation is the financial and farm level impacts of the SCGP 1987 as well as participants' perception of the Program. The information will be used to assess the effectiveness of the SCGP 1987 and, as part of the "Alternatives" issue of the evaluation, to determine how such programs, if required, may be improved in the future. Consistent Uses: Information collected will be used to design similar programs, if required, in the future. Retention and Disposal Standards: Information in this bank will be retained for six years from the date the information was collected. PAC Number: 86-001 Related to PR#: AAFC AEB 415 TBS Registration: 001856 Bank Number: AAFC PPU 240

General Correspondence and Enquiries

Personal information in this class relates to routine correspondence concerning the regulatory and licensing activities associated with meat inspection, pesticides, feeds and fertilizers, veterinary biologics and the humane transportation of animals. It also relates to general enquiries concerning agricultural research, market intelligence, food advisory information and financial assistance to marketing boards and co-operatives. The personal information contained in this class normally includes the name and address of the enquirer, but is neither arranged nor retrievable by personal identifiers. This form of personal information exists in a fragmented form throughout the subject files controlled by the Department and is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the subject and the date of the correspondence. The retention period for this class of personal information is controlled by the retention period of the files in which they are stored.

Ministerial Correspondence

This class of information contains correspondence received by the Departmental Secretariat from external organizations and individuals in the form of requests for information, complaints, opinions and other similar submissions related to a broad range of policy issues pertaining to Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada's activities, wherein some unsolicited personal information has been provided by the correspondent. This form of information would be retrievable only if specifics of name, date of communication and subject were to be provided; it is not arranged or retrievable by personal identifiers. The retention periods of these classes of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Other Programs and Agreements

This class reflects other programs and agreements not specifically covered under the other classes. These other programs and agreements are aimed at resolving specific problems of a limited nature or in specifically defined areas of the country. For example, Federal-Provincial Agreements such as those under the Agricultural and Rural Development Act (ARDA) are concerned with rural problems of unemployment and social disadvantages. Special ARDA agreements have been used as a vehicle to improve the economic circumstances of native people by providing financial and other assistance to create job opportunities. Personal information may be stored in administering programs falling within this class. This information may include financial, employment, demographic and educational data on individuals. Such data, however, would be stored as part of the general subject files where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. This form of personal information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the name of the program concerned and the name of the specific project.

Atlantic Canada Opportunities Agency

Chapter 2

General Information

Background

The Atlantic Canada Opportunities Agency (ACOA) was created in June 1987 to increase opportunity for economic development in Atlantic Canada and, more particularly, to enhance the growth of earned incomes and employment opportunities in the region.

ACOA's head office is located in Moncton, New Brunswick. The Agency maintains regional offices in the capital cities of each of the four Atlantic provinces, as well as in Ottawa. Smaller area offices are located in various locations within the four provinces served. Each of the four regional offices, and the Ottawa office is headed by a Vice-President.

Responsibilities

The Atlantic Canada Opportunities Agency (ACOA) is a federal government economic development organization mandated to work with businesses, business organizations, provincial governments and other federal departments to help create more and better employment opportunities in Atlantic Canada.

Because new employment is the direct result of business growth, particularly among small-and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs), ACOA seeks to provide people with the encouragement, advice, access to capital and information and technology they need to start and expand their own businesses.

ACOA focuses on five main economic development areas:

- Entrepreneurship — because SMEs generate more than 90 per cent of all new jobs in Atlantic Canada.
- Trade — because every $1-billion increase in exports creates 11,000 jobs.
- Innovation and Technology — because innovative companies are growing companies, and growing companies create jobs.
- Business Management Practices (BMP) — because formal BMP make companies more productive and resilient.
- Access to Capital and Information — because adequate access stimulates business start-ups, expansion and job creation.

Legislation

- Government Organization Act, Atlantic Canada 1987 (Part I)
- Small Business Loans Act
- Special Areas Act

Organization

ACOA delivers two main programs, the Business Development Program and the COOPERATION Program. Furthermore, the Agency is responsible for the delivery of various adjustment programs and the Canada Infrastructure Works Program as well as the coordination of the Canada Business Services Centres Initiative. The Agency also has advocacy and coordination functions for the Atlantic Region.

The ACOA Business Development Program provides assistance in the form of repayable contributions to small and medium-sized businesses in Atlantic Canada to start-up, expand, modernize and become more competitive. Non-profit organizations providing support to the business community may also qualify. The level of support available depends on the activity to be undertaken.

The COOPERATION program provides the policy framework and strategic plan for federal-provincial agreements. The COOPERATION program provides a powerful and flexible mechanism to coordinate federal efforts with those of the provinces and the private sector to assist in developing a variety of sectors of the Atlantic economy. Federal efforts under the program may be made through federal-provincial agreements or through direct federal initiatives.

ACOA's Adjustment activities focus on helping communities adjust to major downturns in local economic conditions. The Agency makes full use of coordination, policy and advocacy mandates to help bring about positive adjustment for affected communities and provinces. For example, ACOA is responsible, in Atlantic Canada, for delivering assistance to communities affected by base closures and reductions; downturn in fisheries; and the termination of the ferry service following the construction of the Fixed link.

ACOA, in concert with the Atlantic provinces, is responsible for the delivery of the Canada Infrastructure Works Program in the Atlantic region. The aim of the Program is to generate short and long-term employment, while enhancing economic productivity and environmental quality, and accelerating economic recovery. The Program will renew and enhance physical infrastructure across communities through the financial participation of federal, provincial and municipal levels of government.

The Canada Business Service Centre (CBSC) Initiative was introduced to improve business access to a wide range of information on government services, programs and regulations. There are currently 21 federal business departments and agencies participating in this initiative as well as other levels of government and non-governmental organizations. ACOA manages five centres in the four Atlantic Provinces.

The advocacy role means representing and promoting Atlantic interests to other government departments in Ottawa. A major target is influencing the design of national programs and policies and to ensure that Atlantic capabilities are understood and given fair consideration when major Crown procurements are contemplated.

The coordination role includes taking the lead on major government and sectoral issues in Atlantic Canada where the objectives of the Government are best achieved through the effective interaction of a number of federal departments, and in some instances, provincial governments and the private sector.

An Advisory Board, comprised of seven private sector members representing Atlantic provinces chaired by the President of ACOA offers advice and guidance on the policy directions of the Agency.

This program was designed to create partnerships with the provinces and the private sector to assist in developing a variety of sectors of the Atlantic Economy. Topics: Policy, General, ERDA Meetings, Cooperation Meetings, Cooperation Program Task Force Meetings, Cooperation Program Advisory Committee Meetings, ERDA MC, Cooperation MC, Atlantic ERDA, Cooperation Program Communications, Atlantic Livestock Feed Initiatives (ALFI), Cooperation Program Evaluation, Federal/Provincial Framework, New Brunswick Cooperation Program (Individual projects listed in numerical order), the following agreements: Industrial Innovation & Technology, Industrial Development, Forest Renewal, Mineral Development, Fisheries Development, Tourism Development, Flood Damage Reduction, Economic Diversification, Agri-Food Development, Science and Technology, Transportation, Special Response, Cooperation Agreement on Cultural Development, Agreement on Urban Economic Development, Entrepreneurship & Human Resource Development, Travel Generators, Planning, Economic Development, NB Recreational Fisheries Development, Newfoundland Cooperation Program (Individual projects listed in numerical order), the following agreements: Agri-Food, Burin Peninsula Development Fund, Fisheries, Flood Damage Reduction Program, Forestry, Mineral Development, Ocean Industry Development, Rural Development, Science & Technology, Tourism Development, Industrial Development, Comprehensive Labrador Subsidiary Agreement, Transportation, Enterprise Network Cooperation, Urban Infrastructure, Environmental Improvement, Development Planning, Cultural Industries, Human Resource Development, Salmonid Enhancement/Conservation, Strategic Investment Industrial Development, Fishing Industry Development, Newfoundland Strategic Regional Diversification, Canada/Nfld Economic Renewal Initiative, Nova Scotia Cooperation Program (Individual projects listed in numerical order), the following agreements: Agri-Food, Halifax Metro Sub-Agreements, Forestry, Strait of Canso, Tourism, Advanced Manufacturing Support, Technology Transfer and Industrial, Fisheries, Mineral Development, Industrial Development Opportunities, Sustainable Economic Development, Highway Improvement, Cultural Development, Economic Policy & Planning, Technology Development, Community Economic Development, NS People Skills, NS Municipal Infrastructure, NS Economic Diversification. Prince Edward Island Cooperation Program (Individual projects listed in numerical order), the following agreements: Agri-Food, Cultural Industries, Energy, Forestry, Industrial Development, Tourism, Transportation, Market Development, Strategic Technology Development, Sustainable Economic Development, Urban Economic Development, Human Resource Development, Primary Resource Development. Pan-Atlantic Cooperation Agreements: Pan-Atlantic Coordination & Research Initiatives (Individual projects listed in numerical order), Pan-Atlantic Aboriginal Partnership Agreement, International Business Agreement (Atlantic Trade Agreement), Atlantic Agri-Products Competitiveness Initiative, Canada-France Cooperation Agreement.

Program Record Number: ACO PRO 016

COORDINATION

Description: Includes correspondence, reports, information relating to the Agency role in the Atlantic Region to increase the effectiveness of all federally sponsored economic activities by coordinating these interests among federal, provincial and private-sector partners. Topics: Policy, General, Official Languages Act.

Program Record Number: ACO PRO 010

ENTREPRENEURSHIP PROGRAM

Description: Correspondence, reports, policies, forums, conferences, awards, publications, evaluations, relating to ACOA's initiative to promote entrepreneurship and small business development for the economic, social and cultural development of our country in partnership with private sector, provincial and territorial governments and the academic community. Topics: National Entrepreneurship Policy, Entrepreneurship, Entrepreneurship Reports, Pan-Atlantic Entrepreneurship Development Program, Entrepreneurship Proposals, Entrepreneurship Development Initiative (EDI), Young Entrepreneurs, Entrepreneurship Forums/Conferences/Showcases, Entrepreneurship Business Awards, Publications (including State Of Small Business), The Leading Edge, Women and Entrepreneurship, Shad Valley Program, Entrepreneurship Evaluation. Program Record Number: ACO PRO 006

FEDERAL/PROVINCIAL INFRASTRUCTURE PROGRAM

Description: Includes correspondence, agreements, reports, projects, relating to the Canada Infrastructure Program which was established to renew municipal infrastructure, improve the environment and enhance Canada's competitiveness while accelerating economic recovery through job creation. Topics: Policy, General,

NB Infrastructure Agreement, Newfoundland Infrastructure Agreement, NS Infrastructure Agreement, PEI Infrastructure Agreement. Program Record Number: ACO PRO 013

FISHERIES ALTERNATIVE PROGRAM (FAP)

Description: Includes correspondence, individual projects, and evaluation of the Fisheries Alternative Program. This program covers the Federal Response and financial assistance given to Communities after termination or disruption in their major economic circumstances as a result of the downturn in the Atlantic fishing industry.

Topics: Policy, General, Meetings/Conference Calls, CEDP/Fisheries Alternative Program, Fisheries Alternative Program Evaluation, Individual Projects. Program Record Number: ACO PRO 020

FIXED LINK REDEVELOPMENT INITIATIVE

Description: Includes correspondence, reports, and projects relating to the Tripartite Agreement between Canada and the provinces of PEI and NB. Funds provided by the Government of Canada are for the redevelopment of Borden, PEI and Cape Tormentine, NB, to offset adverse effects of termination of ferry service between Borden and Cape Tormentine. Topics: Policy, General, Cape Borden Redevelopment Program (PEI Projects), Cape Tormentine Area Redevelopment Program (NB Projects). Program Record Number: ACO PRO 019

GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT

Description: Correspondence, committees, meetings, programs on ACOA's procurement strategy to increase long term economic activity in Atlantic Canada and to help successful companies leverage federal contracts into non-government markets. Topics: Policy, General, Atlantic Opportunities Program (AOP), Annual Strategic Acquisition Plan (ASAP) (Canadian Annual Procurement Strategy (CAPS), Atlantic Canada Supplier Development Program (ACSDP), Supplier Development Operations Committee, Access Small Business, CAATS Procurement (Canadian Automated Air Traffic Control System), Defense Procurement, Canadian Submarine Acquisition Project (CASAP), Armoured Vehicles, Canadian Patrol Frigates, Canadian Forces Supply System Upgrade (CFSSU), Tactical Command, Control and Communication System (TCCCS), Free Trade Agreement Procurement Provisions, Procurement Review Committee (PRC), Procurement Meetings, Studies on Procurement, Science & Technology Procurement Network, Western Supplier Development Program (WSDP). Program Record Number: ACO PRO 018

INDUSTRIAL REGIONAL DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM (IRDP)

Description: Includes correspondence and individual projects relating to the Industrial Regional Development Program (IRDP) established to promote regional industrial development through the support of private sector initiatives. The program provides financial assistance to business and non-profit organizations through contributions or repayable contributions. Topics: General, Individual projects. Program Record Number: ACO PRO 017

INDUSTRIES — GENERAL

Description: Information dealing with all industry sectors within the Atlantic provinces which have been transferred to ACOA and with which ACOA has dealings. These sectors include: agriculture, defense, energy, environment, fisheries, forestry, manufacturing, mining, science and technology, health, geomatics, shipbuilding, tourism, trade and transportation. Three areas which stand out as major priorities for ACOA are Innovation and Technology, Tourism and Trade. Topics: General. Program Record Number: ACO IND 024

INNOVATION & TECHNOLOGY

Description: Includes correspondence on Innovation and Technology, a priority for ACOA to enhance small and medium-sized enterprise productivity and competitiveness by improving access to innovation and technology through programs designed to increase diffusion of best practice technology, foster the development and commercialization of technology-based tradeable goods and services, and develop regionally-strategic sectors. Topics: General, Space Program/Space Station, Networks of Centres of Excellence, Geomatics Industry, Communication & Information Technology, Meetings/Conferences. Program Record Number: ACO IND 025

POLICY, RESEARCH & DEVELOPMENT

Description: Includes correspondence, reports, studies, research, development policies, liaison with other federal/provincial departments, relating to the regional economy. Topics: Policy, General, Federal/Provincial Economic Development, Harmonization, Atlantic Economic Development, Aboriginal Economic Development, Strategy/Native Assistance, Micro Economic Action Plan, Small Communities and Rural Areas Economic Development, Studies General, ACOA Client Survey, Economic Study-Atlantic Region. Program Record Number: ACO GEN 003

PROGRAMS/AGREEMENTS — GENERAL

Description: Includes correspondence, reports, etc. relating to programs, initiatives, agreements and sub-agreements which ACOA is involved with through funding or support; these may be with other agencies, government departments (federal or provincial), groups or individuals. Also includes correspondence on the Program Evaluation general function of the Agency. Topics: Policy, General, New Brunswick, Fundy Trail Endowment Fund, Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, Pictou County Economic Development Fund, Preston and Area Development Fund, Cape Breton, DEVCO-IDD/ECBC Transition, ECB/ECBC Assessment, Proposed ECBC/ACOA Transition, Prince Edward Island, Venture Capital/Venture Loan Program (FBDB), Canada Community Investment Fund, ACF Equity Atlantic Inc., Seed Capital Fund, Workers' Investment Fund Inc., PEI Capital Inc. (Island Capital Inc.), Unsolicited Proposals, Major Projects Funding, Heritage Canada/Main Street Program, Immigrant Investors Program, Unsolicited Proposals Program, Program Evaluations. Program Record Number: ACO PRO 004

PROGRAMS/AGREEMENTS — REPORTS

Description: Includes all reports (weekly, monthly, as well as annual reports) prepared for the Minister, the President and all Vice-Presidents on all ACOA Programs/Agreements. Topics: General, Weekly Reports, (Action Program, Business Development Program), Monthly Reports, Project Proposal Status Reports, Projects Approved/Accepted/Announced Reports, ACOA Annual Reports/Five-year Reports, Quarterly Reports (Action, FAP), Cooperation Program Reports, Cooperation Program Expenditures/Projections (Monthly Report), Fisheries Alternative Program (FAP) Reports, Quarterly Report (Loan Insurance, Action Loan & Contribution), Inventory of ACOA Programs, Infrastructure Program Reports, Advocacy & Coordination Activity Reports, EPAP Progress Reports, Quarterly Job Impact Reports, Project Processing Reports (Action, FAP, BDP). Program Record Number: ACO PRO 008

SMALL BUSINESS LOAN ACT PROGRAM (SBLA)

Description: Includes correspondence relating to the Small Business Loans, Act Program to encourage lenders in the private sector to increase, the availability of loans for the purpose of the establishment, expansion, modernization and improvement of small business enterprises. Topics: Policy, General, SBLA Program Review. Program Record Number: ACO PRO 011

TOURISM

Description: Includes correspondence, policies, seminars and conferences, agreements, projects relating to Tourism, a priority of ACOA to build the industry into a long-term generator of new jobs by helping industry organizations and private-sector operators become more efficient in their use of resources and by emphasizing a coordinated approach to international marketing, research and training. Topics: Policy, General, Canada/Atlantic Cooperation Agreements on Tourism Marketing, Coast of Difference, NB Tourism, Nfld. Tourism, NS Tourism, CB Tourism, PEI Tourism, International Tourism Marketing Agreement and initiatives), Atlantic Canada Tourism Partnership Management Committee, Marketing Advisory Committee, Tourism Canada, National Heritage Tourism Initiative, Air Transportation (Tourism), Canadian Tourism Commission, Meetings/Conferences. Program Record Number: ACO IND 026

TRADE

Description: Includes correspondence, publications, meetings, missions, trade shows relating to the ACOA trade initiative in the Atlantic, region to foster a cohesive approach to Atlantic trade development, promote Atlantic exports through incoming missions of foreign trade commissioners; develop a training strategy for SME and those providing assistance to SME. Topics: General, Import, Publications (Trade Winds), Interprovincial

Trade/Barriers, Free Trade, Internal Trade Agreement, Multilateral Trade Negotiations, Sydport International Trade Zone, General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), Pre-Trader Demonstration Project, Trade-Services, Cross-Border Shopping, International Trade, Japan, Asia Pacific/Far East, Europe, New England/Boston Consulate, Mexico, Hong Kong, South America/Caribbean, Trade Shows/Forums/Fairs/etc., Trading Houses, Investment Promotion, Import Information System, Trade Team Canada. Program Record Number: ACO IND 027

Atlantic Pilotage Authority Canada

Chapter 3

General Information

Background

As a result of recommendations made by the Royal Commission on Pilotage in Canada, the Pilotage Act was assented to by Her Majesty and the Governor-in-Council and proclaimed February 1, 1972.

The Pilotage Act created four pilotage regions with specific authorities, thereby replacing a large number of local pilotage districts. The four pilotage authorities — Atlantic, Laurentian, Great Lakes, and Pacific — are Crown corporations, responsible to Parliament through the Minister of Transport.

The Atlantic Pilotage Authority was incorporated in carrying out the Pilotage Act in 1972, and pursuant to the Financial Administration Act, (Schedule SC 1983-84, 31) was designated a Schedule III Part I Crown corporation.

Responsibilities

The role of the Authority is to establish, operate, maintain and administer, in the interest of safety, an efficient and economical pilotage service within its geographical boundaries — all coastal waters in the Atlantic region. As a further goal, the authority prescribes tariffs of pilotage charges that are fair, reasonable and consistent with providing revenues sufficient to permit the Authority to operate on a self-sustaining financial basis.

Legislation

- Atlantic Pilotage Regulations
- Authority By-Laws
- Canadian Shipping Act
- General Pilotage Regulations
- Pilotage Act

Organization

♦ Administration Division

This Division provides administrative and financial services as required to operate within accepted corporate business procedures.

♦ Operations Division

This Division provides pilotage services by assigning and dispatching qualified pilots to ships navigating within the boundaries of the Atlantic Pilotage Authority.

Information Holdings

Pilotage Services

Description: Information on the provision of pilotage services within the Atlantic region. Topics: Dispatching records; pilotage licenses; tariff charges; assignments of pilots to vessels; accident reports; collective agreements; international shipping affairs. Program Record Number: APA OPD 005

Tariffs

Description: Information on the setting of tariffs for the provision of pilotage services; also the conduct and results of negotiations concerning the setting of tariffs in various districts throughout the region as well as results of National Transportation Agency of Canada hearings. Program Record Number: APA OPD 010

Personal Information Banks

Accounts Payable Files

Description: The purpose of this bank is to maintain information on the payment of accounts to firms or individuals for services or products provided to the Authority. Files contain the names and addresses of firms and individuals; and invoices for services rendered or products provided detailing the amount owing and any supporting documentation to substantiate the account. Original accounts payable vouchers, together with supporting documentation, are maintained in hard copy and are filed by date of payment. The retention period for original accounts payable vouchers, together with supporting documentation, is seven years. Access to this bank will require name, address and date of account. Bank Number: APA PPU 015

Accounts Receivable Files

Description: The purpose of this bank is to maintain information on sums of money owing to the Authority. Files contain the names and addresses of firms and individuals; details of the amount owing; and any supporting documentation to substantiate the account. Manual files exist to maintain hard copy documentation. The retention period is seven years. Access to this bank will require name and address. Bank Number: APA PPU 010

Application for Employment File

Description: The purpose of this bank is to maintain a record of information relating to applications for employment received from the general public. This bank contains completed application forms, letters and curricula vitae of persons interested in working for the Authority. The retention period for this bank is ten years. Access to this bank will require name, address and date of birth. Bank Number: APA PPU 020

Register of Pilots

Description: The purpose of the bank is to retain a register of certificates and qualifications required under the Pilotage Act. This bank contains information on physical characteristics, licenses, certificates, and accidents of pilots. The retention period for this bank is indefinite. Access to this bank will require name and address. Bank Number: APA PPU 025

Service Contracts

Description: The purpose of this bank is to maintain information on the tenders and award of contracts for the supply of such services as land and water transportation. The files contain the list of prospective tenderers; the tenders submitted; an analysis of the tenders received; documentation leading to the award of the contract; and the signed contract between the contractor and the Authority. The files may be referred to for future contracts. The retention period for service contracts is ten years. Access to this bank will require the contract number and description of the service. Bank Number: APA PPU 005

Atomic Energy Control Board

Chapter 4

General Information

Background

The Atomic Energy Control Board (AECB) was established in 1946 by the Atomic Energy Control Act.

Responsibilities

The AECB is the federal regulatory agency responsible for the control of health, safety, and national and international security aspects of prescribed nuclear energy substances and items, and nuclear facilities. The AECB is also responsible for the administration of the Nuclear Liability Act. The Board reports to Parliament through the Minister of Energy, Mines and Resources, and is a departmental corporation within the meaning and purpose of the Financial Administration Act.

Legislation

- Atomic Energy Control Act, R.S.C., 1985, chapter A-16
- Nuclear Liability Act, R.S.C., 1985, chapter N-28

Organization

The Board consists of five members. One of these members is appointed President and Chief Executive Officer of the AECB and is the only full-time member. Reporting to the President are the Secretariat, the Directorate of Reactor Regulation, the Directorate of Fuel Cycle and Materials Regulation, the Directorate of Research and Safeguards, the Directorate of Analysis and Assessment, and the Directorate of Administration.

◆ Secretariat

The Secretariat is responsible for the functions of Secretary to the Board, the dissemination of information to the public and the media, and administrative and scientific support to two independent advisory committees dealing with radiation protection and nuclear safety. It is also responsible for corporate planning, coordination of policy development, implementation of internal audit and program evaluation plans, as well as liaison with provincial, federal and international agencies, including the Minister's Office. Administration of the Nuclear Liability Act and compliance with the provisions of the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act rest with the Secretariat. The Secretariat consists of the Office of the Secretary to the Board, the Office of Public Information, the Planning and Coordination Section, and the Advisory Committee Secretariat.

◆ Directorate of Reactor Regulation

The Directorate is responsible for the regulation of power and research reactors, heavy water plants and for examining the qualifications of reactor operators. The Directorate consists of Power Reactor Divisions 'A' and 'B', Operator Certification Division, and the Studies and Codification Division.

◆ Directorate of Fuel Cycle and Materials Regulation

The Directorate is responsible for the regulation of uranium mines and mills, refineries, and conversion plants; nuclear fuel fabrication plants; radioactive waste management facilities; accelerators; and the use of radioisotopes. Additional responsibilities of the Directorate include the analytical laboratory facilities and compliance inspection services, and regulating the transport packaging of radioactive materials. The Directorate consists of the uranium Facilities Division, the Waste Management Division, the Compliance Services and Laboratory Division, and the Radioisotope and Transportation Division.

◆ Directorate of Research and Safeguards

The Directorate is responsible for the initiation and management of projects in the mission-oriented research and support program that is designed to provide information for use in the AECB's regulatory functions. The Directorate also administers the implementation of domestic and international nuclear materials safeguards programs, and the Canadian Safeguards Support Program. The Directorate consists of the Safeguards and Security Division, and the Research and Supports Divisions 'A' and 'B'.

◆ Directorate of Analysis and Assessment

The Directorate is responsible for the detailed review and assessment of the arguments submitted by licensees (primarily for reactors) to demonstrate the safety of their designs, the adequacy of their quality assurance, and the protection from radiation hazards threatening both workers and the environments. The Directorate is also responsible for the development of standards and guidelines for radiation protection. The Directorate consists of the Safety Evaluation Division, the Components and Quality Assurance Division, and the Radiation Protection Division.

◆ Directorate of Administration

The Directorate is responsible for the administration of the AECB's human, information, financial and physical resources. The Directorate consists of the Personnel Section, the Finance Section and the Information Management Section.

Bank of Canada

Chapter 5

General Information

Background

The Bank of Canada is the country's central bank. It was incorporated in 1934 under the Bank of Canada Act. Under the preamble of the Act, unchanged since its inception, the Bank of Canada is required "to regulate credit and currency in the best interests of the economic life of the nation, to control and protect the external value of the national monetary unit and to mitigate by its influence fluctuations in the general level of production, trade, prices and employment, so far as may be possible within the scope of monetary action, and generally to promote the economic and financial welfare of the Dominion."

Overall responsibility for the management of the Bank is assigned to the Board of Directors, composed of the Governor, the Senior Deputy Governor and 12 directors. The Governor and Senior Deputy Governor are appointed for seven-year terms, the directors for three years. The Deputy Minister of Finance sits on the board as a non-voting member. The Governor is the Chief Executive Officer of the Bank and is responsible for the business of the Bank. As a practical matter, collective responsibility for the conduct of Bank affairs rests with the Governing Council, composed of the Governor, the Senior Deputy Governor and the four other Deputy Governors.

Responsibilities

The Bank of Canada's primary responsibilities can be grouped into four broad functions: developing and implementing monetary policy, providing central banking services, issuing bank notes, and managing the public debt.

Monetary policy is the Bank's primary function and most important responsibility. Monetary policy is concerned with managing the rate of monetary expansion in a way that is consistent with preserving the value of money. In terms of central banking services, the Bank plays an active role in Canada's payments clearing and settlement systems, operates deposit accounts for major financial institutions and for the federal government, and manages the government's foreign exchange reserves. The Bank also has sole responsibility for issuing Canada's bank notes, undoubtedly its best-known product. This responsibility involves note design (including features that enhance security against counterfeiting), as well as printing, distributing and eventually replacing bank notes. Coinage, on the other hand, is produced by the Royal Canadian Mint. Lastly, as the government's fiscal agent, the Bank advises the government on matters relating to the public debt, issues government debt, maintains bondholder records, and makes payments on behalf of the government for interest and debt redemption.

Organization

♦ Corporate Services Departments

The Corporate Services Departments provide advice, information and internal services that support the management of the Bank. The Corporate Services departments are: Executive and Legal Services, Communications Services, Management Services (information, human resources and financial services), Infrastructure Services (facilities, office, protective and automation services) and Audit Services. Executive and Legal Services provide corporate secretary support to the Bank's Board of Directors and the management of the Bank. Communications Services provide publication and public information services, and manage the National Currency Collection and the Currency Museum. As part of the Management Services Department, Financial Services (formerly known as Comptroller's Department), is responsible for the internal financial functions of the Bank, statutory financial reporting requirements and administration of unclaimed bank balances.

♦ Department of Banking Operations

The overall responsibility of the Department is to provide efficient and effective service to other central banks, international financial organizations, the Government of Canada, chartered banks, trust companies and all other financial organizations. Its responsibilities include the security and administration of valuables such as gold, securities and currency. The Department also provides fiscal functions for which the Bank of Canada acts as an agent for the Government of Canada. These functions include the clearing of government obligations and receiving deposits for the account of the Government of Canada. The Department has agencies or branches in Vancouver, Calgary, Regina, Winnipeg, Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal, Saint John and Halifax.

♦ Department of Monetary and Financial Analysis

This department is responsible for monitoring and analyzing the behaviour of the chartered banks, other financial institutions and capital markets in response to monetary policy and other forces at work in the financial system.

◆ Financial Markets Department

This department has both operational and analytical duties. Its most important operational functions are to help implement monetary policy through its activities in financial markets, to conduct foreign exchange operations as fiscal agent for the government and the Bank, and to issue Government of Canada securities (principally treasury bills and marketable bonds) both domestically and abroad. Its analytical function is to monitor conditions in financial markets, forecast key financial flows and study relevant financial relationships. The results are communicated to the Bank's senior officers for their use in formulating monetary policy, advising the government on matters related to debt management, and influencing the development of capital market structures appropriate to Canadian needs.

◆ International Department

The principal responsibilities of this department include producing timely analysis of current and prospective economic developments in foreign countries, providing policy advice on issues addressed by international organizations such as the International Monetary Fund and the OECD, and undertaking studies on international financial markets and economic policy issues.

◆ Public Debt Department

This department is responsible for providing administrative support and services for Government of Canada securities. Its functions include: development and distribution of debt certificates; ongoing management of the debt register information; servicing the holders of debt instruments through account statements, interest payments, product information and other client service; and managing the distribution channels for Government Debt.

◆ Research Department

This department's primary responsibility is to assess the significance of current economic developments and prospects in Canada and to keep Bank management fully informed about them. An aspect of this responsibility is to seek further understanding of the operation of the economy and of public policies which are, or could be, employed in an attempt to regulate it.

Unclaimed Bank Balance Inquiries

Description: This bank contains letters requesting verification of ownership of unclaimed bank balances as well as requests to purchase the Unclaimed Bank Balance file. Requests originate with individuals, chartered banks, trust companies, barristers and solicitors and tracing companies acting on behalf of their clients. Class of Individuals: General public. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to process requests, to compile statistics and to maintain a record of the results of the verification process. Consistent Uses: The information is used to respond to inquiries from owners of dormant accounts, or their authorized representatives in order to arrange for payments to rightful owners of these accounts. Retention and Disposal Standards: Positive responses to requests for verification of ownership are kept for seven years, then destroyed. Vouchers and supporting documentation regarding paid accounts under $1000 are kept for 10 years; for paid accounts $1000 and over, they are kept indefinitely. Negative responses to requests for verification of ownership are kept for three years, then destroyed. Records relating to the purchase of the unclaimed bank balance file are kept for a period of seven years, then destroyed. Note: Canadian chartered banks are required to transfer all deposit accounts, maintained in Canadian currency, that have been inactive for a period of ten years or more to the Bank of Canada, in accordance with Section 438 of the Bank Act. This also includes all instruments (bank drafts, certified cheques, deposit receipts, money orders and travellers' cheques) that remain on the books of the chartered banks after a period of ten years from the date of issue. The Bank of Canada acts as a custodian for unclaimed bank balances, responds to general inquiries and claims, and makes payments, without fees, to those persons entitled to receive the proceeds. Balances with a value of less than $100.00 that remain unclaimed are kept for a period of twenty years, from the last date of transaction, then are transferred to the Receiver General for Canada. The accounts that represent a balance of $100.00 or more are kept indefinitely, or until claimed. It is not necessary to make a formal request for access to the register of dormant accounts; personal inquiries may be directed to Unclaimed Balances Unit, Financial Services, Management Services Department, or access to the complete file on microfiche may be arranged by contacting an agency of the Bank of Canada. Agencies are located in Vancouver, Calgary, Regina, Winnipeg, Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal, Saint John and Halifax, and are open to the public from 09:00 to 15:00, Monday through Friday. As well, these records are available for sale, on a cost recovery basis, on microfiche and certain magnetic media. Related to PR#: BOC COM 340 TBS Registration: 000073 Bank Number: BOC PPU 020

General Correspondence and Enquiries

Correspondence received from external organizations and individuals including requests for information, complaints, comments and suggestions related to a broad range of policy issues pertaining to the Bank's activities.

The personal information contained in this class normally includes the name and address of the enquirer, however, this form of personal information exists in a fragmented form throughout the subject files and is normally retrievable only if specifics of name, subject and the date of communication are provided.

The retention periods of these classes of personal information are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Mailing Lists

This class contains correspondence and mailing lists which may contain personal information in the form of an individual's name, client number and, his or her home, business or mailing address.

The purpose of this class is to maintain standard lists for the mailing of publications, reports, press releases and other documentation on the Bank's activities and programs.

Paper records are kept for a period of three years, then destroyed. Records on the automated system are updated continuously as required and/or information is kept for two years on the system from the time a client becomes inactive.

Business Development Bank of Canada

Chapter 6

General Information

Background

The Business Development Bank of Canada (BDC), a Crown corporation, was continued from the Federal Business Development Bank by the Business Development Bank of Canada Act which came into force on July 13, 1995. The Federal Business Development Bank was established by the Federal Business Development Bank Act (proclaimed in force on October 2, 1975) to succeed the Industrial Development Bank (IDB), which was formed in 1944.

While the IDB was primarily concerned with the provision of financial assistance, the Federal Business Development Bank was created to promote and assist in the establishment and development of business enterprises in Canada by providing financial assistance, management counselling, management training, information and advice, with particular consideration to the needs of small and medium-sized businesses. The Bank provides small business enterprises with a single source from which both financing and information suited to their unique requirements may be obtained. A network of branches across Canada provide the full range of the Bank's services to small and medium-sized businesses located in each branch territory.

Responsibilities

The Bank is responsible for acting as a complementary lender, providing funds by means of loans and equity financing to small and medium-sized businesses. It often caters to the needs of firms that may be either too small, too far from commercial centres, or too specialized to be able to attract the attention of conventional lenders. Through its Venture Capital Division, the Bank is also responsible for providing equity capital in addition to, or in place of, loans and guarantees.

Legislation

- Business Development Bank of Canada Act

Organization

The Bank has a network of approximately eighty branches across Canada organized into seventeen areas reporting to a Head Office located in Montreal.

Corporate resources located in the field provide guidance to branches with respect to the application of established Bank policy and procedures. They also process financing applications for amounts exceeding branch limits. Each of the seventeen Vice Presidents and Area Managers is responsible for all management services and financial services results in his/her area and for ensuring that the general public has access to the Bank's products and services.

The branches provide financing and management services to small and medium businesses located within their particular territory. Enquiries and applications for financing and managerial support are received by branch personnel and processed in accordance with established policy and procedure.

Furthermore, enquiries and applications may be received through the Business Service Centre located in Head Office.

The various services and departments of the Bank include the following:

Financial Services

♦ Emerging Markets/Venture Capital Division

Responsible for all equity and venture capital financing. Its role is to act as a catalyst in stimulating the formation of risk capital for companies with high growth potential. It ensures that all proposals satisfy Bank policy and are financially viable. This Division assesses, on a continuing basis, the adequacy and suitability of investment policy and procedures and, when necessary, recommends changes. The services of this Division include direct purchase of a minority ownership interest as well as syndication of proposals to other venture capitalists and financial institutions.

♦ Loans Division

Establishes and oversees policies and procedures with respect to the provision of financial assistance to small and medium-sized businesses. In addition, the Division oversees the management of the Bank's loan portfolio for the entire life of all accounts. Most financing is provided in the form of loans for such purposes as purchasing fixed assets, replenishing working capital, refinancing, and financing a change of ownership. Guarantees may be provided to other financial institutions to enable a business to obtain an adequate line of credit.

Head Office Departments

♦ Audit and Inspection Department

Conducts reviews of the Bank's systems of internal control.

♦ Controller's

Responsible for all financial planning, accounting and control in the Bank.

◆ Corporate Development

Responsible for formulating the Bank's strategic, corporate and operating plans, analysis of existing activities and corporate development. It also provides information on economic conditions and the impact of the Bank's activities upon the economy.

◆ Corporate Office

Provides the Bank with the strategic direction required to manage its activities and achieve its mandate and objectives.

◆ Government Relations

Responsible for the coordination of communications between the Bank and the Minister, the government and members of Parliament, and has responsibility for international relations.

◆ Human Resources and Administration

Provides the Bank with corporate-wide human resources management. It is also responsible for official languages, employment equity, payroll services and training services. It also provides overall administration support services including lease administration of the Bank's premises.

◆ Insurance

Responsible for insurance related to loan security and corporate insurance.

◆ Legal Services and Corporate Secretariat

Provides legal advice to the Bank in connection with its specific program activities and support departments. This department is also responsible for the Board of Directors, its Committees, and responses to Parliament.

◆ Loan Portfolio Risk Management

Provides an ongoing assessment of the quality of authorized loans and ensures credit risk is minimized.

◆ Ombudsman's Office

Resolves all customer complaints not solved at other levels.

◆ Public Affairs

This department is responsible for advertising and public relations to promote the role and activities of the Bank.

◆ Systems and Technology

Develops and maintains business systems (manual and computerized) to support the operational functions and management information needs of the Bank.

◆ Treasury

Responsible for funding of corporate cash requirements, monitoring of cash flow, deposit and investment of corporate funds and interest rate forecasts.

Management Services Division

The Management Services Division is responsible for promoting and assisting the establishment and development of small business in Canada by providing management counselling, management training and financial and strategic planning services.

◆ Business Counselling and Planning Services

Counsels business persons on how to engage in small business in Canada through the facilities of the Counselling Assistance to Small Enterprises (CASE) program. Strategic Planning is a service designed to help businesses methodically plan each stage of their development. The Financial Planning service involves the Bank undertaking an analysis of business proposals and completing a report to be used by financial institutions and government agencies to properly assess the entrepreneur's application for funding. The Bank also assists companies in the procedures to become ISO certified.

◆ Business Mentoring

Offers training, counselling and networking opportunities in a dynamic group environment to groups of entrepreneurs over an extended period, usually for up to one year. Programs can be delivered to entrepreneurs in a local setting called "Community Business Initiatives", or customized to meet the needs of specific groups of entrepreneurs, such as manufacturers, women, aboriginals, or exporters. Participants receive instruction and exchange ideas in a variety of management topics.

◆ Business Training Service

Presents a continuing program of small business and management seminars to the general public across Canada. In conjunction with business associations and small businesses, the Service presents management seminars oriented toward specific industries to groups of business people. It also writes, publishes and distributes a series of adult education courses on small business management (owner/manager courses) for provincial and territorial ministries of education. Finally, it organizes and supports workshops, conferences, and clinics for the promotion of good management practices with small businesses. It also writes, publishes and distributes to the public a continuing series of booklets on small business topics.

◆ Marketing

Develops all financial products, and ensure that the Bank's products evolve with the needs of its customers.

◆ Special Initiatives

The Bank also delivers programs on behalf of other government departments to meet the needs of specific entrepreneurial groups. One such program is the administration of the Cultural Industries Development Fund (CIDF) on behalf of Heritage Canada. Through this fund the Bank provides loans and management counselling to firms operating in book and magazine publishing, film and video production, and sound recording. Another such initiative is the administration of the Student Business Loan program on behalf of Human Resources Development Canada. This program encourages full-time students to start-up their own business during the summer months. The Bank assesses applications and provides guarantees of up to $3,000 for loans extended by the commercial lending institutions involved in the program.

Canada Council

Chapter 7

General Information

Background

The Canada Council was created by the Parliament of Canada in 1957 (Canada Council Act, 1957, RSC 1970 c-2, as amended). The mandate of the Canada Council (Section 8(1)) is "to foster and promote the study and enjoyment of, and the production of works in, the arts."

Responsibilities

The general policy objective of the Canada Council is to recognize, foster and promote excellence in the arts. Most of its grants are awarded through an extensive system of competitions judged by juries of practising artists and other independent specialists in the particular disciplines.

In addition to its mandate to foster and promote the arts, the Canada Council has been assigned responsibility for the Canadian Commission for the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) (Subsection 8(2), Order-in-Council PC 1957-831), in conformity with the constitution of UNESCO.

The Council also administers the Killam program of scholarly awards and prizes, financed from a private legacy. The Public Lending Right Commission, which provides payments to Canadian authors for the public use of their works in Canadian libraries, operates under the aegis of the Council.

Legislation

- Canada Council Act

Organization

♦ Canada Council Art Bank

Rents a collection of contemporary Canadian works of art to federal government departments and agencies, public institutions, non-profit organizations and to the private sector. In March 1995, the Canada Council's Strategic Plan announced the Council's intention to terminate its involvement with the Art Bank. Until a decision is made about its future, the Canada Council will continue to administer the rental program.

♦ Dance Section

Responsible for support to professional Canadian dance companies, organizations and associations in ballet, modern and experimental dance. Its programs include the communications fund and grants to professional dance companies, independent choreographers, professional schools, service organizations and independent dance.

♦ Explorations Program

Responsible for project grants which may introduce new approaches to creative expression, cross disciplines or fulfill specific needs in the development of the arts. Grants are provided to individuals, groups or nonprofit organizations for innovative projects, within or outside traditional arts disciplines, which contribute towards an understanding of Canada's cultural past or the development of its cultural future. This program will cease to operate as a separate program section after September 1995.

♦ Media Arts Section

Provides support to independent professional artists for the creation of works using conventional and/or new acoustic and visual technologies and their related media. It administers three production programs: film, video and audio, and computer-integrated media. It also administers a distribution and broadcast program. These programs are concerned with production and diffusion in multiple format media, including computer processing, visual and acoustic imaging and system control (via digital sampling and mastering), applied laser technology and optical storage. In addition to direct production assistance, support is available to non-profit media art organizations through operational, project funds. The Section is the repository of the Canada Council Film Collection.

♦ Music Section

Responsible for support to professional Canadian music companies, organizations and associations. Its programs include grants to orchestras, opera companies, choirs, other music groups and organizations, commissioning of Canadian compositions, aid to sound recording by Canadian producers and companies, and the communication fund.

♦ Theatre Section

Responsible for support to professional theatre companies, organizations and associations. Its programs include grants to theatre companies and the communications fund.

♦ Touring Office

Supports touring by professional Canadian performing artists, and the development of management for Canadian tours and artists and tour coordination and promotion. Its programs include touring grants, apprenticeship program, Concert Canada program, festival program, and cultural exchange.

◆ Visual Arts Section

Responsible for support to professional visual arts institutions and associations. Its programs include aid to artist centres; exhibition and programming assistance to art galleries; Canadian visiting artist program; artists studios in New York, Chalmers fund for the crafts; special project assistance; and the communications fund.

◆ Writing and Publishing Section

Responsible for support to publishing companies, organizations and associations, and for certain programs of support to writers. Its programs include block grants and project grants to book publishers; translation grants; aid to international translation; aid to periodicals; promotion and distribution of Canadian books and periodicals; promotion tours by authors; public readings program; literary prizes and awards; Canada-Scotland writers-in-residence exchange; and grants to national associations of writers, book publishers and periodical publishers.

Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation

Chapter 8

General Information

Background

The Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation (CDIC) was established in 1967 by the Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation Act. The Corporation's primary role is to provide, for the benefit of persons having deposits in a bank, trust or loan company, insurance against the loss of all or part of their deposits to a maximum of $60,000 in the event of the failure of the member institution concerned. The definition of "deposit" may be summarized as moneys received by a member institution which it is obligated to repay on demand, or on a fixed or determinable date that is within five years from the date of the deposit. Deposits not payable in Canada or repayable in foreign currency are not insured. In the furtherance of its main function, the Corporation may, amongst other powers, acquire assets from, or make or guarantee loans or deposits to a member institution for the purpose of averting or reducing a threatened loss to the Corporation.

Responsibilities

The Corporation's primary role is set out above. The Corporation's secondary role includes examining the affairs of member institutions in order to obtain information for deposit insurance purposes (under legislation, the examination of member institutions is the responsibility of the Office of the Superintendent of Financial Institutions); acting as lender of last resort to provide short-term liquidation loans under specified authority; managing the acquired assets of member institutions; and reducing the risk of loss to the Corporation by guaranteeing loans or deposits with a member institution. In addition, the Corporation acts as curator of a bank, or liquidator or receiver of a member institution, and manages, monitors and invests a deposit insurance fund and other funds accumulated from the operations of the Corporation.

Canada Labour Relations Board

Chapter 9

General Information

Background

The original Canada Labour Relations Board (organized in 1948) was composed of members representing both management and labour appointed by the federal government to deal, on a part-time basis, with the orderly resolution of trade union representation disputes under the Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act.

The Canada Labour Relations Board was established in its present form in 1972 by the amended Canada Labour Code (R.S.C. 1970, CL-1 as amended by S.C. 1972, c.18) and became effective March 1, 1973. The Board is a quasi-judicial body with statutory and regulatory powers pertaining to the administration of Part I of the Canada Labour Code dealing with industrial relations. The members of the Board are non-representational full-time appointees with experience and knowledge of industrial relations and labour law. As members of a non-partisan board they are prohibited from holding any other remunerated office or employment. In general, Part I of the Canada Labour Code charges the Board with a two-fold responsibility: that of granting, modifying and terminating bargaining rights, and that of resolving, through mediation or adjudication, complaints of unfair labour practice concerning violations of the Code by trade unions or employers.

Under Part II of the Code, the Board must, upon referral of a safety officer's decision, inquire into the circumstances giving rise to the decision and may confirm the decision or give any direction which the safety officer is entitled to give. The Board also rules on complaints by employees that they have been discriminated against or punished for exercising their rights in relation to safety.

Responsibilities

The Board's responsibility is set out above. On finding a violation of the Code, the Board is empowered to order reinstatement and compensation where appropriate. It is also empowered, upon application, to order employees to return to work in cases of illegal work stoppages and to attempt to resolve or adjudicate, where necessary, various other types of disputes that may arise under Part I of the Code.

Legislation

- Canada Labour Code (Parts I and II)
- Canada Labour Relations Board Regulations, 1978, SOR 78-499

Organization

The Board has a single program consisting of the administration and interpretation of certain sections of Part I and Part II of the Canada Labour Code. It is supported in this activity by investigation and mediation staff in offices located in Dartmouth, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver, as well as at its headquarters in Ottawa.

Personal Information Banks

Religious Objections

Description: This bank contains applications by individuals who, because of religious beliefs, object to joining a trade union or to paying regular union dues to a trade union. The Board may order that a provision in a collective agreement requiring membership in a trade union or the payment of union dues as a condition of employment, not be applied to such employees. Class of Individuals: Individuals who work for companies under federal jurisdiction, as set out in the Canada Labour Code. Purpose: Personal information is obtained solely for the purpose of determining whether an employee's objections to membership in a trade union are based on true religious convictions. Consistent Uses: Religious objections may occasionally require a public hearing to determine complex issues which could affect the Board's decision regarding the objections. Such a hearing may result in the publication of a written judgement containing the facts surrounding the application and the Board's reasons for granting, or rejecting, the application. Retention and Disposal Standards: Simple cases (i.e., those that are withdrawn or settled without the holding of a public hearing) are kept for two years and then destroyed. Other cases are kept by the Board for 10 years, and then transferred to the National Archives of Canada for selective retention. Related to PR#: CLR OPS 030 TBS Registration: 002331 Bank Number: CLR PPU 015

Termination of Bargaining Rights

Description: This bank contains case files concerning applications for revocation of certifications which grant bargaining agents (unions) the right to represent employees in collective bargaining with employers in the federal jurisdiction. Class of Individuals: Individuals who work for companies under federal jurisdiction, as set out in the Canada Labour Code. Purpose: Personal information is obtained solely for the purpose of determining whether an individual is a member of the bargaining unit and therefore entitled to express support for or against his or her bargaining agent. Consistent Uses: Applications for revocation may occasionally require a public hearing in order to determine complex issues which could affect the Board's decision and may result in the publication of a written judgement which will contain the facts surrounding the application and the Board's reasons for granting or rejecting it. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files are kept for five years for successful applications and three years for unsuccessful applications, then transferred to the National Archives of Canada for selective retention. Cases which are withdrawn are destroyed after two years. PAC Number: 84-015 Related to PR#: CLR OPS 005 TBS Registration: 000102 Bank Number: CLR PPU 010

Violations of the Canada Labour Code

Description: This bank contains case files concerning complaints by individuals that a section, or sections, of the Canada Labour Code, Parts I and II have been violated by their employer, their union, or another individual. Files may contain information on grievances, work records, or letters from unions or employers containing opinions or comments about individuals. Class of Individuals: Individuals who work for companies under federal jurisdiction, as set out in the Canada Labour Code. Purpose: Information about individuals is obtained solely for the purpose of bringing about a settlement to the dispute or, failing settlement, for the purpose of adjudication by the Board on the merits of the complaint. Consistent Uses: Information contained in case files, along with testimony given at public hearings may be published in written judgements which set out the Board's reasons for rejecting or upholding a complaint. Personal information is used solely for the purpose of settling or deciding on the merits of each case and is published solely for the purpose of explaining the Board's reasons for its decision and its policy in like cases.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Case files are kept for five years if successful and three years if unsuccessful, and are then transferred to the National Archives of Canada for selective retention. Settled cases are kept for the minimum two years required and then destroyed.

PAC Number: 84-015 Related to PR#: CLR OPS 010 TBS Registration: 000101 Bank Number: CLR PPU 005

Other Personal Information Banks

Other case files and subject files held by operational services may contain personal information such as names of individuals, addresses, position titles, job descriptions, salaries, and membership in a trade union. The information is not retrievable by personal identifiers and is collected solely for the purpose of administering the Canada Labour Code. All files are organized by file number and are maintained by operational services at headquarters in Ottawa. Regional offices retain duplicate files for the purposes of investigation until the settlement of a case. Some personal information such as job descriptions and salaries may be published in written judgements where it is pertinent to the background of a case in which the Canada Labour Relations Board decides its decision requires formal elaboration. Such information is usually the result of testimony given at public hearings.

Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation

Chapter 11

General Information

Background

Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation (CMHC) was incorporated as a Crown corporation in January, 1946, by an Act of Parliament. CMHC has authority to act for the Government of Canada in all matters prescribed under the Housing Acts, principally the National Housing Act (NHA). CMHC reports to Parliament through a designated Minister. Its affairs are managed by a board of directors consisting of the chairman of the board, the President, five members from the public at large and two members from the public service, all appointed by the Governor-in-Council.

Responsibilities

The functions of CMHC, as stated in the National Housing Act, are to promote the construction of new houses, the repair and modernization of existing housing, and the improvement of housing and living conditions. Some of these programs have been used to further government objectives such as economic growth, job creation and energy conservation. CMHC activities are grouped into four components: Government Programs, Administered Funds, Asset Administration and Services to Others.

Legislation

- Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation Act
- Financial Administration Act
- National Housing Act and Regulations

Organization

◆ Finance, Corporate Services and Treasury Sector

This sector is responsible for the policies, procedures, standards and administration of the entire sphere of the business systems required to support the operational needs of the Corporation and financial processes. It includes Financial Planning, Financial Services, Administration, Information Technology, Corporate Security and Emergency Preparedness, Capital Markets, Treasury Operations and Pension Fund.

◆ Human Resources and Organizational Directorate

This directorate is responsible for developing and maintaining policies and procedures as well as providing advice and support within the entire sphere of human resources management. It includes Human Resources

Development and Organizational Effectiveness, Employee Relations, Compensation and Occupational Health and Safety and HR Advisory and Coordination Services.

◆ Insurance, Land and Asset Administration Sector

This sector consists of Insurance Products Division, Mortgage Insurance Operations Centre, Mortgage-Backed Securities Centre, Insurance Services and Risk Management, Professional Services and Standards and Land Management Division. This sector is responsible for the operation of the CMHC mortgage insurance program, the Mortgage-Backed Securities Program, for the disposal of all categories of real estate assets and for providing technical support through consultation and advisory services.

◆ Operations Audit Division

Performs comprehensive audits of functions, programs, systems and Federal/Provincial Agreements. In addition, conducts special audits involving non-profit and co-op sponsors, real estate fee managers and approved lenders.

◆ Policy, Research and Communications Sector

Canada-Nova Scotia Offshore Petroleum Board

Chapter 13

General Information

Background

The Canada-Nova Scotia Offshore Petroleum Board was established in 1990 as a joint federal-provincial agency pursuant to the federal Canada-Nova Scotia Offshore Petroleum Resources Accord Implementation Act and the provincial Canada-Nova Scotia Offshore Petroleum Resources Accord Implementation (Nova Scotia) Act. These Acts brought into law the principles established in a 1986 agreement between the federal government and Nova Scotia relating to offshore petroleum resources. The Board has offices in Halifax and Dartmouth, Nova Scotia.

Responsibilities

The Board's principle responsibilities include:

- 1) enhancement of safe working conditions for offshore petroleum activities.
- 2) protection of the environment during offshore petroleum activities.
- 3) management of offshore petroleum resources to ensure that operators provide for maximum economic recovery and avoid waste.
- 4) review of industrial benefits matters relating to petroleum activities offshore Nova Scotia so as to ensure that Canadians, with first consideration given to Nova Scotians, have a full and fair opportunity to participate on a competitive basis in the supply of goods and services to be used in any offshore petroleum activities.
- 5) issuance, in a controlled and fair manner, of licenses required to carry out petroleum exploration and development activities offshore Nova Scotia. The Board also maintains a public registry of licenses, curates samples and geological and geophysical information (which is made available to the public following a statutory confidentiality period), and compiles and develops information on petroleum resources within the Nova Scotia Offshore area.
- 6) collection, maintenance and distribution of offshore petroleum information to the petroleum industry, governments and the public in general.

Legislation

- Canada-Nova Scotia Offshore Petroleum Resources Accord Implementation (Nova Scotia) Act, S.N.S. 1987, c. 3.
- Canada-Nova Scotia Offshore Petroleum Resources Accord Implementation Act, S.C. 1988, c. 28.

Organization

The Board consists of five members who are appointed for fixed terms of office (The Board currently has three Board members with additional appointments pending). The Government of Canada and the Government of Nova Scotia each appoint two members, one of whom may be a civil servant in each case. The Chairman is jointly appointed by both governments. The Chairman also acts on a full time basis as Chief Executive Officer and is responsible for a staff of fourteen people.

◆ Offshore Petroleum Resources:

This Department is responsible for assessing discovered petroleum resources and evaluating the undiscovered petroleum resource potential of the Nova Scotia offshore area; recommending lands for disposition through calls for bids (including the terms and conditions of calls for bids and licenses); administering licenses under which oil and gas rights are held and maintaining a public registry of such licenses; evaluating the results of geological and geophysical surveys and exploratory and development drilling; determining areas to be designated as significant discoveries or commercial discoveries; archiving geological, geophysical and well history reports; and curating cuttings, cores and fluid samples.

◆ Offshore Operations:

This Department is responsible for providing recommendations regarding the approval of plans, programs and specific activities related to exploration, development or production; monitoring any conditions of approval; conducting audits and inspections related to procedures, training and equipment; certifying divers and other diving personnel; reviewing operators' emergency response plans; and monitoring and providing status reports on offshore petroleum activities. It is also responsible for conserving oil and gas resources; assessing the productive capacities of wells; monitoring field performance and conducting reservoir performance studies; and administering regulations concerning production schemes, production rate limitations and the acquisition of reservoir data.

◆ Environmental Affairs:

This Department assesses the environmental effects of offshore operations as well as risks to offshore operations arising from the physical environment. It administers and advises on environmental protection regulations and guidelines, establishes and monitors compliance with physical environment and effluent treatment requirements, coordinates with other environmental agencies, and reviews operators' environmental emergency contingency plans.

♦ Administration, Industrial Benefits and Legal:

This Department provides administrative, financial, human resources and legal services to the Board. The Department is responsible for the Board's external communications, including publications and public relations. The Department also administers statutory requirements concerning employment and industrial benefits plans.

Canada Ports Corporation

Chapter 14

General Information

Background

Canada Ports Corporation was established in 1983 pursuant to the Canada Ports Corporation Act. This Act amended the National Harbours Board Act of 1936, the Government Harbours and Piers Act and the 1964 Harbour Commission Act. Reporting to Parliament through the Minister of Transport, Canada Ports Corporation is a Schedule III, Part II Crown Corporation under the Financial Administration Act.

Since 1983, pursuant to the Canada Ports Corporation Act, the ports of St. John's, Halifax, Saint John, Quebec, Montreal, Vancouver, and Prince Rupert have met the criteria of national and regional significance and financial viability and have been established as local port corporations. These too are Schedule III, Part II Crown Corporations.

Divisional ports, which are directly administered by the Canada Ports Corporation, are located in Belledune, New Brunswick; Saguenay, Baie des Ha! Ha!, Sept-Îles and Trois-Rivières, Quebec; Prescott and Port Colborne, Ontario; and, Churchill, Manitoba.

Responsibilities

Canada Ports Corporation is responsible for administering its ports under a common objective and ensuring that they meet the federal government's responsibility for national ports and the optimum deployment of resources. Canada Ports Corporation shares, with other marine components, the broad objective of attending to the development and operation of a safe and efficient national marine transportation system.

Canada Ports Corporation is also responsible for ensuring that ongoing maintenance, upgrading and major expansions to port facilities and infrastructure will provide enhanced services to port users, on a competitive and cost-effective basis, both for domestic and international customers.

Legislation

- Canada Ports Corporation Act, R.S.C. 1985, chapter C-9
- Canada Ports Corporation Administrative By-law, P.C. 1983-1653, 2 June 1983
- National Harbours Board Harbour Dues Tariff By-law, C.R.C. Vol. XII, chapter 1063 and as amended thereafter

- National Harbours Board Operating By-law, C.R.C., Vol. XII, chapter 1064
- National Harbours Board Pacific Harbour Dues Tariff By-law, C.R.C., Vol. XII, chapter 1082 and as amended thereafter
- Tenders and Works Contracts By-law, P.C. 1983-747, 11 March 1983

Organization

♦ President and Chief Executive Officer

The President and Chief Executive Officer of the Canada Ports Corporation, who is the Head of the Institution for the purposes of the Access to Information Act, exercises all the powers and responsibilities pertaining to this function under the Act in question.

♦ Corporate Services

This department is responsible for the formulation, development and implementation of the Canada Ports Corporation's long-and short-term strategies for the assessment of port and corporate projects; for the provision of information services to all ports and national office departments, including library services; for the provision of engineering services; and for the provision of all periodic management information reports pertaining to macro-economic, trade and transportation issues and the financial performance of the port system.

This department is also responsible for the management of financial activities by implementing policies and procedures for financial planning, analysis, accounting, reporting, control and Treasury and by directing preparation of Capital and Operating budgets and government agency submissions seeking authority to expense funds; for the management of personnel and industrial relations plans, policies and activities; and for the management of procurement services, acquisition and telecommunications.

♦ Legal Services/Realty

This department is a service centre for the provision of an extensive range of expert legal services and advice, as well as Insurance and land related services, to the Board of Directors of the Corporation, National Office, divisional Ports and some of the local port corporations.

Canada Post Corporation

Chapter 15

NOTE: THIS INSTITUTION IS NOT SUBJECT TO THE ACCESS TO INFORMATION ACT.

Background

Canada Post is a federal Crown corporation, established by the Canada Post Corporation Act on October 16, 1981. It collects, processes and delivers mail across Canada, and between Canada and more than 200 postal administrations around the globe. The Corporation delivers 11 billion messages and parcels annually to over 12 million addresses in rural and urban Canada. Products and services are marketed through a network of almost 19,000 retail points of access, more than 75% of which are operated by private businesses.

Canada Post, with over 53,000 full and part-time employees, has the third largest work force in Canada outside of government and, with approximately $4 billion in annual revenue, is a large and important part of the transportation and communications sectors of the Canadian economy.

In the course of doing business, Canada Post maintains and uses records of employees, contractors, customers and others. The Corporation places a high value on the protection and propriety of such personal information: employee access to their records and customer confidentiality are longstanding traditions.

Description: This bank contains identification card applications, temporary pass applications, photographs, visitor registers and occasional incident reports, as well as related correspondence. Limited information exists in automated form. The Card Access/Alarm System may also produce reports for incident investigation purposes and statistical analysis. Individuals seeking access to this bank should specify employment location and dates.

Class of Individuals: Canada Post employees and contractors who have authorized access to Corporation facilities. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to control access to certain facilities, to provide for the security of Canada Post employees and property and anything in the course of post. Consistent Uses: The records are used to issue and cancel identification cards or building passes, and to maintain building security. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after expiry of the cards and then destroyed. TBS Registration: 001340 Bank Number: CPC PPU 080

Investigative Body Requests — Public

Description: This bank contains requests made by investigative bodies, as well as records of disclosure (if the request is granted), occasional legal opinions and related material. Individuals seeking access to this bank should provide their full name and address. Class of Individuals: Individuals who are the subject of, or party to, lawful investigations. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to ensure that requests by law enforcement agencies for personal information held by Canada Post are properly authorized. Consistent Uses: The records are used to monitor information requested and/or provided to law enforcement agencies, and to ensure compliance with the Privacy Act, the Canada Post Corporation Act and corporate policy. The records may be viewed by the Privacy Commissioner or delegate, when investigating complaints. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records in this bank are retained for two years after the year of their last administrative use (which is normally the decision to grant or refuse the request, or the processing of subsequent requests or complaints relating to the original request), and are then destroyed. TBS Registration: 001342 Bank Number: CPC PPU 090

Legal Affairs

Description: This bank contains information relating to potential and actual claims by or against the Canada Post Corporation, contracts and agreements, arbitrations, memoranda, opinions and advice and other legal matters involving the Corporation. Note that copies of opinions and other legal documents may also be stored in other personal information banks. Class of Individuals: Individuals involved in legal matters. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide a record of legal opinions and advice to, as well as representation on behalf of, the Corporation. Consistent Uses: The records are used to provide legal opinions and advice to the Corporation and to represent the Corporation and protect its interests. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for ten years after the year of termination of the contract or disposal of the property and then destroyed. Claims by or against the Corporation, labour arbitrations and related legal matters are retained for twenty-one years after the year of settlement. Memoranda (citing authority), opinions and advice are retained permanently. TBS Registration: 002076 Bank Number: CPC PPU 110

Postal Related Crimes/Offenses

Description: This bank contains information gathered during investigations and contains details of the crime(s) committed. For example, information on employees involves such offenses as theft of mail or embezzlement. Information on members of the general public involves national or international crimes, burglary of post offices and street box equipment, forgery of money orders, theft of mail, the illegal transportation of explosives and other dangerous substances and mail vehicle robberies. In addition, intelligence is collected regarding individuals or firms suspected of using the mails for an illegal purpose. Class of Individuals: Canada Post employees, contractors and members of the general public who are suspected or known to be involved in the above-noted postal related crimes/offenses as defined by the Canada Post Corporation Act and Regulations, as well as Criminal Code offenses involving the mail. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to help solve and reduce postal related crimes and offences and to provide for the security of the officers and employees of the Corporation, the property of the Corporation, and anything in the course of post. Consistent Uses: The records are used to support investigative and intelligence activities designed to solve or reduce crimes against Canada Post Corporation. Certain information may be shared with the security branches of other postal administrations, other federal investigative bodies, police agencies and, where warranted, with the Department of Justice for possible prosecution. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for ten years after completion of the investigation or judicial or quasi-judicial proceedings and then destroyed. Records of proceedings dealt with under subsection 41 of the Canada Post Corporation Act, when a prohibitory order has been issued, are retained for three years after the year the order ceases to have effect and are then transferred to National Archives of Canada. If the records are judged by the National Archivist to be of historical/archival value, they are retained permanently.

Reliability Checks

Description: This bank contains criminal record name checks and, if applicable, fingerprints, criminal records, recommendations, decisions, appeals and related correspondence. Limited information may exist in automated form as a data element of the Human Resource Information System (CPC PPE 804). Individuals seeking access to this bank should specify employment location and dates. Class of Individuals: Prospective and existing Canada Post employees and contractors who do not have security clearances, but who require reliability checks because of their ready access to mail, cash and other valuable assets. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to help ensure the security of Canada Post employees and property and anything in the course of post.

Consistent Uses: The records are used to help determine an individual's reliability. Identifying information is disclosed to the RCMP in order to determine whether individuals have criminal records. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for five years after last administrative use (which is usually upon transfer, promotion or termination of employment), and then destroyed. If notified that a pardon has been granted, the criminal records in questions are destroyed immediately. PAC Number: 88-007 TBS Registration: 001339 Bank Number: CPC PPU 075

Security Clearances

Description: This bank contains such records as personal history forms, criminal record name checks and, if applicable, fingerprints, criminal records, summaries of RCMP and Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) investigations, adverse findings, appeals, updates, cancellations, pardons and related correspondence. Limited information may exist in automated form, as data elements of the Human Resource Information System (CPC PPE 804). Data elements include name and clearance level granted versus level required for the position and whether it is due for renewal. Individuals seeking access to this bank should specify employment location and dates. Class of Individuals: Canada Post employees and contractors who occupy or are about to occupy positions involving access to financial and other assets and sensitive information and systems. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to help determine the suitability of employees and contractors being considered for or in security-risk positions. Consistent Uses: The records are used to determine the level of security clearance, and to support decisions on transfers, promotions and termination of employment. Monthly computer printouts are used to ensure the security clearance level of individuals is adequate for the positions they occupy. A notation of level of clearance may be attached to the Employee Personal File (CPC PPE 802).

Details of RCMP and CSIS investigations that may have taken place are stored in those agencies' security clearance banks. Retention and Disposal Standards: Paper records are retained for two years after termination of employment or contract and then destroyed. If notified that a pardon has been granted, the criminal records in question are destroyed immediately. TBS Registration: 001338 Bank Number: CPC PPU 070

(Note that payment records also are stored in Accounts Payable, CPC PPU 060.) Class of Individuals: Existing and recently terminated members of Canada Post's board of directors. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the nomination and remuneration of members of the board of directors. Consistent Uses: The records in this bank assist in the preparation of appointments to the board and in the administration of the affairs, business and activities of the board; they are also used with respect to payments and for other purposes pertaining to the board and its individual members. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for seven years after the fiscal year during which the director ceases to hold office and then destroyed. PAC Number: 88-007 TBS Registration: 002007 Bank Number: CPC PPU 105

◆ Customer Service

Corporate Correspondence

Description: This bank contains letters addressed or referred to the Minister, Chairman, President, and other executives of Canada Post Corporation, letters addressed to divisional Customer Service offices in the divisions, background material compiled in the preparation of responses and the responses. Certain information, such as the incoming letter, draft replies and an index, exists in automated form in the Corporate Correspondence System. Individuals seeking access to this bank should specify the family name and postal code used in the previous enquiry. (Note that stamp suggestions may also be stored in Designer References, CPC PPU 025.) Class of Individuals: Customers, employees, Members of Parliament, other elected officials and the general public. The records may contain personal information on other individuals, where they are the subject of the enquiry (e.g. regarding Canada Post Corporation employees and contractors). Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the preparation of responses to Divisional, Ministerial, Chairman, Presidential, and general Corporate enquiries pertaining to the operations and administration of Canada Post Corporation. Consistent Uses: The records are used to support the correspondence system; to monitor the preparation of responses; for reference purposes when subsequent or similar enquiries are received; for subsequent mailings, when new developments warrant a follow-up letter to correspondents who have expressed an interest in particular subjects; and, to identify trends or patterns. Retention and Disposal Standards: Draft replies stored in automated form are deleted when the correspondence is signed. Paper records and the automated index are retained for seven years after the year of the response and then destroyed and deleted, respectively. Disposal of records retained in the subject files of organizational units drafting responses is governed by the retention schedules for those files. PAC Number: 88-007 TBS Registration: 002075 Bank Number: CPC PPU 030

Customer/Claims Service

Description: This bank contains such records as enquiries, complaints or claims, declarations (in the case of claims) and information relating to their processing. Certain information exists in automated form in the Customer Claims Information System (CCIS) and the Enquiry Management Information System (EMIS). Data elements include the names and addresses of the sender and addressee, the nature of the shortcoming (delay, loss, damage), the type and value of the item, any special services purchased (registry), dates of mailing and claim, insured amount, result of investigation and amount paid. Individuals seeking access to this bank should specify the date and subject matter of their previous enquiry, as well as the names and addresses of the sender and addressee on the article. Class of Individuals: Customers who have submitted enquiries or complaints to Customer Service regarding delayed, lost or damaged mail; or who have applied for indemnification. (Note that payment records also are stored in Accounts Payable, CPC PPU 060; that enquiries and complaints also are processed through the Corporate Correspondence system, CPC PPU 030; and that Risk Management Claims, CPC PPU 050, also includes claims records.) Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the preparation of responses to customer enquiries, as well as the resolution of complaints and claims regarding delayed, lost or damaged mail. Consistent Uses: The records are used to analyze and resolve complaints and claims regarding delayed, lost or damaged mail; to respond to enquiries about mail services, regulations and rates; for audit and market research purposes; and to identify trends or patterns. Certain information may be disclosed to Transport Canada, Revenue Canada (Customs and Excise), foreign postal authorities, law enforcement agencies and others, where necessary, to resolve the claim or enquiry. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after last administrative use (which is normally the issue of a response to an enquirer or indemnification), and then destroyed. Disposal of payment records stored in Accounts Payable is governed by the retention schedule for that bank. PAC Number: 88-007 TBS Registration: 001331 Bank Number: CPC PPU 100

◆ Finance

Accounts Payable

Description: This bank contains such records as claims, authorizations, expense reports, receipts, cheque requisitions, advances, correspondence and other supporting documents relating to expenses being reimbursed, fees being paid, claims being settled and other payments. Records of transactions also exist in automated form in the Accounts Payable System.

Individuals seeking access to this bank should specify whether they are an employee, contractor or claimant and provide details of the payment such as location, type and dates. Class of Individuals: Canada Post employees claiming travel and hospitality expenses, relocation expenses, education course fees, isolation allowances and membership fees, or receiving rewards, ex gratia and other sundry payments; to suppliers of goods and services provided to the Corporation, including stamp designers and members of the Board of Directors; and to members of the general public, indemnified for claims made against the Corporation. (see Canada Post's contract and claims personal information banks for details). Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the Accounts Payable function, which is to make non-payroll payments in accordance with authorizations.

Consistent Uses: The records are used to substantiate and issue cheques for the above-noted expenses, fees, claims and other payments; and for planning, budgeting and audit purposes. Limited information is disclosed to Supply and Services Canada, to facilitate cheque issue.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for six fiscal years following the fiscal year during which the expenses were incurred. PAC Number: 88-007 TBS Registration: 001337 Bank Number: CPC PPU 060

Description: Contains Post Office Savings Bank (1868-1969) unclaimed account information. Account holders wishing to confirm if funds remain on deposit in their name must forward a written request together with appropriate documentation, preferably the account passbook, which identifies the assigned account number. Legal authority is required by those acting on behalf of an account holder or an estate. Class of Individuals: Individuals having funds on deposit with Canada Post, either currently or within the past 15 years. Purpose: To support administration of the remaining 56,600 accounts currently outstanding in the Post Office Savings Bank, the value of which is 2.6 million dollars. Consistent Uses: Records of the Post Office Savings Bank are accessed monthly to facilitate the confirmation and withdrawal of funds by valid account holders or their legal representatives. Accounts having a balance of less than $25.00 and no activity in relation thereto for a period of 30 years are transferred to the credit of the Receiver General for Canada. (Note that payment records are also stored in accounts payable, CPC PPU 060 and by Money Order Services.) Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for a period of 15 years after the year an account is closed, whether by withdrawal or through transfer to the Receiver General for Canada. PAC Number: 88-007 TBS Registration: 001336 Bank Number: CPC PPU 055

Risk Management Claims

Description: This bank contains records regarding claims for damages involving property, liability and automobile accidents, legal opinions, settlement transactions and other correspondence related to motor vehicle and other accidents involving third parties. The records contain information on the parties involved, their insurers (if applicable) and the nature of the injury or loss (e.g., lost employment or salary). The records also concern losses due to fire and such crimes as robbery, break and enter, and vandalism. Limited information exists in automated form in the Risk Management Information System. Data elements include the names of the employee and claimant, the type of loss and settlement cost. Note that payment records are also stored in Accounts Payable, CPC PPU 060, that vehicle driver records (including records of accidents not involving third-party claims) are stored in Automotive Services (CPC PPE 825); that workers' compensation board claims are stored in Worker's Compensation Board Claims (CPC PPE 845); and that claims involving delayed, lost or damaged mail are stored in Customer Service (CPC PPU 030).

Individuals seeking access to this bank should specify details such as incident location and date. Class of Individuals: Canada Post employees involved in claims, such as drivers of Corporate vehicles and letter carriers, as well as on third parties making claims or from whom the Corporation is seeking damages. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the resolution of Corporation and third-party claims. Consistent Uses: Records are used to determine liability for motor vehicle, fire and other accidents involving third parties; to approve damage settlements, such as payments by and to the Corporation (as postal vehicles are insured, claims are handled by outside adjusters); to support claims by Canada Post against insurance policies in force; and to facilitate loss control and other measures to prevent recurrences. Note that certain information may be provided to insurance companies, lawyers acting on behalf of either party and the police, to facilitate resolution of the claim. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for six years after the fiscal year during which the claim by or against the Corporation is settled, unless a minor was involved, in which case the records are retained for six fiscal years after the minor's age of majority (varies from province to province). PAC Number: 88-007 TBS Registration: 001335 Bank Number: CPC PPU 050

◆ Human Resources

Crown Debt Requests

Description: This bank contains requests from and responses to such federal institutions as Revenue Canada and Employment and Immigration, seeking to locate individuals owing Crown debts (e.g., overdue income tax, unemployment insurance overpayments, customs duties, defaulted student loans) or to whom Crown payments are due. This bank also contains the Social Insurance Number, which is provided, unsolicited, by the federal institutions. Class of Individuals: Individuals owing Crown debts, or to whom Crown payments are due, who are the subject of an inquiry. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to ensure Canada Post can properly account for disclosures of this sort. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after the year of response and then destroyed. TBS Registration: 002157 Bank Number: CPC PPU 120

Human Rights

Description: This bank contains confidential letters of complaint and interview notes with complainants, those alleged to have harassed or discriminated against the complainant and witness statements, as well as investigation and analysis reports and records of decisions taken. Background information varies with the complaint, but could include grievances, medical reports, personal appraisals and correspondence. Individuals seeking access to this bank should specify the name of the complainant and the location and date of the incident. Class of Individuals: Individuals submitting discrimination complaints and individuals alleged to have harassed or discriminated against complainants. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the resolution of allegations of discrimination based on prescribed grounds set out in the Canadian Human Rights Act, and allegations of personal harassment in the workplace.

Consistent Uses: The records are used to help determine whether or not harassment or discrimination has occurred (note that records of complaints are not stored on the complainant's Employee Personal File, CPC PPE 802); and to recommend and support management decisions on the transfer and discipline of employees or other corrective action, e.g., when the source of the complaint is a Canada Post policy or procedure. Individuals found to have harassed or discriminated may have a disciplinary notice to that effect placed on their Employee Personal File. Information may be disclosed in confidence to relevant Corporation officials and to the Canadian Human Rights Commission to facilitate resolution of the complaint. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after the fiscal year of the last administrative use, which is usually resolution of the complaint. Individuals seeking access to this bank should specify the name of the complainant and the location and date of the incident. TBS Registration: 001761 Bank Number: CPC PPU 096

Official Languages Complaints

Description: This bank contains records documenting the nature, extent, scope and location of official languages complaints, as well as the results of complaint investigations and resolution. Note that the identity of complainants is protected under section 60 of the Official Languages Act throughout the investigation process. Therefore, unless complainants agree to reveal their identity or complaints are directly received by CPC, records are anonymous in nature. Class of Individuals: Individuals or groups who file complaints either directly with CPC or with the Commissioner of Official Languages (excluding official languages issues handled through Customer Service). Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the investigation and resolution of official languages complaints submitted by individuals or groups to the Commissioner of Official Languages or CPC and to retain an audit trail of actions taken. Consistent Uses: The records are used to report to external agencies responsible for the administration of the Official Languages Act and related regulations. They may also be disclosed to the Federal Court or other authorized third parties to facilitate the resolution of complaints, grievances or court action. Retention and Disposal Standards: Under development. TBS Registration: 003737 Bank Number: CPC PPU 125

Parking

Description: This bank contains permit applications for parking, and related correspondence about parking of motor vehicles on property owned or leased by Canada Post. Records of transactions also exist in automated form. Individual seeking access to this bank should specify employment location and dates. Class of Individuals: Canada Post employees and contractors who have applied for or received CPC parking permits.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the control of parking at certain Canada Post facilities.

Consistent Uses: The records are used to control the issue and revocation of parking permits and the prosecution of parking violators (by the RCMP). The records may also be used to help coordinate car pools. Note that certain records are beyond CPC control as many employees have personal contracts with private parking lot operators. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after the fiscal year in which the permit expired and then destroyed. TBS Registration: 001334 Bank Number: CPC PPU 045

Privacy Act Requests — Complaints

Description: This bank contains the request forms submitted by individuals seeking access to their files, the replies to such requests and information related to their processing, including exempt material and legal opinions. It also includes records of complaints to the Privacy Commissioner of Canada and their resolution, and exceptional third-party requests referred to privacy coordination staff for advice or decision. This bank also contains the Social Insurance Number of some applicants, only because the old Treasury Board request forms used by applicants contained a SIN field. Individuals seeking access to this bank should specify the approximate date(s) of the request(s) concerned. Class of Individuals: Canada Post employees, contractors and customers who have submitted formal access, correction or notation requests under the Privacy Act to the Corporate Privacy Coordinator or complaints to the Privacy Commissioner; or who are the subject of exceptional third-party requests. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the processing of requests and complaints submitted by individuals under the Privacy Act, and to retain an audit trail of actions taken.

Consistent Uses: The records are used to process access, correction and notation requests, to respond to Privacy Commission complaints, and to report annually to Parliament on their disposition. Annotations regarding exemptions, corrections and disclosures to third parties may be attached to the records requested. Records may be disclosed to the Privacy Commissioner and to the Federal Court, to facilitate the resolution of complaints or court actions. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after the year of last administrative use (which is normally the provision of records requested under the Privacy Act, the processing of correction or notation requests or the resolution of complaints), and then destroyed. TBS Registration: 001344 Bank Number: CPC PPU 115

Staffing and Employment

Description: This bank contains such records as solicited and unsolicited job applications, acknowledgement of receipt letters, staffing action requests, job descriptions, salary ranges, selection profiles, competition posters, transfer requests, seniority, surplus, lay-off, re-call and eligibility lists, human resources inventory printouts, résumés of work experience and education, reference letters and checks, official languages knowledge examination papers, tests and results, lists of candidates, interview notes and rating board assessments, eligibility lists, offers of employment, notices to candidates of right to appeal, other appeal documents and related correspondence. This bank also contains the Social Insurance Number which will continue to be used as an employee identifier until such time as it can be replaced by a CPC employee numbering system. Individuals seeking access to this bank should specify the competition number and date, if applicable, as well as position title and location. Class of Individuals: Individuals who apply for or are hired to fill temporary and permanent positions with Canada Post Corporation.

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support internal staffing and external recruitment activities. Consistent Uses: Job applications are screened when vacancies arise. Staffing records are used to provide impartial information to match new and vacant positions to the most qualified candidates (notations of staffing decisions may be stored in the Employee Personal File, CPC PPE 802; in Payroll and Attendance, CPC PPE 815; and in the Human Resource Information System, CPC PPE 804); to assist in succession planning and career development; to conduct reference checks, provide feedback to candidates regarding their applications and job interviews; and to process complaints, appeals and grievances concerning appointments and promotions (see Grievances, CPC PPE 813). Limited personal information regarding seniority, surplus and layoffs may be posted, as well as provided to collective bargaining agents. Personal information about successful candidates may be disclosed to unsuccessful candidates under strict conditions of confidentiality, to better explain decisions taken. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after last administrative use (which is usually the expiration of the appeal period for competitions), and then destroyed. Layoff/transfer lists are updated continuously and destroyed when superseded. PAC Number: 88-007 TBS Registration: 001343 Bank Number: CPC PPU 095

♦ Mail Operations

Delivery Control Systems

Description: This bank contains delivery records for signature services (Registered and Security Registered, Cash on Delivery, Insured Mail with Proof of Delivery, Priority Courier); change of address notifications/hold mail request forms; directories or lists of customers used to ensure the accurate delivery of mail and the provision of related services (e.g., Community Mailbox, Group Mailbox and Rural Mailbox Delivery and Electronic Mail) and related correspondence. These records contain such information on customers as name, fees paid, present address, previous address, effective dates, signature and proof of identity (when needed in picking up mail and when filing a change of address notification). Limited account information exists in automated form in the Priority Courier Track and Trace and Electronic Mail systems. Class of Individuals: Customers who subscribe to, or receive, postal signature services, submit a redirection/hold mail application or reside in areas requiring name/address lists to effect postal delivery. Purpose: The records are used to support the provision of postal services, including signature mail services; to control the redirection or holding of mail; to ensure accurate mail delivery where delivery service has changed or is difficult; to facilitate the reconciliation and audit of accounts; and to respond to inquiries or claims (see also Customer Service, CPC PPU 030). Electronic name and address lists and related information received from volume mailers are used in creating and addressing Lettermail Plus and Admail Plus items for subsequent delivery. Consistent Uses: Redirection records are also used to correct the mailing lists of large volume mailers where such mailers are using a previous or incorrect address. Change of address notifications are automated for the purpose of producing new address labels. They are also used to update the System for Mail Address Redirection Techniques (SMART). Address information is also disclosed to government institutions under certain circumstances in order to facilitate the collection of Crown debts or the making of Crown payments (see CPC PPU 120 and CPC PPU 090). Retention and Disposal Standards: Signature service records are retained for a maximum of two years after the year of delivery and are then destroyed, with the exception of certain financial records, which are retained for seven years. As a convenience to customers, Electronic Mail data are retained under strict security for six months and are then deleted. Change of address/hold mail records are retained for six months after the termination of service and are then destroyed. Directories and lists are updated continuously and destroyed when superseded or obsolete. TBS Registration: 002558 Bank Number: CPC PPU 001

◆ Purchasing & Project Management

Purchasing Contracts

Description: This bank contains records relating to contracts, renewals and terminations and supporting documentation, which may include the request for proposal, price quotes, curriculum vitae, company résumé, records of experience, terms of reference, financial/insurance/bonding information, reliability checks and/or security clearance levels, and performance records. Individuals seeking access to this bank should provide their full name, the name of their company (if applicable), the Canada Post contract/proposal number, and the location of the procurement office. Class of Individuals: A limited number of individuals offering or providing professional services in management and information technology consulting, market research, health services, security, translation, labour arbitration, counselling and temporary help, as well as in architecture, engineering, construction, property appraisal, property development and property management, including cleaning and maintenance; and equipment, supplies and other goods. (Note that payment records are stored in Accounts Payable, CPC PPU 060; that records on contractors providing mail or letter carrier transportation services are stored in Transportation Contracts, CPC PPU 035; and that records on retail postal outlet operators are stored in Retail Postal Outlet Contracts, CPC PPU 020).

Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the award and administration of Canada Post's procurement and certain other service contracts. Consistent Uses: The records are used to monitor performance or equipment supplied against requirements, so as to verify entitlements; and for evaluation and audit purposes. For example, the information may be collated and analysed to determine average costs by geographic areas and specialties. Retention and Disposal Standards: Tenders not awarded are retained for two fiscal years. Contracts awarded and supporting documentation are retained for six years after fiscal year of completion and non-renewal. TBS Registration: 003293 Bank Number: CPC PPU 031

Transportation Contracts

Description: This bank contains records relating to contracts, transfers, renewals and terminations and supporting documentation, including distance, stops, equipment used, costs and duration, financial/insurance/bonding information. Individuals seeking access to this bank should specify the name, dates and location of the service provided. Class of Individuals: Individuals owning businesses which have bid on or been awarded contracts for the carriage of mail or for the transportation of letter carriers. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the award and administration of transportation contracts. Consistent Uses: The records are used to create source lists and otherwise perform the tender process; to administer contracts, including the monitoring of performance and the granting of adjustments; to facilitate budgeting and cost control; and to produce internal reports and responses to external enquiries. Note that the name of the successful tenderer may be disclosed to unsuccessful tenderers and others, upon award of the contract. Retention and Disposal Standards: Tenders not awarded are destroyed two years after the contract is awarded. Other records are retained for six years after termination and non-renewal of contract and then destroyed, except for registers of contracts, which are transferred to National Archives of Canada for selective retention. PAC Number: 88-007 TBS Registration: 001332 Bank Number: CPC PPU 035

◆ Real Estate

Real Estate Contracts

Description: This bank contains records relating to contracts, transfers, renewals and terminations and supporting documentation, including requests for proposal, price quotes, curriculum vitae, company résumé, records of experience, terms of reference, financial/insurance/bonding information, reliability checks and/or security clearance levels, performance and payments records. Individuals seeking access to this bank should provide their full name, the name of their company (if applicable) and the Canada Post project and location. If the contract in question has been let via Government Services Canada, provide those details. Class of Individuals: Companies and a limited number of individuals offering or providing professional services in architecture, engineering, construction, property appraisal, brokerage services, property development and property management, including cleaning and maintenance. (Note that payment records are also stored in Accounts Payable, CPC PPU 060). Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the award and administration of Canada Post's real estate lease and property management contracts. Consistent Uses: The records are used to prepare source lists and select from among potential contractors and to monitor performance against requirements, so as to verify entitlements; and for evaluation and audit purposes. For example, the information may be collated and analysed to determine average costs by geographic areas and specialties. The information is shared with and often held by Canada Post's major procurement and real property management agents (e.g., Government Services Canada). Retention and Disposal Standards: Tenders not awarded are retained for two fiscal years. Contracts awarded and supporting documentation are retained for six years after fiscal year of completion and non-renewal. TBS Registration: 003291 Bank Number: CPC PPU 038

◆ Retail Business

Postal Office Boxes

Description: This bank contains post office box applications, including service particulars (e.g. primary delivery mode, rental periods and the redirection of mail), the names of agents or others authorized to receive mail and whether the post office box service is for private or commercial use. Other records include general enquiries, receipts and other payment records, audits and accounts of terminating services. Individuals seeking access to this bank should provide post office box location, number, and rental dates. Class of Individuals: Canada Post customers who have applied for or expressed interest in post office box services. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the provision of post office box services. Consistent Uses: The records are used to provide the services requested and, if applicable, to facilitate the collection and refund of rent for post office boxes (receipts are forwarded to corporate head office to reconcile accounts); and for periodic audits and for market research. Certain information may be disclosed to law enforcement and other federal or provincial agencies, pursuant to lawful investigations. Retention and Disposal Standards: Post office box applications and related records are retained for two years after the termination of service and then destroyed. Waiting lists are updated continuously, as boxes become available. PAC Number:

88-007 TBS Registration: 001326 Bank Number: CPC PPU 005

Retail Postal Outlet Contracts

Description: This bank contains hardcopy and computerized records, including the terms and conditions of contracts with retail postal outlet operators and, from time to time, credit history reports. Individuals seeking access to this bank should provide full name, the retail postal outlet concerned and dates. Class of Individuals: Individuals and businesses contracted to provide a range of basic postal services to the public. (Note that payment records also are stored in Accounts Payable, CPC PPU 060). Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to administer a network of retail postal outlets. Consistent Uses: The records in it are used to administer the network of retail postal outlets, including the authorization of payment of commissions on sales; and for periodic audits and market research. Retention and Disposal Standards: Contracts awarded and supporting documentation are retained for six years after fiscal year of completion and non-renewal and then destroyed. Financial records are also retained for six years. Tenders not awarded are retained for two fiscal years. PAC Number: 88-007 TBS Registration: 001329 Bank Number: CPC PPU 020

◆ Stamps & Philately

Philatelic Customers

Description: This bank contains information in both paper and automated form such as customer enquiries and mailing lists, coded to include special areas of interest, as well as invoices, funds on deposit, credit card numbers, order history, survey responses, and other sales records. A list of former customers who have issued bad cheques is also retained. Individuals seeking access to this bank should provide as many details as possible, such as name, address, subject matter, dates and account numbers. Class of Individuals: Canada Post's national and international customers of philatelic products, sponsors of stamp clubs and those who have expressed an interest. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the sale and distribution of philatelic products and related promotional material. Consistent Uses: The records are used to support philatelic sales and subscription services; to assist in the presentation of philatelic exhibits; to generate particular lists of customers/subscribers (for example, by area of interest); to control inventory; and for market research purposes, such as the identification of promotional needs and opportunities. Retention and Disposal Standards: Financial records are retained for six years after last administrative use, which is usually payment for and mailing of philatelic products. Mailing lists are updated continuously, verified annually and retained until superseded or obsolete (for example, when customers submit change-of-address cards or requests to be deleted from the list; or move, leaving no forwarding address). General correspondence is retained for two years.

PAC Number: 88-007 TBS Registration: 001327 Bank Number: CPC PPU 010

Stamp Subjects and Designer References

Description: This bank contains such information as subject suggestions and enquiries, general correspondence, résumés, samples of art work (usually reproduced on 35mm slides) and, if applicable, letters of commission. Individuals seeking access to this bank should provide name and date of previous submission. (Note that stamp subject suggestions may also be stored in Corporate Correspondence, CPC PPU 100, and payment records concerning commissioned designs are also stored in Accounts Payable, CPC PPU 060.) Class of Individuals: Canadian designers, artists, illustrators, photographers and others who have indicated their interest in being considered for a postage stamp design commission. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to provide a visual reference file of the work of Canadian designers and artists who could be considered for a postage stamp design commission. Consistent Uses: The records are used to consider possible designers to be commissioned to submit design proposals for new stamp issues. Retention and Disposal Standards: Samples of work are returned to designers upon request. Records regarding rejected solicitations are retained for two years after the year of rejection and then destroyed. Records relating to commissioned stamp designers are retained for ten years and then transferred to National Archives of Canada. If the records are judged by the National Archivist to be of historical/archival value, they are retained permanently. PAC Number: 88-007 TBS Registration: 001330 Bank Number: CPC PPU 025

Stamp Vendors

Description: This bank contains the sales histories of stamp vendors, such as records of stamp purchases, amount of the discount and amount paid. Individuals seeking access to this bank should specify registered name and address as well as stamp sales details. Class of Individuals: Individuals and small businesses who have applied for or been granted a permit to purchase stamps at a discount for resale to the public. Purpose: The purpose of this bank is to support the sale of stamps via a network of stamp vendors. Consistent Uses: Vendors use permits to purchase stamps at a discount. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained for two years after last administrative use and then transferred to National Archives of Canada. Information judged by the National Archivist to be of archival/historical value is retained permanently. The remainder is destroyed. PAC Number: 88-007 TBS Registration: 001328 Bank Number: CPC PPU 015

Change of Address

Description: This bank contains data drawn from change of address forms, including: a mover's previous and new address; the length and dates for which redirection services have been purchased; and records concerning participation in related services available to movers and mailers. Class of Individuals: All subscribers to CPC's hold and redirection of mail services. Data on subscribers to CPC's permanent and temporary redirection services between January 1993 and April 1995 have been entered to a central data base (National change of Address or NCOA). NCOA is no longer being populated although mover data is still entered at mail redirection centres to the System for Mail Addressing and Redirection Techniques (SMART). Purpose: To facilitate the redirection of mail. Consistent Uses: To confirm service particulars and inform movers of address notification and other options; to produce letter carrier case cards and new address labels; to notify publishers having movers' name and old address of the new address; with mover consent, to update the mailing lists of other mailers, provided they have the movers' name and old address; to resolve complaints and enquiries; to contact movers on a mailer's behalf (without disclosing the new address); and for research, statistical and audit purposes. Change of address data may also be disclosed to law enforcement agencies conducting lawful investigations, and to certain federal government departments seeking to locate individuals owing a Crown debt or being owed a Crown payment (see CPC PPU 090 and CPC PPU 120, respectively). Retention and Disposal Standards: A retention/disposal schedule is under development. TBS Registration: 003294 Bank Number: CPC PPU 002

Administrative Records

Certain information provided by or about individuals may also be found in administrative records, such as general correspondence and organizational planning files, minutes of committee meetings, daily information books, library loan and distribution lists, fixed asset inventory control reports, general ledger reports, audit reports and evaluations, internal electronic mail (COSS) communications, video recordings and records relating to visits and conferences involving officials of other postal authorities. Several functions also provide advice on employee, customer or contractor matters concerning areas such as employee relations, labour relations, customer service, corporate security, occupational health and safety, etc. This information may exist in the form of personal notes, drafts, letters, case files and electronic mail messages, duplicates of which are often located in other personal information banks. Retention/disposal standards vary, but comply with a two-year minimum.

Corporate Security

This class includes information detailing complaints received by Corporate Security and the remedial action undertaken. The records are chronologically ordered and thus not retrievable by individual identifier. They include occurrence reports which contain the name, address and phone number of the complainant, the names of the other parties involved, the name of the investigating officer and details concerning causes and remedial action. Should the enquiry result in a suspicion of a postal-related crime or offence, or a Criminal Code offence involving the mail, a file number is added to the occurrence report which is transferred to personal information bank Postal Related Crimes/Offences (see CPC PPU 085, or CPC PPE 824). Otherwise, the occurrence reports are retained for two years, at which time they are destroyed. The purpose of such retention is to allow for statistical analyses and quality control.

Marketing and Sales

This class includes Postage Meter Services and marketing information such as market research studies, various coded mailing lists, market surveys and test reports concerning householders and other Canada Post customers (for example, large volume mailers). The records include correspondence, reports, accounts of sales calls and other meetings with customers, which may contain the names, titles and business addresses of company representatives, as well as profiles of key executives. These records are used for business purposes only, namely to identify customer needs and perceptions and to help make marketing decisions related to product and service mix, price and promotion. Canada Post also temporarily retains certain records which may contain personal information under arrangements with customers and business partners. These records assist in the preparation of account development strategies for national and divisionally managed accounts. Such records are not under the Corporation's sole control and may not be accessed without the prior consent of the customer or business partner involved. Note also that claims and enquiries related to collection and delivery services have been indexed and described as a Canada Post information bank (see Customer Service, CPC PPU 030). Certain records are held in electronic form in the following systems: Cash Receipts, Money Order Information, Canadian Wildlife Service, National Accounts and Marketing Mailing List.

Undeliverable Mail

This class of records includes lettermail and parcels that, for any cause, cannot be delivered to the addressee or returned to the sender. This includes mail that cannot be delivered for legal reasons, and mail that is refused by the addressee or on which postage due is not paid by the sender on demand. The treatment of this mail is governed by the Undeliverable Mail Regulations. Undeliverable mail is opened to facilitate delivery to addressee or return to sender. Undeliverable admail is not returned to the sender or forwarded to an addressee unless it bears a specific request for return or redirection to another address, or has obvious value. Undeliverable international mail is returned to the country of origin unless marked abandoned, in which case it is treated in the same manner as domestic mail. When undeliverable mail of no obvious value does not contain sufficient information to permit the mail to be returned to the sender or forwarded to the addressee, it is destroyed. Where the mail contains cash or merchandise the cash is deposited to the credit of Canada Post Corporation and the merchandise is sold or otherwise disposed of in a manner approved by the Corporation.

Additional Information

Please see the INTRODUCTION to this publication for information on access procedures under the provisions of the Privacy Act.

Records contained within information banks are limited to relevant data subjects. For example, if an individual has never bid on nor been awarded a contract with Canada Post, no record of that individual would exist in the applicable contract bank.

To facilitate access and records retrieval, specific details should be provided, such as those outlined in individual bank descriptions.

If Canada Post exempts any information, the individual refused access is provided with the precise reasons for the exemption and the applicable appeal procedures.

Records are routinely destroyed when their useful life expires; thus, access requests for older records may prove unsuccessful. Individuals are encouraged to seek informal access to their records — employees via their supervisors, and customers, contractors and others via the Canada Post officials with whom they have been dealing.

Canadian Centre for Management Development

Chapter 16

General Information

Background

On April 14, 1988, the Prime Minister announced the creation of the Canadian Centre for Management Development (CCMD), dedicated to excellence in teaching and research into public sector management, enhancing public sector management capabilities, and promoting a strong corporate culture in the federal public service. On March 27, 1991, new legislation entitled Canadian Centre for Management Development Act (Bill C-34) received Royal Assent and the act was officially proclaimed on December 1, 1991.

The Act provides for the creation of a departmental corporation under the general direction of a Board of Governors. The composition of the Board is to be equally divided between public and non-public sector (academic and business) representatives. The Clerk of the Privy Council is the Chairman of the Board. Among other public sector representatives, the Secretary of the Treasury Board, the Chairman of the Public Service Commission and the Principal of the Centre are ex officio governors.

Responsibilities

The Centre focuses on the orientation, training and development of senior managers in the federal sector. It also has a capability to undertake public management research including the development of case histories of innovations or major initiatives to enhance and broaden the range of management courses offered by the federal government. There are two campuses in the National Capital Region (NCR). One of the NCR campuses is located at Gatineau (Touraine), Quebec; the other is situated in the historic Lasalle Academy on Sussex Drive in downtown Ottawa. Courses are also offered at existing facilities in most regions of Canada.

The primary clientele of the Centre includes all members of the Executive Group, Deputy Ministers, Senior Governor-in-Council appointees, managers from the Employment Equity groups at one level below the Executive Group and, managers selected for the Career Assignment Program, the Management Trainee Program and Interchange Canada.

Legislation

- Canadian Centre for Management Development Act

Organization

Office of the Principal

The Principal of the Centre is appointed by the Governor-in-Council and has the rank and status of a deputy minister. The Principal is the Chief Executive Officer of the Centre and has control over the form and content of programs, studies and publications of the Centre, the appointment of staff, the contracting for services and any other authority normally exercised by a deputy head pursuant to a statute or delegated authority. Since 1993, the Principal also has responsibilities related to Public Service Renewal. The other positions reporting to the Principal are listed below.

◆ Client Relations Group

The Client Relations group is responsible for the provision of customized learning programs to departmental clients to meet their present and future management development needs.

◆ Corporate Services

Corporate Services is responsible for the provision of all functions related to finance, administration, communications, evaluation, information management (including information services and informatics) as well as administrative support to the delivery of learning programs, including registration of participants.

◆ Executive Development Programs Group

Canadian Centre for Occupational Health and Safety

Chapter 17

General Information

Background

The Canadian Centre for Occupational Health and Safety (CCOHS) is a corporation under Schedule II of the Financial Administration Act, created by Parliament in April, 1978 to promote the rights of Canadians to a healthy and safe working environment. It is governed by a Council of Governors representing labour, employers and federal, provincial and territorial governments.

Responsibilities

CCOHS promotes a healthier and safer workplace by providing a free occupational health and safety inquiries service to Canadians in both official languages while achieving self-sufficiency through the revenue generating services as a not-for-profit organization. The revenue generating service includes publications, education/training packages, an online electronic service (CCINFOline) that connects users to CCOHS' computer in Hamilton via Internet or Datapac, and a CD-ROM service, CCINFODisc, consisting of a series of 7 CD-ROMs which are updated quarterly, containing material safety data sheets of trade name chemicals, and other chemical and general health and safety databases, a magnetic tape service, and a diskette service.

Five new specialized CD-ROMs are also offered containing full-text occupational health and safety and environmental legislation, complete with inherent print characteristics, and multimedia education/training packages. Another CD-ROM contains regulatory and advisory information on chemicals in the workplace and the environment.

Four membership options from $100 to $500 are offered to organizations which are interested in supporting the Canadian Centre for Occupational Health and Safety and promoting the fundamental right of all Canadians to a healthy and safe workplace.

Legislation

- Canadian Centre for Occupational Health and Safety Act
- Financial Administration Act, Schedule II

Organization

CCOHS is a corporation under Schedule II of the Financial Administration Act. Its policies are established by the Council of Governors, which consists of a chairman and 12 representatives from labour, employers' organizations, the Council and the federal, provincial and territorial governments. It meets three times a year in Hamilton.

The Chairman is appointed by federal Order-in-Council. The President and Chief Executive Officer supervises and directs the work and staff of the Centre.

The program is delivered on an inter-disciplinary project team system. There are four directorates through which the program is delivered.

Inquiries Service:

Responds directly to oral or written inquiries from the public.

Project Development and Coordination:

The market-driven project teams that constitute the driving force for the products and services offered by the Centre.

Operations Support:

Provides the support services and other services necessary for the effective operation of the Centre, and coordinates and monitors the national marketing and sales plan.

Comptroller:

Provides centralized planning and financial control.

CCINFO

Description: CCINFO is CCOHS' computerized information service which consists of four distinct modes of delivery — CCINFODisc and CCINFOline: a tape service and a diskette service; CCINFODisc — the delivery through CD-ROM (compact disc read-only memory); provides discs with data in the form of structured databases, full-text, and interactive, multimedia education/training packages; CCINFOline — the delivery through a telecommunications link to CCOHS' central computer via Internet or Datapac, provides access to databases; the tape service provides databases on magnetic tape for installation on other organizations' computers; the diskette service provides selected CCINFODisc and CCINFOline databases on diskettes.

There are three additional specialized CD-ROM discs containing information on education/training and legislation: 1) Two Education/Training discs consisting of multimedia training packages with sound, graphics, animation, colour and interactive features; and, 2) Legislation Disc — containing the full text of Canadian occupational health and safety and environmental Acts and regulations. There is also a CD-ROM disc of databases devoted to regulatory and advisory information on chemicals in the workplace and the environment from the U.S., Canada and several other countries.

There are six chemical information databases which respond to the right to know about the hazards posed by chemicals in the workplace. They are: 1) MSDS Database — contains English material safety data sheets for trade-named products; 2) FTSS Database — contains French material safety data sheets for trade-named products; 3) CHEMINFO (Chemical Information) — supplies profiles on chemicals and their safe usage; 4) RTECS7 (produced by the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health — NIOSH) — the Registry of Toxic Effects of Chemical Substances, an annual compendium of toxicity data extracted from the scientific literature by NIOSH; 5) REGULATORY INFORMATION ON PESTICIDE PRODUCTS identifies and describes products registered in Canada under the Pest Control Products (PCP) Act, and is produced by Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada; and, 6) TRANSPORT OF DANGEROUS GOODS (TDG)/HAZARDOUS MATERIALS (49CFR) — a database giving Canadian and U.S. regulatory information for the packaging and shipping of substances with recognized shipping names.

Five additional databases also contain chemical information: 1) PRIS (PEST MANAGEMENT RESEARCH INFORMATION SYSTEM) consists of five databases covering many aspects of pest control product development, from first introduction in Canada for research up to registration; produced by Agriculture and Agri-Food Canada; 2) CESARS (Chemical Evaluation Search and Retrieval System) contains information on chemicals of environmental concern; jointly produced by the Michigan Department of Natural Resources (MDNR) and the Ontario Ministry of the Environment (MOE); and, 3) DOMESTIC/NON-DOMESTIC SUBSTANCES LIST (DSL/NDL) lists substances manufactured or imported into Canada; in Canadian commerce, or used for commercial manufacturing purposes in Canada, under specific criteria, as well as substances not on the DSL, but believed to be in international commerce, although not yet in Canada; 4) CHRIS (Chemical Hazard Response Information System) contains emergency response and hazard information on chemicals; produced by the U.S. Coast Guard; and 5) New Jersey Hazardous Substance Fact Sheets with non-technical information on chemicals; produced by the New Jersey Department of Health.

Three databases describe people and organizations active in Canadian occupational health and safety, and current research projects in the field: 1) CANADIAN STUDIES is a directory of recent Canadian studies in the field of occupational health and safety; 2) RESOURCE ORGANIZATIONS lists Canadian organizations involved in the field of occupational health and safety; and, 3)

RESOURCE PEOPLE provides a directory of Canadians involved in the field of occupational health and safety.

Two other databases contain Canadian legal information on occupational health and safety: 1) CASE LAW, a collection of summaries of occupational health and safety cases and decisions from jurisdictions across Canada; and, 2) FATALITY REPORTS, a database containing information from reports on occupationally related fatalities.

Other databases accessible through CCOHS' electronic services:

— CANADIANA (OSH) is a bibliographic database of documents on occupational health and safety produced in Canada, by Canadians or on Canadian topics.

— ESSENTIALS provides references to publications selected as essential to answer questions on a specific topic in occupational health and safety.

— NOISE LEVELS is a direct-information database providing numerical data on noise levels relating to different types of machinery used for specific occupations in various industries.

— NON-IONIZING RADIATION LEVELS is a database containing non-ionizing radiation measurements of specific types of equipment used in a variety of industries and occupations.

— MINING INCIDENTS describes occupational health and safety incidents in mining; developed in co-operation with the Chief Inspectors of Mines Association.

— AIDSCAN for Health Care Workers, created by Ryerson Polytechnical Institute, is a bibliographic database of documents on working safely with AIDS patients; the physical and psychosocial aspects of care; and the educational or other special projects in which health care workers might be involved.

— DIRECTORY OF OCCUPATIONAL SAFETY AND HEALTH LEGISLATION IN CANADA lists occupational health and safety legislation as made available to the Federal-Provincial Relations Branch of Labour Canada, and is provided by Labour Canada.

— INRS-BIBLIOGRAPHIE, a French-language bibliographic database covering the international scientific and technical literature available on occupational health and safety; provided by the Institut national de recherche et de sécurité (INRS) in France.

— INET — RESEARCH PROJECTS (INRS), an international directory of research projects that are planned or currently underway on the prevention of occupational risks; produced by the Institut national de recherche et de sécurité (INRS) in France.

— INOR — ORGANIZATIONS (INRS), an international directory of organizations that conduct research on the prevention of occupational risk, whether or not this is their main activity; produced by the Institut national de recherche et de sécurité (INRS) in France.

— DIDS (Document Information Directory System), a listing of NIOSH (National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health) publications and reports which can be ordered from NIOSH, the US Government Printing Office (GPO) or the National Technical Information Service (NTIS); provided by NIOSH.

— STANDARDS AND DIRECTORIES is a directory of standards, certified products' directories, PLUS products and other miscellaneous information products published by the CSA (Canadian Standards Association).

— CIS/ILO was created by the Centre d'informations de sécurité et de santé au travail of the International Labour Office in Geneva. CIS/ILO is a bilingual, bibliographic database on publications in occupational health and safety worldwide.

— International Directory of OSH Institutions, produced by the Centre d'informations de sécurité et de santé au travail of the International Labour Office in Geneva, is a directory of key occupational health and safety organizations in 93 member states of the ILO.

— NIOSHTIC®, developed by the U.S. National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health, is a bibliographic database with international coverage of publications in occupational health and safety.

— MOLINDEX, produced by the Ontario Ministry of Labour Library, provides references to documents on occupational health and safety and other labour issues, from Canadian, American and Western European sources.

— Occupational Health and Safety Software Packages describes commercial computer software programs pertaining to occupational health and safety.

— NIOSH Manual of Analytical Methods, a widely used reference guide for sampling and analysis of chemical contaminants in air, and also for biological monitoring.

— NiPERA CAB (Current Awareness Bulletin), produced by the Nickel Producers' Environmental Research Association (NiPERA) in the U.S. to develop and disseminate information on any health or environmental effects that might be associated with the production and use of nickel, its compounds and alloys. Program Record Number: OHS ISS 055

Canadian Commercial Corporation

Chapter 18

General Information

Background

A Crown corporation established in 1946, Canadian Commercial Corporation (CCC) is wholly owned by the Government of Canada. It reports to Parliament through the Minister of Public Works and Government Services.

Responsibilities

The Corporation's mandate is to assist in the development of trade between Canada and other nations. Its principal activity is to facilitate sales to foreign governments and international agencies on behalf of Canadian suppliers. In all transactions CCC assumes the role of prime contractor, undertaking to deliver a product or service to the foreign customer with a "back-to-back" obligation from a Canadian supplier. To achieve this task, the Corporation offers a wide range of export services to Canadian exporters, provides them with special access to foreign government markets and enhances their credibility by guaranteeing contract performance.

Legislation

- Canadian Commercial Corporation Act

Organization

The board of directors is comprised of Canadian business executives, public service officials and the President of the Corporation.

♦ Corporate Management Division

This unit is responsible for the development of corporate policy and planning, for communications and awareness activities, and for the provision of management information systems and data processing services within the Corporation.

♦ Finance and Resources Administration Division

This unit is responsible for ensuring sound financial management practices for all policies and programs of the Corporation; in addition, it oversees the human resources, administration and security requirements of the Corporation.

♦ Operations

Two distinct operational groups within CCC facilitate government-to-government export contracts; the United States Division and the Overseas Division. The latter includes a section devoted to concluding sales with United Nations purchasing agencies and in projects funded by international financial institutions.

Canadian Cultural Property Export Review Board

Chapter 19

General Information

Background

The Cultural Property Export Review Board was established through the Cultural Property Export and Import Act on September 6, 1977. The duties of the Review Board as set out in section 20 of the Act are: pursuant to section 29, to review applications for export permits; pursuant to section 30, to make determinations respecting fair cash offers to purchase; and pursuant to section 32, to make determinations for the purpose of subparagraph 39(1)(a) (i.1) or 110(1)(b.1) of the Income Tax Act.

Administrative services to the Review Board are provided through the Department of Canadian Heritage by the Movable Cultural Property Secretariat. All Review Board files are housed with the Secretariat. The personal information they contain pertains to members of the Review Board, applications for grants, loans, cultural property export permits, appeals against the refusal of cultural property export permits and applications for the certification of cultural property submitted on behalf of donors or vendors. Application forms are filed by number but can be accessed through a manual cross-index or automated system containing the name of the appellant (in the case of an appeal) or the donor/vendor (in the case of certification). Review Board member files are maintained in alphabetical order.

Responsibilities

The Review Board is responsible for preserving in Canada significant examples of Canadian heritage in movable cultural property, reviewing applications for export permits, making determinations on fair cash offers to purchase and making determinations for the purposes of the Income Tax Act. It also provides advice to the Minister of Canadian Heritage on matters affecting the preservation in Canada of the heritage in movable cultural property. In particular, it recommends to the Minister, pursuant to section 35 of the Act, grants and loans to designated institutions and public authorities in Canada for the purchase of objects for which permits have been refused under the Act, or for the purchase of cultural property outside Canada that is related to the national heritage. The grants and loans are made out of monies appropriated annually by Parliament.

In reviewing an application for an export permit the Board must determine whether the object in question: is included in the Canadian Cultural Property Export Control List; is of outstanding significance by reason of its close association with Canadian history or national life, its aesthetic qualities or its value in the study of the arts or sciences; is of such a degree of national importance that its loss would significantly diminish the national heritage.

Where the Review Board determines that the cultural property subject of an application meets the criteria of outstanding significance and national importance, and the cultural property qualifies for certification for income tax purposes, the Review Board issues a Cultural Property Income Tax Certificate to the designated institution or public authority making such an application. It should be noted that objects proposed for certification need not be included in the Canadian Cultural Property Export Control List. Thus objects less than 50 years old and made by a living person may qualify. It should also be noted that a certified cultural property subject of a Cultural Property Income Tax Certificate is exempt from tax on taxable capital gains when disposed of (by gift or sale) to an institution or public authority in Canada designated for the purpose and, in the case of a donation, also qualifies for the 100 percent tax credit provision under the Income Tax Act.

Legislation

Appeals

Description: An applicant for a cultural property export permit, whose permit is refused by an expert examiner, may appeal this decision to the Canadian Cultural

Property Export Review Board. The process of appeal, including the disposition of the relevant information, is set out in paragraph 22 of the Cultural Property Export and Import Act. The information in this bank includes the original permit application, the advice of the expert examiner and any other experts consulted, and administrative correspondence related to the conduct of the appeal. In each case, the information contained in an appeal file is shared with all interested parties. Files are kept for five years. Class of Individuals: Individuals seeking to export cultural property which is subject to control. Purpose: To determine if an export permit should be granted. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files are kept for 10 years. PAC Number: 79-002 Related to PR#: CPE CPI 005 TBS Registration: 000116 Bank Number: CPE PPU 005

Certification

Description: The purpose of this bank is to enable the Review Board to make determinations concerning the certification of cultural property for income tax purposes, and to issue cultural property income tax certificates. The application files contain information concerning the fair market value of objects being transferred to designated institutions by individual donors or vendors. Material held in the bank includes the application, appraisals, declaration of authenticity, information on provenance, significance of the object and, in the case of a sale, the purchase price. Copies of any advice from experts consulted and a copy of the tax certificate are also included. Class of Individuals: Individuals who donate or sell cultural property to designated Canadian cultural institutions. Purpose: Certification of cultural property for income tax purposes and the issuance of cultural property income tax certificates. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files are kept for five years. PAC Number: 79-002 Related to PR#: CPE CPI 005 TBS Registration: 000117 Bank Number: CPE PPU 010

Export Permits

Description: In accordance with section 4 of the Cultural Property Export and Import Act, an export permit must be obtained for cultural property which is more than 50 years old and made by a person who is no longer living. The permit application procedures are set out in the Act and the regulations. This bank contains original permit applications and supporting documentation, including correspondence and photographs. Class of Individuals: Applicants for export permits and general export permits. Purpose: The information was compiled in accordance with the regulations established under the Cultural Property Export and Import Act for export controls affecting cultural property. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files are retained for ten years and are then transferred to the National Archives of Canada. Related to PR#: CPE CPI 005 TBS Registration: 002588 Bank Number: CPE PPU 015

Permit Officers, Expert Examiners and Applications for Grants and Loans

Description: This bank contains information about individuals designated as permit issuing officers and expert examiners for the purposes of export controls affecting cultural property. Permit issuing officers are employees of Revenue Canada who issue the permits, while expert examiners are employees of curatorial institutions who make determinations about the objects being exported. Grants for the purchase of cultural property are available for objects for which export permits have been refused, or which are located outside of Canada and are related to the Canadian national heritage. Class of Individuals: Employees of Revenue Canada; museum curators; dealers and collectors of cultural property. Purpose: The information has been compiled to maintain listings of permit issuing officers and expert examiners responsible for ensuring the efficient operations of the export control system. Information about individuals selling cultural property is required to establish their eligibility for a grant. Retention and Disposal Standards: Files are retained for ten years and then transferred to the National Archives of Canada. Related to PR#: CPE CPI 005 TBS Registration: 002587 Bank Number: CPE PPU 020

Canadian Dairy Commission

Chapter 20

General Information

Background

The Canadian Dairy Commission was established by the Canadian Dairy Commission Act in October 1966. The Commission consists of a chairman, a vice-chairman and a commissioner, appointed by the Governor-in-Council. The positions of Vice-Chairman and Commissioner are part-time appointments. The Commission is accountable to Parliament through the Minister of Agriculture and Agri-Food.

Responsibilities

The objectives of the Commission are to provide efficient producers of milk and cream with the opportunity of obtaining a fair return for their labour and investment, and to provide consumers with a continuous and adequate supply of dairy products of high quality.

The Commission, under its authority to purchase and sell dairy products, supports the market price of major processed products, principally butter and skim milk powder. The Commission sets the national largest price for industrial milk, establishes the processor margin and determines the related product support prices for butter and skim milk powder.

The supply of industrial milk and cream is managed nationally through a Market Sharing Quota program administered under the National Milk Marketing Plan. The Commission, in chairing the Canadian Milk Supply Management Committee (CMSMC), directs the development of policy and coordinates the administration of the national quota and provincial market shares that are determined by the CMSMC.

The Commission exports surplus dairy products not needed for domestic consumption, including skim milk powder and whole milk products such as evaporated milk, cheese, whole milk powder and other specialty products.

The Commission makes subsidy payments to producers from funds provided by the government to moderate consumer prices. These payments are made on qualifying milk and cream shipments produced within a Market Sharing Quota system to meet domestic market requirements.

Legislation

- Canadian Dairy Commission Act
- Farm Income Protection Act

Organization

♦ Marketing Sections

These involve export activities, including the purchase, sale, transport and warehousing of dairy products not needed to meet Canadian domestic needs. It administers quota entitlements for the export of certain cheeses and a permit system to access milk at competitive prices.

♦ Policy Section

This provides analysis and advice on dairy-related issues.

♦ Subsidy Operations Section

This administers the payment of subsidies on qualifying shipments of industrial milk and cream to producers, and oversees the special class pooling system.

Canadian Environmental Assessment Agency

Chapter 21

General Information

Background

In 1973, the Federal Cabinet established the Environmental Assessment and Review Process and made adjustments to it in 1977. In 1984, the process was strengthened and updated by the Environmental Assessment and Review Process Guidelines Order under the Government Organization Act.

In 1987, the Minister of the Environment conducted nation-wide consultations on a major reform of the federal environmental assessment process. The reform reached an important milestone in June 1992 with the passage through Parliament of the Canadian Environmental Assessment Act (Act). The Act was proclaimed in January 1995.

The Canadian Environmental Assessment Agency (the Agency) was created on December 21, 1994 to administer the federal environmental assessment process; it replaced the Federal Environmental Assessment Review Office (FEARO). The Agency reports directly to the Minister of the Environment. Its mission is to provide effective means of integrating environmental factors into federal planning and decision-making in a manner that takes into account public values and the goal of sustainable development.

Responsibilities

The Agency's main responsibilities are: to administer the federal environmental assessment process; to provide legal, procedural and policy advice to the Minister of the Environment on the Minister's responsibilities under the Act; to provide opportunities for public participation in the federal environmental assessment (EA) process and to promote sound environmental assessment practices.

Legislation

- The Canadian Environmental Assessment Act and its regulations: the Law List, Comprehensive Study List, Inclusion List and Exclusion list.

Organization

The Agency in June 1995 introduced a progressive and modern organizational model, self-directed work teams. The teams are as follows:

◆ Aboriginal Affairs

Provide advice on Aboriginal environmental assessment matters to the Agency and other clients in order to shape the federal approach to integrating environmental assessment requirements to comprehensive land claims agreements, self government agreements and federal devolution initiatives; provide advice and support services to the federal administrator of the James Bay and Northern Quebec Agreement (JBNQA); and, manage the environmental assessment processes established under the JBNQA and related environmental assessment activities.

◆ Class Screening and Comprehensive Studies

Undertake and manage the Agency's responsibilities for comprehensive studies and class screenings; and advocate timely, efficient, high quality environmental assessments of projects.

◆ Client Liaison

Facilitate the consistent application of federal environmental assessment requirements through interdepartmental co-ordination and harmonization with environmental assessment processes of provinces and other jurisdictions. This team includes headquarters and regional staff. It provides the Agency's clients with information, advice and services to enhance the quality of environmental assessment and promote compliance with the Act and its regulations.

◆ Communications and Information Management

Provide value-added communications advice and specialized information management and informatics services to internal and external clients in support of the Agency's objectives; promote environmental assessment to the public; and manage a national public registry index system, an Internet site and a communications program which facilitate informed public participation in the federal environmental assessment process.

◆ Comptroller, Administration and Cost Recovery

Provide financial and administrative services to the Agency, including the development of mechanisms for cost recovery.

◆ Environmental Assessment Enhancement and International Affairs

Function as a centre of expertise on good environmental assessment practices and ensure that Canada's international environmental assessment interests and commitments are met. The mission includes continued enhancement of the Agency's environmental assessment knowledge base; the transfer of this knowledge, including training on the Act, to Agency clients; and, the development of processes, procedures and standards to advance the efficient practice of environmental assessment.

♦ Executive

Executive Provide overall strategic direction and management and set the context for the Agency's activities. This team also manages Parliamentary relations, ministerial services and correspondence.

♦ Human Resources

Provide professional advice and human resource services to all of the Agency's employees, develop the concept of semi directed work teams for the Agency, and assist in its implementation.

♦ Legal Services

Provide professional legal services to the Agency and effectively identify potential legal issues associated with the design and implementation of the Act and the environmental assessment regulatory framework.

♦ Public Reviews and Participant Funding

Develop and manage effective and independent public review and mediations to fulfill the Agency's mission. This team also manages the Participant Funding Program.

♦ Regulatory Development and Compliance Monitoring

Provide an effective legislative and regulatory framework for integrating environmental assessment into federal decision making; monitor and promote compliance within that framework; and explore alternatives to regulations to address problems.

Canadian Film Development Corporation

Chapter 22

General Information

Background

The Canadian Film Development Corporation was established by an Act of Parliament (R.S.C. 1970, Chapter C-8) in March, 1967. The Corporation, publicly known as Telefilm Canada, is responsible for fostering the growth and development of the private sector of the Canadian film, television and video industry.

Responsibilities

Through Telefilm Canada, the Government of Canada provides support, as a partner, to the private sector for the production of film and broadcast material, either in the form of investment funds or through a variety of resources at the Corporation's disposal.

The Corporation meets the diverse needs of this industry through a wide range of funds. Support is available at all stages of the process, from screenplay development to final production and beyond to the distribution and marketing of the finished product in Canada and abroad.

Telefilm Canada is a Crown corporation that reports to Parliament through the Minister of Communications. It is headed by a board of directors and a chairman appointed by the Governor in Council. The Governor in Council, on the recommendation of the Corporation's board, also appoints an executive director who acts as chief executive officer and is responsible for day-to-day operations. Headquarters is located in Montreal with offices in Toronto, Vancouver, Halifax, Los Angeles, Paris and London.

Legislation

- Canadian Film Development Corporation Act, 1970, R.S.C. chapter C-8.

Organization

◆ Planning and Policies

This sector is responsible for the formulation of policies and strategies for the administration of Corporation funds. The sector is also responsible for establishing formal liaison with industry representatives and federal and provincial institutions, and for the evaluation of the cultural and industrial impact of Telefilm Canada policies.

◆ Production and Development

This sector has overall responsibility in the administration of the Feature Film Fund, the Canadian Broadcast Program Development Fund and the Interim Financing Fund. It co-ordinates decision-making and production and development activities among the Canadian offices of the Corporation.

◆ Financing and Administration

This sector is responsible for: financial planning; monitoring spending and commitments; financial tracking; personnel; computer systems; legal affairs; and contract management.

◆ Distribution, Marketing and International Affairs

This sector is responsible for the overall administration of marketing, distribution and export activities and funds, in order to promote the visibility and competitiveness of Canadian productions in Canada and abroad, and to foster growth in distribution-related sectors. The sector is also responsible, on behalf of the Minister of Communications, for the administration of Canada's co-production treaties with Algeria, Belgium, China, Commonwealth of Independent States, Czech and Slovak Republics, France, Germany, Hong Kong, Hungary, Israel, Italy, Mexico, Morocco, New Zealand, Romania, Spain, Switzerland, the United Kingdom, Yugoslavia, Argentina, Australia, Ireland and the Netherlands. It also evaluates applications made under these treaties and makes recommendations to the Minister regarding provisional and final approval.

◆ Research and Analysis

This sector is responsible for studies concerning the impact of the Corporation's various programs and the evolution of the industry in general, in order to promote better long term planning and ensure the Corporation's activities effectively meet the needs of the industry.

A Human and Material Resources sector and a Communications sector complete the organizational structure of the Corporation.

Canadian Heritage

Chapter 23

General Information

Background

The Department of Canadian Heritage was created on June 25, 1993, through the reorganization of the federal government. The Act to establish the Department of Canadian Heritage and to amend or repeal certain other acts was proclaimed on July 12, 1996. The Department's mission is to strengthen and celebrate Canada — its people and its land. We honour this commitment to Canadians by enhancing pride in Canada; contributing to Canada's economic growth and prosperity; protecting Canada's heritage; ensuring access to Canadian voices and Canadian spaces and encouraging participation in and contribution to Canadian Society.

Responsibilities

The Department of Canadian Heritage is responsible for promoting the development of a strong Canadian identity and common values among all Canadians and recognition of our natural and historical heritage, linguistic and multicultural identity, and achievements in sport, the arts and culture.

The Department of Canadian Heritage is responsible for protecting areas of natural and historical significance to the nation and promoting artistic development and Canadian heritage, promoting multiculturalism, official languages. Native culture, amateur sport, human rights, a sense of national identity and the full participation of all Canadians in Canada's development.

Legislation

* Upon the coming into force of the Department of Canadian Heritage Act, the responsibilities of the Minister under those Acts will be transferred to another member of the Queen's Privy Council.

 Upon the coming into force of the Department of Canadian Heritage Act, these Acts will be repealed.

 Although, upon the coming into force of the Department of Canadian Heritage Act the powers of the Minister under the Department of State Act will become redundant, this Act will remain in force until the legislation creating the Department of Human Resources Development is enacted.

Organization

Deputy Minister's Office

Human Resources Branch

Reporting to the Deputy Minister, the Human Resources Branch provides services and advice to the Management Committee and to managers of the Department on all matters involving human resources management. Thus, the Branch ensures human resources services in the National Capital Region and provides functional guidance to the Human Resources Regional Office.

Legal Services Branch

Reporting to the Deputy Minister, the Legal services are provided by lawyers from the Department of Justice who offer program managers a wide range of services, including preparing opinions on the laws administered by the Department, drafting regulatory texts and giving advice on policies being developed.

Citizenship and Canadian Identity Sector

The Citizenship and Canadian Identity program encourages the use of the two official languages in Canadian Society and promotes their equal status; coordinates the cross-government commitment to multiculturalism; advances opportunities for Canadians of all ethnocultural background to participate in and contribute fully to Canadian society; and promotes voluntarism. It supports Aboriginal peoples in their efforts to resolve their particular issues. The program supports the advancement of Canadian studies; promotes young people's involvement in Canadian society; encourages Canadians to value sport and to participate; advises in matters of state protocol, manages state ceremonial and events and promotes Canadian symbols and institutions. It is responsible for increasing the awareness, knowledge and enjoyment of human rights and fostering compliance with Canada's human rights obligations. Parks Canada Investments also coordinates the department's Heritage Tourism Program through the Heritage Tourism Secretariat.

Citizens' Participation and Multicultural Branch

♦ Human Rights Directorate

Achieves its objectives through a program of support for education, research and development work by non-governmental organizations, as well as by operating a secretariat for the Federal-Provincial-Territorial Continuing Committee of Officials on Human Rights. The Committee chartered by the Department which provides a mechanism for liaison and consultation on matters relating to Canada's international human rights commitments. Coordinates the preparation of Canada's reports to the United Nations on human rights. The activities of the program include the provision of both financial aid and technical support to non-governmental organizations concerned with human rights education, development and research, and assisting and coordinating the progress of human rights in Canada.

♦ Multiculturalism Directorate

Community Support and Participation (CSP):

The purpose of this program is to promote the integration and meaningful participation in Canadian life of members of ethnocultural communities. The program supports non-profit community-based organizations in their efforts to identify and address community concerns, including issues affecting special needs groups such as women, youth and seniors. The program consists of two components: 1) Citizenship and Community Participation (CCP): support is provided to immigrant-serving agencies, immigrant women's groups and other non-profit organizations for initiatives that assist first-generation Canadians (naturalized citizens) to participate as full and equal citizens; 2) Community Support: support is provided to national, regional and local organizations, that are representative of ethnocultural and visible minority communities to maintain a positive sense of community, and to identify and address community concerns, such as intergenerational/ cross-cultural understanding, and equality of opportunities to share the benefits and responsibilities of citizenship.

Heritage Cultures and Languages (HCL):

All Canadians benefit from the contribution to the cultural, artistic and academic sectors made by Canadians of diverse backgrounds. The main object of the HCL Program, therefore, is to promote the development and expression of heritage cultures and languages as an integral part of Canada's artistic, cultural and academic life.

The Creative and Cultural Expression component, the International Heritage Language component, and the Canadian Ethnic Studies component together promote equal access for artists of minority background, assist in the production of teaching material for the study of International heritage languages, encourage the scholarly study of Canada's multicultural society, and work with academic and cultural institutions to effect an environment more receptive and reflective of the pluralism of contemporary society.

Multiculturalism Secretariat — Cross-Government Commitment:

The Secretariat encourages and assists federal institutions to implement the Multiculturalism Policy of Canada, within their mandates, and monitors and reports on progress in this area.

Race Relations and Cross Cultural Understanding (RCU):

This program is designed to foster the elimination of racism and racial discrimination, to help Canadian institutions adapt to Canada's multicultural reality, to promote cross-cultural understanding, and to promote among Canadians and in Canadian institutions an appreciation and acceptance of the principles of multiculturalism.

♦ Native Citizens Directorate

Co-ordinates and administers programs that serve organizations of Indians, Métis and Inuit. A consistent feature in all programs is that projects are community-based, initiated and managed by Aboriginal people. The Directorate provides assistance through the Aboriginal Friendship Centre Program, the Northern Native Broadcast Access Program, the Aboriginal Representative Organizations Program and the Aboriginal Women's Program. The Directorate also administers two Aboriginal Languages Agreements with the governments of the Northwest Territories and the Yukon.

Official Languages Support Programs Branch

The objectives of the Official Languages Support Programs Branch are to promote French and English in Canadian society; and to encourage the development of Francophone and Anglophone communities in minority situations.

The Branch is composed of three areas of intervention:

♦ Community Development

The Official Languages Support Programs Branch supports minority official-language communities in order that they may establish and maintain their own organizations enabling them to contribute fully to the economic, cultural and social aspects of Canadian life; and that they may profit fully from federal programs in all regions of the country through our coordination role undertaken with other federal institutions.

♦ Federal-Provincial Cooperation

Partnerships with the provinces and territories enable official-language minority communities to have access to education in their mother tongue; to manage their own schools and to receive provincial and territorial services in their own language. This cooperation also allows all young Canadians to have the opportunity to learn French or English as a second language.

♦ Promotion

The promotion component of the Branch endeavours to promote the bilingual character of our country as a fundamental part of our national identity by advocating the advantages and rewards brought forth by Canada's linguistic duality and by encouraging activities which foster mutual understanding between Francophones and Anglophones such as Summer Language Bursaries, Queen Elizabeth scholarships for second language study, etc. In addition, the Branch cooperates with the private and voluntary sectors so that they may offer French and English services to their clients and foster the recognition and use of both official languages.

Sport Canada Branch

To strengthen the unique contribution that sport makes to Canadian society, identity and culture, Sport Canada supports and promotes the achievement of high performance athletic excellence through fair and ethical means, and works with key partners to sustain the development of the Canadian sport system. Sport Canada's priorities are: Canada's high performance athletes and programs that directly support them; coaches and coaching development; delivery of services via national sport organizations and other mechanisms; increased access for women, athletes with disabilities and Aboriginal persons, and; initiatives contributing to the achievement of the government of Canada's broad social and economic objectives.

Corporate Services Sector

The Corporate Services Sector encompasses the Administrative Services, Information Management and Financial Management Branches. Corporate Services clients include the Minister and Deputy Minister's offices, and all sectors and programs at headquarters and in the regions.

Administrative Services Branch

The Branch's goal is to assist departmental organizations meet their operational objectives through the provision of value-added services and cost-effective solutions. Services provided by the Branch include: meeting and parking coordination, facilities planning and design, mail and courier, moving, and environmental services; goods and services contracting, assets management, disposal and recycling, fleet management and coordination, and warehousing; personnel, physical and technical/electronics security investigations, emergency/contingency plans, occupational health and safety assessments; access to information and privacy Acts administration; advice relating to diversity in the work place; and, shared services project management.

Financial Management Branch

The Financial Management Branch supports the Minister, Secretary of State, the Deputy Minister, Management Committee and provides services to all sectors. The Branch has three directorates: Financial Management Minister's Portfolio provides advice and supporting information to the Minister of Canadian Heritage and senior officials of the Department relating to the agencies and Crown corporations for which the Minister is responsible. The Financial Planning and Resource Utilization directorate provides information relating to a variety of subjects dealing with program resource requests and approval; financial management, financial reporting; corporate and strategic planning. The Accounting Services, Financial Policy and Systems directorate provides advice and information relating to the full spectrum of accounting operations; delegation of authorities; Financial systems, policy and training; and operation of the department's financial management system.

Information Management Branch

The Branch is responsible for managing the innovative and strategic use of information as a corporate resource; for coordinating the sharing and integration of information resources to meet the Department's program delivery needs and objectives; for the enhancement of services and productivity improvement through the re-engineering of business plans and processes and the application of technology and for managing departmental investments in and use of technology; for the planning and definition of the Department's information management policy and its implementation through this organization.

Cultural Development and Heritage Sector

The Cultural Development sector promotes artistic development in Canada, increases public access to Canada's heritage and assists in the preservation of this heritage. This mandate includes stimulating access to Canadian arts and heritage products and services and developing their availability, as well as encouraging public participation in related cultural activities.

The sector formulates policies and develops programs for both arts and heritage and Canada's cultural and broadcasting industries. Support for organizations active in these areas is provided. It is also involved in the development of applications using new technologies and their impact on Canadian artistic activities. In fulfilling its mandate the sector works closely with federal arts, heritage, and broadcasting agencies — including the Canada Council, the National Arts Centre, Canada's national museums, the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, and the Canadian Radio — Television and Telecommunications Commission. The sector advises the Minister on all matters related to its mandate.

Arts Policy Branch

The Arts Policy Branch is responsible for the formulation of policy and the development of programs in the field of the performing, visual, literary and media arts. The Branch also provides support to the Cultural Development and Heritage Sector by developing long-term strategic policies and analysis in areas which are of interest to the entire sector and by directing the conduct of arts research programs involving data collections and analysis. It is also involved in the development of applications using new technologies and their impact on Canadian artistic activities. As well, the Branch implements and delivers certain cultural support measures such as legislative proposals (e.g. the Status of the Artist) and proceeds to the designation of national arts organizations for the purpose of the Income Tax. The Branch, through the Cultural Initiatives Program promotes access to Canadian arts through support to Festivals.

Broadcasting Policy Branch

Formulates policies, proposes legislation and designs and administers programs in relation to the Canadian broadcasting system. It is responsible for ensuring that the Canadian broadcasting system contributes to the realization of Canadian social, cultural and economic objectives; enhancing the production and exhibition of Canadian television and radio programming and their availability to Canadians; and providing advice concerning the implementation of policies and programs by the independent agencies responsible for these activities including the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation (CBC), the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) and TVNC. Provides advice in relation to responsibilities of the Minister under the Broadcasting Act with respect to the issuance of policy directions to the CRTC and the review of CRTC broadcasting decisions.

Canadian Conservation Institute

The mandate of the Canadian Conservation Institute is to promote the proper care and preservation of Canada's movable cultural heritage and to advance the practice, science and technology of conservation.

Canadian Heritage Information Network

CHIN's mission is "to broker effective access to Canadian and international heritage information for public education and enjoyment and for the collective benefit of Canadian museums". Through the Internet, CHIN assists the Canadian museum community in achieving a collective presence while striving to provide access to the widest possible private sector and public audience. Also through the Internet, CHIN offers access to three national inventories of museum collections, the Humanities and Natural Sciences databases, and a national inventory of Archaeological Sites, which contain information on over 25 million objects. Other reference databases containing time sensitive information relevant to the heritage community are available. CHIN represents the museum community in international projects related to access to heritage information and, through project partnerships, provides a technology assessment function in the areas of creating and managing electronic heritage information resources. CHIN's work in developing standards for museum documentation has been internationally recognized and has been extended to encompass a broader range of information types and the technical protocols necessary to exchange information in a widely distributed environment.

Cultural Industries Branch

Formulates national policies, proposes legislation, designs and administers programs in the fields of copyright, film and video, sound recording and publishing. It is responsible for supporting the cultural and economic development of the cultural industries in Canada; enhancing the production and distribution of Canadian films, video programs, sound recording, books and periodicals and to ensure their availability to Canadians; ensuring, through the development of copyright policy and legislation, the legal recognition and protection of the economic and moral rights of creators and users and providing advice concerning the implementation of policies and programs by the cultural agencies which are consistent with the federal government's cultural policy and objectives.

Heritage Branch

Encourages and supports the preservation and the promotion of Canada's national cultural heritage. The Branch is responsible for the development of legislation and national policies that protect and ensure increased public access to the heritage of Canada. It maintains ongoing liaison with federal heritage agencies and with national heritage organizations. The Branch is responsible for the design and delivery of heritage programs such as the Museums Assistance Program, the International Exhibitions Programme and the Movable Cultural Property Program.

Parks Canada Sector

Parks Canada plays a leading role in federal government activities related to recognizing places representative of Canada's natural and cultural heritage. Parks Canada strives to encourage public understanding, appreciation and enjoyment of this heritage while ensuring that it is left unimpaired for future generations.

Parks Canada Investments is involved in six business areas: (1) Strategic Business Planning to provide the strategic business planning capability, (2) Revenue Development to secure funding from various sources and oversee funding implications of business activity in order to advance Parks Canada's business plan in accord with the vision, (3) Investment and Risk Analysis to add value to and optimize financial and resource utilization decisions, (4) Investment Portfolio Management to facilitate the professional management and effective stewardship of Parks Canada's $6 billion portfolio, (5) Business Partnerships to advance the business plan goals through partnerships and alliances with third parties, and (6) Reporting and Performance Measurement to ensure the implementation of effective accountability measures for decision makers.

◆ Heritage Tourism Secretariat

The department's Heritage Tourism Program represents one of several efforts being undertaken by the federal government to tap emerging trends in global tourism and improve Canada's position in the vast and growing international tourism market. The Heritage Tourism Program aims to contribute to the success of the national tourism initiative by acting as a catalyst for the development and marketing of new and unique tourism experiences based on the enjoyment, appreciation and celebration of heritage across Canada. The current initiative is focused around the major products of the department and built upon partnerships in business and government; such as with the Canadian Tourism Commission, the travel industry and its associations, provinces, communities and non-profit organizations. Within the department, the Heritage Tourism Secretariat works closely with a network of heritage tourism partners in each region and in all sectors.

Regional Operations

A network of six regional offices manage and deliver the Department's programs and services in all regions of the country, following special attention on the specific needs and aspirations of each region. The regional offices provide technical assistance to regional, provincial and local organizations for all departmental programs delivered at regional levels.

Strategic Management Sector

The Strategic Management Sector is responsible for the development and implementation of strategies and instruments in order to manage the Canadian Heritage portfolio in a concerted fashion; to develop a vision and a focussed, coherent policy and planning framework; to set in place management mechanisms that will implement this policy and planning framework and promote the effective integration of vertical and horizontal issues across the Department and Portfolio; to provide the opportunity for the Department to define and stake out its unique role in matters of Canadian Identity.

Communications Branch

The Communications Branch promotes the policies, programs and services of the Department and ensures that the Department is visible, accessible and accountable to the public that it serves; it advises the Department's senior management, sectors and programs on all issues relating to communications with the public, client-groups and the media.

Corporate Review Branch

The Corporate Review Branch evaluates departmental policies, programs and services; it is responsible for independent reviews that help the Department make strategic decisions, improve its operations and fulfill its mandate.

International and Intergovernmental Affairs Branch

The Branch manages policies for all sectors of the Department in the context of bilateral and multilateral relations with other countries — such as negotiation of international agreements on audio visual co-productions, cultural cooperation and participation in organizations such as Unesco and the Council of Europe; it co-ordinates federal-provincial-territorial relations, as well as ministerial and foreign delegation visits related to the Department's mandate.

International Expositions Branch

The International Expositions Branch administers the Canadian Government's International Expositions Program; it represents Canada on the Bureau international des expositions and organizes Canadian participation at those expositions.

La Banque internationale d'information sur les États francophones

La Banque internationale d'information sur les États francophones implements, upgrades and consolidates policies and national information systems of the member states of the Francophonie.

Strategic Planning and Policy Co-ordination Branch

The strategic Planning and Policy Co-ordination Branch co-ordinates the strategic planning process; develops corporate policies; interfaces with agencies and Crown corporations on strategic planning issues; it is also responsible for the Department's Cabinet, parliamentary and regulatory services, strategic research and information analysis. The Branch ensures that the priorities of the Department of Canadian Heritage are in line with those of the federal government, particularly with respect to policies, programs, regulations and acts, and ensures the co-ordination of intersectoral projects.

♦ Canadian Identity Directorate

Classes of Personal Information

In the course of conducting the programs and activities of the Department, categories of personal information may be accumulated which are not contained in the specific personal information banks previously described in this entry. Such personal information includes requests for information and publications, research proposals, expressions of public support, comments and suggestions, requests for funding and assistance, and complaints. This information is stored as part of the general subject files, the records of which are not normally retrievable by name of individual or other personal identifier. Specifics must be provided concerning the subject matter, related program activity, as well as the date on which the information was received by the Department and to whom it was addressed.

The personal information contained in these subject files is retained for the same period of time as the related subject information and is disposed of according to the appropriate subject records schedules.

Book Publishing Industry Development Program

This class of documents contains separate files for each application for funding under the Book Publishing Industry Development Program. Files contain information about the corporate and financial status of the book publishers or industry groups involved. Personal information retained could include citizenship, nationality and other personal and financial information of company presidents, vice-presidents and shareholders. The information is used to determine eligibility for funding under the program. Files are retained for seven years and are then destroyed. (See also Program Records: COM ACI 250 — Book Publishing Industry Development Program).

Canadian Audiovisual Certification

This class of documents contains confidential personal information pertaining to the creative personnel employed in productions which have been submitted for certification to determine the eligibility of the production for the Canadian Film and Video Production tax credit program. It contains names, addresses, citizenship and remuneration paid. Information is not filed by personal identifier, but is filed with application forms for the production. Files are retained for five years and then transferred to National Archives of Canada for selective retention. (See also Program Records: COM ACI 255 — Canadian Audio-Visual Certification Office).

Canadian Heritage Information Network

This class of personal information is pertinent to the collection of museum objects by Canadian museums. The purpose of the information is to create a national inventory of museum collections and to assist museums in managing their collections. The documents may contain references to individuals with whom Canadian museums deal in relation to collecting. Also contained is basic biographical information on Canadian artists. The records are created and supplied by Canadian museums and are maintained as long as is necessary for their management. Contact information is also held about subscribers to CHIN products of services.

Cultural Initiatives Program

This class of personal information contains applications and supporting documentation submitted by cultural organizations seeking financial assistance for their activities. These documents may contain personal information pertaining to the directors and officers of cultural organizations including names and addresses. As well, the curriculum vitae of participants and/or expert advisors to the proposed activity may be held on file. This information is not filed by personal identifier but rather by cultural organization or activity title. This information was compiled to assess applications for funding of projects under the program including management development projects, capital projects and festivals and special events such as national conferences, etc. Records maintained by headquarters are retained for seven years, then transferred to National Archives of Canada for selective retention. Records are also maintained by the Department's Regional Offices which are responsible for the management of the Program.

Insurance Program for Travelling Exhibitions

This class of personal information contains applications and supporting documentation submitted by museums, galleries, archives and libraries seeking insurance coverage for exhibitions which they organize and host. These documents contain the names and addresses of lenders of objects to the exhibition, as well as a description and the monetary value of the objects being loaned. This information is not filed by personal identifier, but rather by title of the exhibition. This information is used to determine the eligibility of the exhibition for insurance coverage through the program and for the preparation of insurance certificates for lenders to the exhibition. Records are retained for seven years, then transferred to the National Archives of Canada for selective retention. (See also Program Records: COM MHP 270 — Travelling Exhibitions: Applications for Insurance).

Canadian Human Rights Commission

Chapter 24

General Information

Background

The Canadian Human Rights Commission was given its mandate with the passage in July, 1977 of the Canadian Human Rights Act. The Act became operative on March 1, 1978.

The Human Rights Tribunal was established in 1978 pursuant to the coming into force of the Canadian Human Rights Act.

Responsibilities

The Commission's program objective is to give effect to the principle that within the federal sphere every individual should have an equal opportunity to participate in Canadian life consistent with his or her duties and obligations as a member of the Canadian society.

Specifically, the Commission deals with complaints of discrimination in employment, in the provision of goods, services, facilities and/or accommodation customarily available to the general public and in the provision of commercial premises or residential accommodation, based on any of the ten prohibited grounds of discrimination enumerated in the Act: race, national or ethnic origin, colour, religion, age, sex, marital status, family status, disability, or conviction of an offense for which a pardon has been granted. The Commission also attempts to resolve cases through the conciliation/settlement process before considering the tribunal process.

The Canadian Human Rights Act prohibits discrimination in policies and practices affecting wages for male and female employees who are performing work of equal value. As a result, the Commission investigates complaints alleging inequities in wage-related practices.

The Commission also monitors annual reports filed by federally-regulated companies under the Employment Equity Act, and where appropriate, initiates compliance actions.

The Commission also has a statutory responsibility to discourage and reduce discriminatory practices through public education, liaison, and any other means it considers appropriate. This responsibility is discharged by producing promotional and educational materials, developing and conducting information programs to foster public understanding of the principles of equal opportunity enshrined in the Canadian Human Rights Act, and by working cooperatively with employers and service providers both at the headquarters and regional levels.

The Commission functions as an independent agency and reports to Parliament through the Minister of Justice.

The Human Rights Tribunal is a quasi-judicial entity established in 1978 under the Canadian Human Rights Act. The Human Rights Tribunal hears discrimination cases and determines whether there has been a breach of the Canadian Human Rights Act. The tribunal has jurisdiction over matters that fall under the legislative power of the Government of Canada. It inquires into complaints filed against federal departments, banks, airlines and other organizations regulated by the federal government. All cases must be referred to the Human Rights Tribunal by the Commission. Although the Human Rights Commission and the Tribunal were established under the same Act, the two organizations are separate and independent of one another.

Organization

The Commission is headed by the Chief Commissioner who has deputy minister status. In this role, he is supported by the Deputy Chief Commissioner who has assistant deputy minister status and the Secretary General. There are eight operational and administrative branches at headquarters: Executive Secretariat, Legal Services, Anti-Discrimination Programs, Employment and Pay Equity Programs, Communications, Policy and Planning, Corporate Services and Personnel Services. In addition to the aforementioned, there are also six regional offices and the Canadian Human Rights Tribunal.

The Human Rights Tribunal is headed by the President of the Human Rights Tribunal Panel, who is the principal administrator. The Panel consists of the President and about one hundred part-time members. All Panel members are appointed by order of the Governor-in-Council upon recommendation by the Minister of Justice. All the tribunal's administrative activities are carried out by the Tribunal Registry.

◆ Anti-Discrimination Programs Branch

The Branch ensures that all complaints filed with the Commission, except those dealing with employment and pay equity, are investigated in accordance with the Canadian Human Rights Act. The Branch also provides a quality assurance function and conciliation services, trains staff involved in anti-discrimination activities, and monitors the complaints management process. This Branch now comprises two new units: the Complaints and Investigations Directorate receives inquiries and complaints in the national capital and investigates these complaints; and the Policy Complaints Unit investigates major policy-based complaints.

◆ Communications Branch

This Branch explains the role and activities of the Commission, fosters public understanding of the Act and human rights issues, and discourages discriminatory practices by means of information programs, contact with the media, and activities in the community. Publications include a vast array of products such as a human rights journal, new releases, speeches, brochures and posters all regarding human rights issues and most available in alternative formats. The Commission's human rights communications functions and activities are summarized in an annual report to Parliament.

◆ Corporate Services Branch

This Branch provides the Commission with support services in assets management, finance, informatics, information management, library, and editorial services. This Branch is also responsible for delivering the Commission's Access to Information and Privacy programs.

◆ Employment and Pay Equity Branch

This Branch provides policy advice to the Commission on employment and pay equity matters and offers educational programs to employers and community groups. The Employment Equity Directorate investigates and conciliates employment equity complaints and conducts joint reviews with employers. The Pay Equity Directorate investigates, negotiates, and conciliates equal pay complaints.

◆ Executive Secretariat Branch

This Branch is responsible for preparing executive correspondence, for coordinating briefing materials, and for providing support to the Commission's executive offices. It also plays an important role in the complaints processing system and in coordinating the Commission's strategic planning activities.

◆ Legal Services Branch

This Branch advises the Chief Commissioner, Commission members, and staff on all legal matters falling within the jurisdiction of the Commission. To this end, legal officers represent the Commission in proceedings before Human Rights Tribunals or courts of law.

◆ Personnel Services Branch

This Branch provides the Commission with support services in pay and benefits, staffing, classification, official languages, staff relations, training and resource planning, and health and safety.

◆ Policy and Planning Branch

This Branch monitors domestic and international human rights issues of interest to the Commission and develops policy papers and positions for the Commission's approval.

◆ Regional Offices

The Regional Offices investigate all discrimination complaints except those dealing with employment and pay equity. They also work with community representatives, employers, and unions to inform the public of their rights under the Canadian Human Rights Act.

◆ Tribunal Registry

The Tribunal Registry is the main office of the Human Rights Tribunal responsible for its general administration. It handles the administration of the various tribunals set up under the Act and provides all services related to their operation. The Registry is composed of a registrar and support staff who are all public service employees.

Canadian International Development Agency

Chapter 25

General Information

Background

The Canadian International Development Agency (CIDA) supports the sustainable development in developing countries in order to reduce poverty and to contribute to a more secure, equitable and prosperous world.

Responsibilities

CIDA is the federal agency responsible for implementing Canada's Official Development Assistance (ODA) program and for administering most of the ODA budget. CIDA's aid program is administered through a number of aid delivery channels: bilateral (government-to-government) assistance, multilateral development institutions, and supports the development activities of non-governmental organizations (NGOs) and the private sector.

Legislation

- Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade
- Financial Administration Act
- International Development (Financial Institutions) Continuing Assistance Act

Organization

The Agency is headed by the President who reports directly to the Minister of International Cooperation and Minister responsible for la Francophonie. The President is assisted by the Secretary General, nine vice-presidents and a director general. These branches are: Africa and Middle East, Americas, Asia, Central and Eastern Europe, Canadian Partnership, Multilateral Programs, Policy, Corporate Management and Personnel and Administration and Communications.

The Corporate Secretariat is responsible for the coordination of four executive committees and forums, the executive correspondence and requests received under the Access to Information and Privacy Acts. It is also responsible for the activities related to Parliamentary Relations.

♦ Africa and Middle East Branch

CIDA's Africa and Middle East Branch is headed by a Vice-President and is sub-divided in six divisions: West Africa, North Africa and Middle East, Eastern Africa, Central Africa and Pan-African Program, Southern Africa, and Strategic Planning and Management.

The policies and strategies developed for cooperation with Africa and the Middle East complement the foreign policy objectives and the specific mandate of CIDA, in particular poverty reduction and the promotion of peace and security.

Central Africa:

The general objective of CIDA's programs in the region is to promote economic development, to protect the environment and to promote human rights and democratic development. The region includes eight countries.

Only Cameroon has a traditional bilateral program, which focuses on private sector development and management of forestry resources and the promotion of human rights and democratic development. A much smaller program in Gabon finances a project of technical education and another in rural electrification.

A Canada Fund for Local Initiatives is active in each country to help support the realization of small-scale projects.

Eastern Africa:

The general objective of CIDA'S programs in the Eastern Africa region is to promote regional security and peace, through our support to basic human needs and by promoting democratic development and the protection of human rights. The region consists of sixteen countries and includes Eastern Africa, the Great Lakes area and the Horn of Africa.

A large part of CIDA's activities in the region consist of humanitarian assistance and food aid for those populations affected by food shortages or conflicts, more particularly in Rwanda, Burundi and the Horn of Africa.

A Canada Fund for Local Initiatives is active in each country to help support the realization of small-scale projects.

North Africa and Middle East Region:

CIDA's program in this region supports three themes: economic reform, environmental sustainability, and capacity building.

Sustainable development is an engine for building social stability and political harmony, contributing directly to the efforts made to reach a lasting peace in the region. To promote sustainable development in the region, the Canadian aid program aims to support the transition to an economy based on market forces as well as an equitable distribution of wealth; to strengthen the capacity of key public institutions; to promote the sustainable management of natural resources, especially water; to help support newly empowered segments of civil society meet new social, political and economic challenges; and to favour the emergence and consolidation of mutually beneficial partnerships between Canada and the region.

Southern Africa Region:

Southern Africa is composed of 11 countries, of which, Malawi, Mozambique, South Africa, Zambia and Zimbabwe constitute the main countries of concentration for CIDA's Southern Africa Program. Some of the region's major development challenges include: the environment, poverty, education, health (especially HIV/AIDS), the status of women, population migration, good governance, democratic development, human rights, regional cooperation and economic reform.

CIDA's priorities for the region are to allocate 35% of its budget to basic human needs, particularly targeting women and children; to encourage economic reform and employment creation by supporting the region's private sector; to protect the environment and promote sound management of the natural resource base; to provide direct support for democratic development, good governance and human rights; to support regional cooperation and security through regional programming; to place special emphasis on HIV/AIDS with particular emphasis on its impact on women; and responding to humanitarian needs, including food shortages caused by drought.

Strategic Planning and Management:

The Strategic Planning and Management Division provides advice and managerial support to the Branch in the identification, planning and implementation of programs and projects; and coordinates corporate studies and exercises on behalf of the Branch. The Division also provides technical expertise in certain sectors.

Strategic planning Unit elaborates and evaluates the policies, programs and systems which allow the Branch to fulfill its mandate and provides advice and support to the Branch in regard to the Agency's development priorities. The unit is responsible for performance review and results-based management and undertakes strategic planning functions for some technical sectors.

Strategic management responsibilities and services include the planning and management of human resources; informatics systems and information management and ensures that such systems are coherent and consistent with other branches in the Agency. The Unit is also responsible for the financial analysis and management, including internal audit; program allocations and budgets; contracting; work plans; and other management and administrative systems.

West Africa Region:

West Africa is a region of rapid population growth. Despite the vitality and adaptability of its people, this region will probably remain imbalanced for an extended period, and will be subject to great political, economic, social and environmental tension for several decades to come. To deal with this problem, the regional policy framework for West Africa (covering nine multi-year bilateral programs, one subregional program, and seven other non-program countries) pursues the objective of helping to reduce poverty among the people of the region by supporting social and economic change to a better balance between population, economics and the environment.

Socially, the poverty reduction strategy aims to facilitate greater community ownership of the development process, primarily through support for basic education (with emphasis on girls), combatting AIDS, improved access to drinking water, and supporting the strengthening of civil society, the rule of law, and decentralization.

Economically, the strategy focuses on increasing people's incomes through support for the economic development of urban communities, the professionalization of agriculture in rural communities, increased trade between urban and rural areas (both nationally and regionally), and greater access to regional infrastructure services that are essential to economic activities.

Environmentally, the strategy emphasizes fishery resource protection and management, water resource management and, general support for the countries of the region in implementing the International Convention to Combat Desertification.

◆ Americas Branch

The Americas Region consists of 35 developing countries which three program delivery and administrative purposes are organized by the Branch into the Caribbean, Central America including Haiti and Cuba, South America and Policy, Planning and Strategic Management. The region is highly diverse geographically, developmentally, and with respect to resource distribution. CIDA supports development activities that promote a politically stable, economically liberal and socially equitable region, free of environmental degradation.

Sectors of involvement include agriculture, economic development, environment, forestry, fisheries, transport, energy, health, education and telecommunications. Activities in the area of social development, institutional support, and industrial co-operation can be funded through Bilateral, Multilateral, and Partnership channels and implemented by Non-Governmental Organizations (NGOs), Non-Governmental Institutions (NGIs), and private enterprise. CIDA also supports small development projects in almost all countries through the Canada Fund for Local Initiatives (CFLIs).

Caribbean Program: comprises the Commonwealth Caribbean, Haiti and Cuba:

The Commonwealth Caribbean program assists the Caribbean countries in becoming more competitive in an increasingly liberalized global economy, and in strengthening their environmental management capabilities. The program emphasizes support to projects that promote regional cooperation and integration to increase self-reliance, and that facilitate access to other regional markets. The Program focuses primarily on the countries of Jamaica, Guyana and the Eastern Caribbean islands of Grenada, St. Vincent and the Grenadines, Dominica, St. Lucia, Antigua, Barbuda, St. Kitts/Nevis, and Monserrat. There are also small bilateral programs in Trinidad and Tobago, Barbados and Belize, with the CFLI in the British Virgin Islands, Anguilla, and the Dominican Republic.

In addition to food aid, the Haiti program aims to ensure electrical production as well as to consolidate democracy and strengthen civil society.

The Cuba program aims to provide assistance to the ongoing economic reform process.

Central America Program:

CIDA's current bilateral program covers Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, Guatemala and El Salvador. Panama and Mexico receive assistance through the Canada Fund for Local Initiatives. The program is targeted toward the poorest countries and also supports the establishment of a lasting peace in countries emerging from prolonged civil conflicts. The objectives of the program are to support poverty alleviation through income-generating activities and the development of a more productive private sector; and to promote human rights and democratic development. Sustainable development of natural resources remains a principal objective as well.

Policy, Planning and Strategic Management:

The Policy, Planning and Strategic Management Division provides support and guidance to the Branch regarding the Agency's major development priorities which are basic human needs, environment, women in development, human rights, democracy and good governance, infrastructure and private sector development.

This Division also provides technical expertise and managerial support to the Branch in the identification, planning and implementation of programs and projects. Services include human resource planning, information systems, financial analysis and risk assessment, performance review, management by result, contracting, management and administration systems.

South America Program:

The principal activities are to assist in the alleviation of poverty; to support the recovery of key sectors of the economy; to assist in strengthening the capacities of the key institutions; and to support the cooperative efforts of Latin American Institutions. The program concentrates its bilateral activities in the poorest countries of Ecuador, Peru, and Bolivia. Other countries receiving development assistance are Brazil, Colombia and through the regional program to Argentina, Chile, Uruguay, and Paraguay.

♦ Asia Branch

The principal role of Asia Branch is to plan, develop and implement Canada's aid program in Asia and to match Canadian capabilities with recipient country needs.

Under the direction of a vice-president, Asia Branch comprises seven geographic programs. Each program is responsible for the management of aid development cooperation activities with one or several recipient countries, as well as the relationship of these programs with Canadian interests.

The complexities and evolving differences within Asia have meant that Asia Branch has had to adapt its programs to these changing realities. Asia Branch therefore provides support along the full range of development continuum, from direct grassroots poverty reduction to helping governments improve economic and social policy frameworks, to helping Asian private sectors access expertise and technology from the Canadian private sector. In specific countries where economic growth is strong, Asia Branch is re-orienting its programs away from a traditional focus on direct poverty reduction to one that sets the stage for mutually beneficial economic co-operation. In doing so, special attention is given to promoting sustained growth with equity, and to reinforce national and regional security through support to better governance, democratic development and human rights activities.

The program is composed of projects throughout Asia under implementation by contractors, consultants, non-governmental organizations (NGOs) and individual cooperants. There are approximately 260 ongoing projects, concentrated in basic human needs (health and family planning, nutrition, water and sanitation), in agriculture, rural development, environment, energy, institution building, human resources development, and social development.

Geographic Program Divisions:

Program Divisions are responsible for the management of cooperation activities with one or more recipients as well as the relationship of these programs with Canadian interests. The Program Divisions are: Indochina (including Vietnam), Thailand, Malaysia Division, Indonesia, Philippines and the South Pacific Division, Asean and Regional Program Division, India, Sri Lanka and Nepal Division, Bangladesh Division, Pakistan and Afghanistan Division, and China Division.

Policy and Planning Division:

The Policy and Planning Division provides guidance to the branch in concert with Agency corporate functions. The division's three main areas of activities are policy development, communications and stakeholder relations. Policy research, leading to the identification of issues and development of policy, is the basis for the formulation of coherent strategic plans, which are linked to the agenda of Policy Branch the Agency's planning system. The division also develops and implements consultation and communications strategies with Canadian stakeholders.

Technical and Strategic Management Division:

The division provides technical expertise and managerial support to the branch in the identification, planning and implementation of programs and projects. Technical expertise is available in various disciplines. The division provides technical expertise and management services to the branch in the identification, planning and management of programs and projects. Technical expertise is provided in the areas of financial management, contracting and contracting management, management systems and practices, human resource management and information technology and management.

Services include human resource planning, information systems, financial analysis and risk assessment, contracting, management systems and administration.

♦ Canadian Partnership Branch

The Canadian Partnership Branch (CPB) manages CIDA's relationships with the myriad of Canadian groups and firms involved in development activities worldwide. The mandate of CPB is to encourage the formation of partnerships between organizations in Canada and developing countries. These partners, who have common interests, implement mutually beneficial projects within a perspective of sustainable development.

The programs of the Canadian Partnership Branch respond to initiatives from outside CIDA, in accordance with Canada's foreign policy priorities. CIDA's partners, supported by CPB, assume full responsibility for implementing their projects. The excellence of their work constitutes CPB's main concern. The funds available to CPB represent approximately 16 percent of CIDA's resource envelope.

The Canadian Partnership Branch deals directly with communities of organizations and individuals, both in Canada and abroad. Partners generally fall into the following categories: private businesses and associations, educational institutions, non-governmental development organizations (NGOs), organizations specializing in sending volunteers abroad, Crown corporations and provincial organizations, municipalities, professional associations, co-operatives, unions, environmental groups.

The Canadian Partnership Branch is divided into four specialized divisions to deal with its diverse partners. The Industrial Co-operation Program Division, the Institutional Co-operation Division, the Non-Governmental Organizations (NGO) Division, and the Policy, Strategic Planning and Operations Division.

Industrial Cooperation Program Division:

This division provides financial support to projects proposed by Canadian businesses and implemented by private-sector partners in developing countries. In this way, the business communities of developing countries gain access to the technologies, capital and skills that are urgently needed to strengthen their economic and industrial growth.

The projects are carried out in a context of sustainable development and are mutually beneficial. Depending on the scope of the activities or the geographic preference of a business, the proposals are handled by the Division's Africa, Americas or Asia Bureaus, which operate within the same criteria.

Institutional Cooperation Division:

The Institutional Cooperation Division seeks to ensure effective participation by Canadian institutions and associations wishing to become involved in international development. Financial support is provided to multi-year programs and projects proposed by Canadian universities, colleges, cooperatives, associations and unions, and implemented by partner institutions in developing countries. The division is also responsible for technical cooperation, notable scholarship programs and programs for foreign trainees in Canada.

The division's activities are organized into the following three programs: Educational Institutions Program; Cooperatives, Unions and Professional Associations, and Membership Program; and Scholarships, Environment and Institution Program.

The Educational Institutions Program focuses on the overseas development-related activities of Canadian post-secondary institutions, providing support through two distinct channels: the Universities Program and the Colleges and CEGEP Program.

The Cooperatives, Unions and Professional and Membership Associations Program encourages activities in developing countries of Canadian cooperatives and unions, through a distinct Cooperative Program and a Unions Program.

The Professional and Membership Associations Program (PMAP) supports the initiatives of a variety of Canadian professional groups to improve the capacities of similar organizations in developing countries. With new information technologies, there is considerable scope for increased professional volunteer input. Some potential exists for private sector commercial spin-offs. It also supports Canadian institutions working in the areas of public-sector capacity building including the municipal level, and in governance and human rights. Overall objectives are to promote democratic development, to improve the capacity of developing country governments to develop policies favouring equitable and sustainable economic growth, and to facilitate regional cooperation. The program also supports the Election Assistance Program including partners like Elections Canada, Foreign Affairs and CIDA to support activities focusing on the improvement of the electoral process in developing countries.

The Scholarships, Environment and Institution Program promotes the capacity building of developing countries to impact on democratic development, the rule of law and human rights, the environment and the full participation of women as equal partners. The program supports the development of international partnerships and the internationalization of Canadian culture, values and expertise; the internationalization of Canadian Environmental NGOs' knowledge and expertise to strengthen the environmental capacity of developing countries to promote change towards ecologically sound development; the administration of various fellowship and awards programs financed by CIDA, as well as regulations and policies governing the selection and recruitment of technical assistance co-operant/experts and in-country trainees.

International NGO and Professional and Membership Associations Program:

The INGO program has a strong policy and operational focus on civil society and governance. The program supports global networks of national and local non-governmental organizations involved in development issues of importance to Canada, including human rights, democracy, the environment and population. The INGO program is a major "knowledge" contributor to CIDA in these areas. Canadian organizations that are members of INGO networks benefit through information exchanges.

Non-Governmental Organizations Division:

CIDA especially encourages the implementation of projects and programs whose objective is community development, by establishing partnerships between Canadian NGOs and NGOs in developing countries. In this perspective, the Non-Governmental Organizations Division provides a portion of the funding needed to carry out the NGOs' programs and projects. Various mechanisms are in place for funding activities abroad, including programs, projects, programs for sending volunteers, transition funds, and International NGOs (INGOs).

Support is also provided to global networks of national and local NGOs interested in development issues that are important to Canada, notably human rights, democracy, the environment, and population.

Policy, Strategic Planning and Operations Division:

This Division performs various functions essential to the internal management and operation of the Canadian Partnership Branch.

Policy and Strategic Planning area develops and evaluates the policies, programs and systems that allow the Canadian Partnership Branch to fulfill its mandate. It also provides social issues/thematic guidance in areas such as HRD, WID and the Environment. It is also responsible for results-based management and performance review for the Branch.

The management operational functions of the branch comprise technical services, financial management, information management, human resource development, and administration.

External relations and consultations unit plans, co-ordinates and organizes CIDA's consultations and is one of the Agency's chief intermediaries with stakeholders in development communities, partners, and other departments. This unit is one of CIDA's major interfaces with stakeholders, partners and other government departments, scheduling, coordinating and organizing stakeholder consultations on behalf of all operational CIDA branches. It is also responsible for ensuring the link with Canada's regions by answering information requests received through the Canada Business Service Centres, for which each province has created a 1-800 information line. The unit also maintains contact with local NGOs, with service groups active in development, and with universities and other local partners through the consultation process.

♦ Central and Eastern Europe

Information on bilateral technical cooperation program, regional cooperation programs, humanitarian assistance program, multilateral program, Peace and Democracy program, Information on Project Review Committee; global and country budget allocations; information material for the public; evaluation reports on the program, documents to central agencies.

Central and Eastern Europe Division:

This division administers Canada's technical cooperation program with the countries of central and eastern Europe. Full-scale cooperation programs are being implemented in the Czech Republic, Estonia, Hungary, Latvia, Lithuania, Poland, Romania and Slovakia. For each of these countries, Canada has a specially tailored technical cooperation program, which concentrates Canadian cooperation in a limited number of sectors, matching Canada's comparative advantage with the priority needs of recipient countries. Priority sectors in these countries include private-sector development, management education, and good governance and democratic development. The remaining countries in Central and Eastern Europe, the non-program countries, are eligible for responsive Canadian technical cooperation projects. For initiatives that address the common needs of two or more countries, regional technical cooperation programs have been established.

The program focuses on human resource development, institution building and the provision of policy advice. In addition to large-scale training projects, there are several "People-to-People" initiatives intended to respond to Canadian volunteers interested in assisting the region.

Former Soviet Union Division:

The Former Soviet Union Division administers Canada's technical cooperation program with the countries of the former Soviet Union. Full-scale cooperation programs are being implemented in Russia, Ukraine and Kazakhstan. Other countries of the former Soviet Union are also eligible for project funding on a responsible basis and through regional programs which address the priorities of a number of countries in the former Soviet Union.

The program builds on Canadian expertise and common experiences in response to the priorities in the recipient country. In private sector development, the program focuses on linking the economies of the region with the global economy, creating an enabling environment for the region. Democratic development initiatives include strengthening of democratic institutions, development of professional public service, and supporting good governance. The program is also involved in the revitalization of key sectors of the economy, such as energy and agriculture, through privatization and restructuring, and legal and regulatory reform. Drawing on Canada's common experiences, the former Soviet Union Division is also contributing to projects which assist in aboriginal and economic development in the north, and the environment. Countries in the former Soviet Union are also eligible for assistance through the Canadian Nuclear Safety Initiative, which seeks to enhance nuclear safety through improved operation of nuclear plants, regulatory assistance and utility management.

Policy, Planning and Multilateral Division:

The Division is responsible for activities with multilateral organizations. These include United Nations organizations and the Red Cross, which provide humanitarian assistance throughout the region, and international financial institutions such as the World Bank and the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development (EBRD), that manage trust funds dedicated to the project planning activities of these banks; and other multilateral organizations such as the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) and Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE).

The division is also responsible for making recommendations on, and carrying out, a wide range of branch support functions: strategic and sectoral planning, program allocations and budgeting, corporate planning, performance review, personnel management/staffing, professional development/training, branch operations and administration.

◆ Communications Branch

As the Agency's responsibility centre for Communications, the Branch ensures the delivery of a range of support to CIDA in achieving the communications objectives of policies and programs, assessing major issues and determining CIDA's response.

The Branch comprises two programs:

Corporate, which informs Canadians about CIDA's programs and activities, and provides communications support to the Minister, Secretaries of State and the President. It develops and implements communications strategies, monitors and assesses public opinion through media analysis and public opinion polling, and produces and delivers information products and services.

The Communications Branch's Development Information Program works in partnership with non-governmental and private sector organizations to provide Canadians with information on development issues with a special emphasis on the important role and unique contribution Canadians make in developing countries. The Program is built on establishing sustainable partnerships with organizations and firms that specialize in public awareness and have access to communications vehicles across television, radio, print and new media.

◆ Corporate Management Branch

The mandate of the Branch is divided in two main parts: promote continuous improvement in management within CIDA and provide a range of efficient, effective and client-driven support services. The Branch provides financial and information management advice, related systems and services, informatics and telecommunications support services, performance review services and legal services (available through the Department of Justice). The Branch is also responsible for developing and applying contracting and procurement policies, and for ensuring the integrity and effectiveness of these processes. It also plays a key role in acquiring expertise, establishing mechanisms, and adopting new practices in areas such as results-based management, corporate planning, and information management.

Finance and Contracting Division:

Finance is responsible for a number of Agency financial services. It develops, interprets, and maintains Agency financial management practices and systems; provides specialized contract and contribution audit services; operates a financial risk assessment unit; and investigates allegations or suspicions of losses of money. Finance also provided a number of additional services including resource management; corporate planning; financial reporting; budgetary control; financial training; accounting operations; accounts verification services and information support, and Financial Management Advisor (FMA) services to services branches. Finance also co-ordinates relations with the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade (DFAIT) regarding the Agency's representation in the field.

Contracting Management is responsible for developing, devising and disseminating appropriate contracting policies, processes, reporting mechanisms and quality assurance systems necessary to demonstrate and ensure the integrity and transparency of CIDA contracting activities. Contracting Management consists of the following three groups: Strategic Policy and Information Management, External Business Relations and Corporate Contracting Operations.

Information Management and Technology Division:

Responsible for providing corporate informatics support services associated with information management, information technology and office automation. As with most organizations today informatics represents a significant strategic investment for CIDA in its internal, domestic and international operations. As an organization, IMTD is charged with maximizing the benefits of information spending within CIDA and providing high quality services to the program delivery and administrative branches.

Legal Services Division:

Provides a full array of client driven legal services to CIDA. It provides legal advice, drafting services for all legal documents, negotiation support and ensures proper representation and instructions in all litigation matters. It provides proactive services in the area of identifying legal trends, analyzing court cases which affect the Agency, presenting seminars and workshops on areas of law to increase the Agency's legal awareness. It participates as part of CIDA's committees, task forces, review functions and ensures timely input to policy decisions. It is headed by a General Counsel who responds to the President directly and reports to the Department of Justice.

Performance Review Division:

Responsible for the evaluation and internal audit functions. It prepares a corporate-level performance review plan and reports on the results of reviews, evaluations, internal audits and synthesis studies to the Performance Review Committee (Executive Committee with Observers from the Office of the Auditor General (OAG) and Treasury Board). It sets the standards for performance assessment at the branch level. PRD liaises with Treasury Board, other donors on matters related to evaluation and audit. It is responsible for co-ordinating audit activities performance within the Agency by the OAG. A results based management section provides coordination to the implementation of results based management across the Agency.

◆ Multilateral Programs Branch

CIDA funds for multilateral programs are channelled through United Nations agencies and other international development organizations. In addition, CIDA and the Department of Finance provide funds to international financial institutions such as the regional development banks and the World Bank. While the organizations are responsible for the administration of projects, Canada participates in their governing bodies to ensure that the organizations are operating within appropriate policy and operational guidelines, and that they meet Canada's interests and those of the international community as a whole. The Multilateral Branch is composed of the following five divisions.

Financial Institutions Division:

The division develops and maintains the international financial institutions as mechanisms for development financing. It provides guarantees (i.e., callable capital) to facilitate the recycling of private capital resources for development financing, and in so doing multiplies the availability of such financing. The funds are provided to regional development banks. The division participates with other departments in the management of Canadian assistance provided through the Department of Finance to the World Bank Group. It ensures that the international financial institutions (IFIs) are managed in a manner to maintain their credit worthiness in the international capital markets. The division is also responsible for the management of Canadian assistance provided to the Global Environment Facility, the Multilateral Fund for the Implementation of the Montreal Protocol, and the International Fund for Agricultural Development. The division fosters policies within the IFIs that are consistent with the developmental and humanitarian principles of Canadian foreign policy.

Food Aid Centre:

The centre is responsible for the CIDA food aid program, programs related to the Consultative group for international Agricultural Research and issues related to nutrition. The centre manages Canada's input to the World Food Program of the United Nations; develops food aid policy; prepares and processes submissions seeking project approval from the food aid budget; co-ordinates the planning of food aid activities in consultation with other operating branches; initiates discussions on and participates in the process of food aid budget reallocations, in consultation with other operating branches during the fiscal year. The centre provides a co-ordinating role within CIDA in policy and program discussions concerning food aid with Treasury Board, the department of Foreign Affairs, Agriculture Canada, Finance, the World Food Program, the Canadian Wheat Board, the Canadian Dairy Commission and food producers and processors. The centre provides professional services to the Agency in the field of nutrition and co-ordinates the Agency's input to the Food and Agriculture Organization, and the International Grain Council.

International Humanitarian Assistance Program:

The division provides financial support for efforts to alleviate human suffering caused by natural and human-caused disasters abroad. This assistance is normally channelled through international institutions and Canadian and international non-governmental organizations involved in such work. Grants are given in support of the programs of three major institutions: the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, the United Nations Relief and Work Agency for Palestinian Refugees, and the International Committee of the Red Cross. Grants are also given in support of special appeals launched by these and other humanitarian institutions, including Canadian NGOs specializing in relief work. To ensure the flexibility needed by an emergency response mechanism, a policy of providing largely untied international human assistance program grants is maintained.

Management and Planning Division:

The division is responsible for Branch management processes and issues, work planning, resources and budgetary allocations, computerized systems, information management and administrative services and for coherence and consistency with other branches on these issues.

Multilateral Technical Co-operation Division:

The Division is responsible for promoting Canadian development policies in, and supporting the efficient and effective operation of multilateral technical cooperation organizations involved in enhancing the human and institutional capabilities of developing countries. These organizations include UN bodies such as the UN Development Program, UNICEF, the World Health Organization and the UN Fund for Population, plus institutions of the Commonwealth and the Francophonie.

◆ Personnel and Administration Branch

Provides advice, strategies, programs, systems and services in the areas of human resources management, administrative services and security to assist the Agency in accomplishing its mission. This includes guidance and support to management and staff to develop and maintain a qualified, productive and sustainable workforce and an enabling work environment that promotes continuous learning and organizational effectiveness.

Administrative and Security Services Division:

provides the Agency with full service in these two sectors. It specifically involves telecommunications, office and work place organization, storage, maintenance and repair of physical property, audio visual services, procurement, room reservation system, graphics and desktop publishing services, production of administrative notices and bulletins, mail services, and general security. The Division also provides internal management services, such as planning allocation, information and data processing.

Continuous Learning Division:

meets corporate needs and chiefly support development, delivery, validation and evaluation of in-house and external training activities and programs. The Division also manages the Learning Centre as well as official and foreign languages training.

Corporate Personnel Operations Division:

handles the operational and corporate needs of the Agency that must be met.

The Division handles the development of human resources operational programs and policies, EX classification and staffing competitions to meet corporate needs, workforce adjustment, counselling services, union-management relations, employment equity, official languages, compensation and benefits, occupational safety and health, and temporary help (employment agency personnel).

Human Resources Services Centres:

The two Human Resources Services Centres are responsible for providing personnel related branch specific operational needs.

A Human Resource Advisor is assigned to one or two Agency branches. The Advisor is responsible for providing or obtaining the required strategic and operational services (liaison, advice, assistance, brokerage), both at management and employee level.

Personnel services are offered in the following fields of expertise: staffing, classification, organizational analysis, human resources planning, official languages, training plans, staff relations and employment equity.

Strategic Policy and Planning Division:

ensure that the human resources and administration policy framework is consistent, complete and appropriate, and develops policies as needed. The Division is responsible for programs intended to mobilize employees, manage employee performance and create a supportive work environment including co-ordinating the Human Resources Strategy, the Employee Survey and other initiatives that form part of the Renewal Plan.

The Division is responsible for co-ordinating the branch strategic and work planning processes, for directing the development and implementation of human resource information systems for the Personnel and Administration Branch.

The Assignments Management Centre:

is responsible for the annual posting and the annual reintegration/ deployment exercises, liaison with field representatives, secondments, spousal employment assistance, internal and external assignments, leave, and career development programs.

◆ Policy Branch

Policy Branch's mandate is twofold: (1) to provide advice to the Minister and the President of CIDA on long-term and immediate development policy and strategic issues; and (2) to formulate and maintain the corporate development policy base for the Agency within the general context of CIDA's mission and Canada's foreign policy.

Chief Economist and Economic Development and Poverty Reduction Division:

The Division is responsible for contributing to the Agency's policy base on economic development and poverty reduction including private-sector development in developing countries. It provides advice to the President, senior management and program branches on economic and poverty issues related to Official Development Assistance and contributes to CIDA's inputs into Canadian positions at the World Bank and International Monetary Fund Executive Board meetings. The Division also represents the Agency at interdepartmental and international fora addressing economic issues regarding developing countries including trade and debt. The Division houses specialists in telecommunication/information and in transportation / infrastructures services.

Environment and Natural Resources Division:

The Division functions as an integrated unit promoting and supporting Agency efforts in environment and natural resource management and is responsible for the formulation and implementation of environmental policy and legislation (Canadian Environmental Assessment Act) and sector guidelines in agriculture, forestry, fisheries, water, and energy. The Division provides analysis and advice on environmental sustainability and natural resources issues to CIDA's programs, senior management and the Minister. It also provides support by developing procedures, technical guides, training programs, and other tools to assist CIDA's operational branches to comply with environmental assessment legislation, regulations, standards, policies and international commitments. The Division also monitors and advises the Agency on environmental assessment compliance, through the Environmental Assessment and Compliance Unit (YEA), and on issues involving scientific and technical knowledge and practice. The Division represents the Agency in national and international fora addressing environmental and natural resources sustainability in developing countries and corporate level scientific and technical questions.

International Development Information Centre:

The Centre is responsible for managing the development information resources of the Agency. These resources services include the data used in reporting to international organizations and in CIDA's Annual Report, Corporate Memory, the Technical Cooperation Data Unit, sectoral documentation and substantial collections of monographs, reference works, periodicals, CD-ROMs, archival material and World and Asian Development Bank(s) documents. In addition to the general information requests, the Centre's services include loans, inter-library loans, purchases of volumes or periodicals, bibliographic services and external databases.

Policy Branch -Policy Directorate:

The Policy Directorate is responsible for the Strategic Planning and Policy Coordination Divisions and the International Development Information Centre.

Policy Coordination Division:

The Division promotes consistency and coherence in development policy at all levels in CIDA through dialogue and information exchange with CIDA's other branches. It is also responsible for relations with other donor countries and with Crown Corporations involved in Official Development Assistance (ODA) such as the International Development Research Centre (IDRC), International Centre for Human Rights and Democratic Development (ICHRDD), and International Institute for Sustainable Development (IISD). On behalf of the Agency, the Policy Coordination Division responds to urgent requests from the Minister and the President of CIDA.

Political and Social Policies Division:

The Division is responsible for articulating CIDA's policy and good practices on political, social and cultural aspects of development including basic human needs, human rights, democratic development, good governance, social dimensions and public sector reform. The division houses specialists in education, health and population who are responsible for maintaining a policy framework in their areas and for providing corporate information as well as strategic and tactical advice. The Division is also responsible for encouraging more effective development programs through its focus on enhancing the ability of developing countries to identify and address their own problems (the concept of capacity development).

Strategic Planning Division:

The Division is responsible for matters relating to the Official Development Assistance (ODA) budget eligibility, the Agency's corporate planning cycle and longer term strategic analysis and planning and for relations with the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development's Development Assistance Committee and Development Centre.

Women in Development (WID) and Gender Equity Division:

The Division is responsible for the development of CIDA's WID Policy; the development of mechanisms to incorporate gender-specific issues into CIDA's management and planning systems; participation in conferences on WID; management of information on WID and Gender Equity issues, particularly the lessons drawn from WID policy implementation in developing countries; and contribution to Agency knowledge base on WID and Gender Equity.

Kenya

Description: The main areas of intervention are human resource development, education, agriculture, and rural development. One important new initiative is a project encouraging gender equity. Support is also provided to rural development and community health care programs, as well as well as to an AIDS program. Several local organizations and community groups are supported through the Canada Fund for Local Initiatives. Program Record Number: IDA BFK 524

Lesotho

Description: CIDA's current assistance program concentrates on human resource development. One scholarship fund is currently in operation. Benefits through the regional program focus on agriculture, energy and human resource sectors. Program Record Number: IDA BFA 554

Liberia

Description: Canada does not have a bilateral program or a Canada Fund with Liberia. Canada has contributed several million dollars in humanitarian and food aid to the region since the beginning of the civil war. It is anticipated that a Canada Fund will be reestablished when the civil war ends. Program Record Number: IDA BFF 558

Madagascar

Description: Assistance for small projects is provided through the Canada Fund for Local Initiatives and number of scholarships for studies at Canadian colleges and universities are provided through "les bourses de la francophonie". Madagascar also receives some assistance through Canadian NGOs, institutions and private businesses from CIDA's Partnership Branch and receives support for educational and training institutions through the regional Francophone Africa technological institution building program. Program Record Number: IDA BFK 590

Malawi

Description: Malawi is one of the target countries for CIDA in Southern Africa. Programming priorities include basic human needs, education, health, AIDS/HIV, human rights, good governance, support for women, economic reform, private sector support and the environment. Malawi also realizes significant benefits from CIDA multi-country (regional) projects for the Southern Africa region. Program Record Number: IDA BFA 594

Mali

Description: In recent years, the main areas of intervention have been support for structural adjustment, economic reform and the private sector, grassroots development and the environment, infrastructure development, human resource development, food balance and considerable support for the democratic process. A multi-year food aid program has been established to support Mali's balance of payments. Mali benefits from several regional bilateral projects, including regional telecommunications project, the Senegal River Development Organization, and the AIDS program. The bilateral program will focus on the internalization of reforms, administrative modernization and human resource development, particularly through basic education. Administrative decentralization and social communication will also be favoured. CIDA also funds several NGO activities, and small projects through the Canada Fund. Program Record Number: IDA BFF 608

Mauritania

Description: The current program in Mauritania consists essentially of numerous small projects financed through the Canada Fund for Local Initiatives project (Canada Fund) and of regional programs and projects: the Institutional Capacity Building in Technology Program of Francophone Africa (PRIMTAF); the support to the Organization for the Development of the Senegal River Valley project (OMVS); and the support to the Presidency of the sub-Regional Commission on Fisheries; as well as francophonie scholarships. A poverty reduction project using a line of credit mechanism to generate a counterpart fund for local development activities was approved in May 1996. Program Record Number: IDA BFF 636

Mauritius

Description: Assistance to Mauritius is currently being provided through scholarships to Canadian universities administered under the francophone program, and from regional programming. Small projects are supported through the Canada Fund. Program Record Number: IDA BFA 640

Middle East Regional

Description: a) Regional projects: CIDA funds two projects in support of the Middle East Peace Process. The Canadian Fund for Dialogue and Development encourages contact and promotes cooperation on key development issues, through seminars, conferences and workshops. The Experts and Advisory Services Fund supports Canada's participation in the Multilateral Negotiations of the Peace Process. b) Lebanon: A bilateral project provides support to the Lebanese Government to develop strategies and policies for the reform of the public administration. A second project provides technical assistance to the taxation reform process. Program Record Number: IDA BFM 591

Morocco

Description: CIDA's program in Morocco focuses on transfer of technology, human resources and development and Economic Cooperation. Morocco also benefits from the Private Sector Development Fund for the Maghreb (which aims to support the expansion of the private sector in the region, thus allowing it to increase its productivity and improve the entrepreneurial environment), and the Institutional Strengthening Program (which aims to support training initiatives which focus on private sector needs). Program Record Number: IDA BFM 660

Mozambique

Description: Programming priorities include basic human needs, education, social sector support for economic reform, good governance, transport sector, food aid and the environment. Mozambique also receives significant benefits from CIDA's multi-country projects for the region. Mozambique is the co-ordinator of the Southern Africa Development Community's transportation and communications program, and has received considerable assistance in the rehabilitation of its ports and railway lines. It also receives management and training assistance in the transport sector. Program Record Number: IDA BFA 664

Namibia

Description: Canadian development assistance focuses on agricultural development, with Phase II of the Canada-Namibia (CANAMCO) project continuing to help raise the productivity of subsistence farmers in the country's northern region and to provide institutional support to key departments and officials within the Government of Namibia. Energy, agriculture and human resource development receive assistance under the regional program. Program Record Number: IDA BFA 850

Niger

Description: In recent years, the main objective of the CIDA program has been to support Niger's development efforts in macro-economic balance, human resource development and rural development. CIDA also provided support to the development of the democratic process. Over the next few years, CIDA intends to focus its bilateral program on empowering human resources (especially women), by supporting education for girls and by the strengthening of democratic society. The agri-food sector will be the nexus for supporting the private sector in order to contribute to growth. Environment and food aid security issues will be considered by the regional component and the multilateral program, respectively. Niger also benefits from the regional telecommunications project and the AIDS program. CIDA funds NGOs in Niger, as well as many small projects through the Canada Fund. The execution of the bilateral program has been suspended since the "Coup" in January 1996. Program Record Number: IDA BFF 700

Nigeria

Description: Canada's bilateral aid program with Nigeria was terminated in 1995 in response to continued deterioration of economic and political circumstances. However, Nigeria benefits from the financing of small projects through the Canada Fund. The country will be the largest recipient of assistance from the $2.2 million Democratic Development Fund (DDF) for Nigeria, Sierra Leone and the Gambia. The DDF is intended to support and encourage democratic activities in those countries. Program Record Number: IDA BFF 702

Organization pour la mise en valeur du fleuve Sénégal (OMVS)

Description: OMVS is a regional agency created in 1972 to develop the resources of the Senegal River basin, shared by Mali, Mauritania and Senegal. The program focuses on agriculture, navigation and energy. Canada has supported this program to conduct studies prior to the building of dams; to procure, transport and install water inlet and outlet facilities for the Manantali dam and to implement the training and maintenance program for these facilities; to conduct technical studies on management of the waterway, harbours and ports of call of the Senegal River; and to conduct studies of the power transmission system. In cooperation with other donors, CIDA and the Canadian Industrial Sector are finalizing their participation in the installation of power generation equipment and to the planning of transmission lines to Bamako, Dakar and Nouakchott. Program Record Number: IDA BFF 900

Pan-African Program

Description: Provides assistance mainly to regional institutions, especially in the fields of agricultural research, training and human resource development. The program also promotes assistance for the regional implementation of projects that meet national needs. Program Record Number: IDA BFT 806

Regional Program (West Africa)

Description: CIDA has supported several regional projects and activities in West Africa to complement national initiatives, which are concentrated in the following areas: support for policy dialogue and a better external aid coordination, implementation of activities supporting a greater regional integration, the strengthening of regional institutions and the regional implementation of initiatives that meet specific national imperatives. Three examples are: (i) a major initiative to fight AIDS in seven West African countries; (ii) support harmonizing the national legislation on credit and saving unions for Vemba countries; (iii) projects to support the development of strong civil societies. Several Canadian NGOs, institutions, and universities are associated with this regional program. In the future, CIDA intends to rely more on potential complementarities of the development process of each of the countries in West Africa. Program Record Number: IDA BFF 039

Republic of South Africa (RSA)

Description: The primary focus of CIDA's program in South Africa is good governance and democratic development. Projects stem from two Canadian commitments: the provision of policy support to help "level the playing field" during the transition to democracy and the provision of assistance in the training of black South Africans for positions of authority in the public sector. Programming priorities include good governance, human resource development, civil society and economic development. Program Record Number: IDA BFA 842

Rwanda

Description: In addition to the provision of humanitarian assistance to prisoners and displaced persons, Canada is now actively supporting the social reconstruction of the country and the reorganization of the judicial system, through various UN organizations and Canadian NGOs and institutions. Program Record Number: IDA BFG 778

Sao Tomé and Príncipe

Description: This country benefits from the Canadian Fund for Local Initiatives (CFLI). Program Record Number: IDA BFL 874

Senegal

Description: In addition to bilateral assistance, CIDA's program in Senegal also supports NGOs, institutions and the private sector. It has recently focused on strengthening the private sector, protecting natural resources (especially forestry and fishing), developing human resources, and maintaining financial and economic balance. Over the next few years most activities in these areas will be consolidated or reshaped to meet program objectives related to social development, especially formal and informal basic education and administrative decentralization. Senegal also benefits from regional projects and small projects which are financed through the Canada Fund. Program Record Number: IDA BFF 808

Seychelles

Description: Seychelles benefits from a Canada Fund for small projects, scholarships through "les bourses de la francophonie", support for educational and training institutions through the regional Francophone Africa technological institution building program and some benefits from the regional Ocean Development Program. Program Record Number: IDA BFK 812

Sierra Leone

Description: This country benefits from the financing of small projects through the Canada Fund as well as from the Democratic Development Funds (DDF). The DDF is intended to support and encourage democratic activities in Nigeria, Sierra Leone and the Gambia. Canada has also contributed several million dollars to this country in humanitarian food aid since the beginning of the civil war. Program Record Number: IDA BFF 820

Somalia

Description: CIDA provides emergency assistance to populations affected by conflict, and finances the implementation of small-scale projects through the Canada Fund for local initiatives. Program Record Number: IDA BFH 838

Southern African Development Community (SADC)

Description: Canada has supported SADC since 1983. Since regional integration and cooperation are goals shared by SADC and CIDA a significant portion of projects in CIDA's Southern Africa Program have been multi-country (regional) projects. However, of the total Southern African Program, only 2-3 per cent of program funding consists of direct assistance to SADC. Program Record Number: IDA BFA 050

Sudan

Description: CIDA provides emergency assistance to populations affected by conflict and finances the implementation of small-scale projects through the Canadian Fund for Local Initiatives (CFLI). Program Record Number: IDA BFH 876

Swaziland

Description: CIDA's assistance program focuses on human resource development and natural resource management. Two projects currently help strengthen the government's pool of trained personnel in areas related to national development. Swaziland also enjoys significant benefits from CIDA multi-country projects for the region, and from projects supported through the Canada Fund for Local Initiatives (CFLI). Program Record Number: IDA BFA 888

Tanzania

Description: CIDA's assistance program in Tanzania focuses on transportation, small enterprise development, and poverty alleviation. Major projects include the reorganization of the railway system to improve the transportation of agricultural products, support to micro entrepreneurs, and social development projects, particularly related to communication and education, family planning, mapping, and land use. As a member of SADCC, Tanzania is eligible for the Southern Africa regional program for project implementation. Apart from the provision of equipment and materials, projects usually include a significant technical assistance and training component. Program Record Number: IDA BFK 902

Togo

Description: This country benefits from the financing of small projects through the Canada Fund. Program Record Number: IDA BFF 918

Tunisia

Description: CIDA's main activities in Tunisia are shared-cost training, institutional support projects and support for small business. Institutional and industrial cooperation are important aspects of the program in Tunisia. Tunisia also benefits from the Private Sector Development Fund for the Maghreb (which aims to support the expansion of the private sector in the region, thus allowing it to increase its productivity and improve the entrepreneurial environment), and from the Institutional Strengthening Program (which aims to support training institutions that focus on private-sector needs). Program Record Number: IDA BFM 934

Turkey

Description: Assistance to Turkey is limited to small projects, funded through a Canada Fund for Local Initiatives. Program Record Number: IDA BFM 938

Uganda

Description: The program supports the health care and democratic development sectors. In the health sector, funds are provided to implement health care planning and delivery projects, including an AIDS education component and the purchase of pharmaceuticals. Through Canadian NGOs and institutions, Partnership Branch supports a number of small-scale rural development projects. This country benefits also from the Canada Fund for Local Initiatives (CFLI). Program Record Number: IDA BFK 942

West Bank and Gaza

Description: A new bilateral program is focusing on improving daily living conditions and building-up Palestinian institutional capacity. Projects include support for community groups, refugee housing, youth centres, technical assistance, water planning and management, democratic development as well as general operating costs of the Palestinian Authority. Program Record Number: IDA BFM 492

Description: Canadian assistance to Zambia focuses on support for economic reform, human resource development, agriculture and environmental and natural resources management. Zambia is also a key beneficiary of several multi-country projects in the energy, transportation, human resource, forestry and agriculture sectors. Program Record Number: IDA BFA 994

Zimbabwe

Description: CIDA's sectors of concentration in Zimbabwe are natural resource management, human resource development and support to economic reform. Under the regional program, substantial benefits have been derived in the transportation, energy and human resource sectors, and in HIV-AIDS training and education. Program Record Number: IDA BFA 766

◆ Americas Branch

Bolivia

Description: Canada's development assistance program to Bolivia has become more active. New projects such as food aid and lines of credit provide balance of payments support and generate counterpart funds, which support projects aimed at increasing employment, productivity, and income of the poor, as well as providing social services. The fund has become the country's primary vehicle for addressing the high social costs of austerity measures imposed by economic structural adjustment programs. CIDA is also supporting country focus programs with Canadian NGOs that support improved social programs such as potable water and sanitation, and complement the substantial NGO activity in Bolivia. A health project with UNICEF to improve the quality of primary health care is operational. Program Record Number: IDA BMS 192

Brazil

Description: The objective of CIDA's bilateral program is to respond to Brazilian developmental priorities by supporting cooperation between Brazilian and Canadian institutions in key sectors. While drawing on Canadian technical and institutional capacities and experience, the program is focused on the themes of environmental technology transfer, social sector reform, and public sector reform. Program Record Number: IDA BMS 204

Caribbean Region

Description: Canada's bilateral assistance to the Caribbean Region involves projects with regional institutions such as the Caribbean Community (CARICOM) and the University of the West Indies (UWI), as well as projects of a regional nature including core and non-core countries. Ecuador

Description: The bilateral program for Ecuador has been expanded significantly to help Ecuador to alleviate poverty and to achieve the structural adjustment goals of economic stabilization and recovery. Major projects include food aid; the Human Resources Development project which will provide scholarships and/or training in Canada over a five-year period; and lines of contribution to provide Canadian oil and gas, telecommunications equipment and commodities; and a corresponding counterpart fund for in-country development projects targeting the poor. Program Record Number: IDA BMS 342

El Salvador

Description: The program's objectives are to support the country's social reconstruction for peace through support for human rights and democratic institutional development. The program also assists in poverty alleviation through support to income generating activities with displaced persons and ex-combatants. A Social Reconstruction program finances these activities. The Canada Fund for Local Initiatives supports small-scale projects. Program Record Number: IDA BML 350

Guatemala

Description: The main focus of the bilateral program is on poverty alleviation to support disadvantaged groups, especially indigenous and women, and democratic development and human rights. A major program of support to community cooperatives provides training and promotes income-generating activities among impoverished populations and re-integration of refugee populations and persons displaced by the conflict. A Democratic Development Fund supports dialogue among many elements of civil society, to promote peace and strengthens human rights through legal support in cases where it is needed. Program Record Number: IDA BML 432

Guyana

Description: CIDA's program has been primarily focused on forestry and fisheries and small-scale local assistance using counterpart funds. New projects have been launched in support of social infrastructure using counterpart funds to strengthen the financial management capacities of the Government of Guyana. Future activities are being considered in human resource development for economic competitiveness and strengthening capacities of Guyanese NGOs. Program Record Number: IDA BMB 440

Haiti

Description: CIDA resumed its development assistance program after democratic government was restored in Haiti. (Humanitarian assistance to this country was maintained during the period of military repression). The current program is designed to consolidate democracy (training for the policy force and judicial staff, and technical assistance to the government and civil society, especially co-operatives). Several reconstruction and job creation projects were quickly put in place such as rebuilding schools and clinics, cleaning streets, repairing small scale infrastructures, and distributing basic agricultural implements to farmers. The CIDA program also aims to ensure the production of electrical power and to slow down environmental degradation. Program Record Number: IDA BMH 444

To improve economic competitiveness, there are projects supporting export promotion, credit facilities for small business and improvements to monetary policy. Program Record Number: IDA BMB 504

Nicaragua

Description: CIDA's main objectives are economic reconstruction through re-activation of the agricultural productive sector, and poverty alleviation. A line of credit project provides local funds for many poverty alleviation projects. An agricultural development program, targeted toward small and medium size producers and their associations, will begin in 1996. Projects in potable water supply and sanitation are targeted toward rural communities. The Canada Fund for Local Initiatives supports many projects which improve living conditions of the poorest. Program Record Number: IDA BML 696

Peru

Description: CIDA's bilateral priorities include support for poverty reduction initiatives and assistance to ongoing programs of economic and social reforms. These priorities are closely related. Poverty reduction is currently being addressed through a variety of initiatives. First and foremost is the jointly managed Peru-Canada Fund which uses counterpart funds, generated from lines of credit for oil and gas, mining and telecommunications equipment and from food aid to promote productive activities that benefit the poor. In addition, CIDA's bilateral program is supporting poverty reduction projects implemented by Canadian NGOs such as potable water and sanitation projects and support to agricultural cooperatives. Support for structural reforms includes assistance to a consortium of national economic and social policy research institutes to better address Peru's economic and social problems. Support is also being given to the World Bank's Energy Management Assistance Program which assists the Peruvian Government in the privatization and deregulation of the oil and gas sector. Program Record Number: IDA BMS 730

♦ Asia Branch

Association of South East Asian Nations(ASEAN) and Southeast Asia Regional Program

Description: The program is concentrated on human resource development and institutional support. This covers projects in fisheries and forestry, renewable energy and marine environment. There is an increasing focus on short-term training and scholarships, particularly in areas of technology and public sector management. CIDA's Regional program in Southeast Asia seeks to promote regional cooperation and integration through technical cooperation, awareness building and networking. Priority areas of cooperation include: environment, science and technology, marine resources, strengthening of the private sector, governance and human rights, gender equity, regional security, with a strong focus on human resources development. Programs are designed to complement CIDA's bilateral programs in Southeast Asia through initiatives that focus on regional organizations (e.g. ASEAN, APEC) and regional institutions which allow a relatively broad influence through targeted investments. Program Record Number: IDA BSD 149

Bangladesh

Description: Major areas of activity for CIDA's program in Bangladesh include rural development, water management, rail transportation, women's programs, health and population, democratic development as well as provision of food aid, fertilizers and industrial commodities(for rural electrification and primary education). Canadian International Trade Tribunal

Chapter 26

General Information

Background

Bill C-110, which established the Canadian International Trade Tribunal (CITT) and dissolved the Canadian Import Tribunal, the Tariff Board and the Textile and Clothing Board, received Royal Assent on September 13, 1988. Sections of the Canadian International Trade Tribunal Act establishing the corporate structure of the CITT were proclaimed on September 15, 1988. Sections of the Act giving the CITT operational responsibilities and dissolving the Canadian Import Tribunal, the Tariff Board and the Textile and Clothing Board came into force on December 31, 1988. Pursuant to the NAFTA Implementation Act, on January 1, 1994, the Tribunal became Canada's bid challenge authority in respect of federal government procurement as contemplated under Article 1017 of NAFTA. The Tribunal succeeds the Procurement Review Board of Canada in this capacity. The Tribunal also acts as the bid challenge authority under the Agreement on Internal Trade (AIT) and the World Trade Organization Agreement on Government Procurement (WTO).

Responsibilities

The CITT is a quasi-judicial tribunal responsible for conducting dumping and countervailing injury inquiries, making inquiries and carrying out recommendations as directed and considering import safeguard complaints by domestic producers. It is empowered to deal with appeals from decisions of the Minister or the Deputy Minister of National Revenue involving mainly customs and excise matters. The Tribunal receives and decides complaints from Canadian, American and Mexican suppliers who believe that the procurement process conducted by the Canadian Federal Government was not carried out in accordance with NAFTA, as well as complaints under the AIT and the WTO. The Tribunal also conducts investigations into requests from Canadian producers for tariff relief on imported textile inputs used in their production operations.

Legislation

- Canadian International Trade Tribunal Act, 1988
- Customs Act (R.S.C., 1985, C-54)
- Excise Tax Act (R.S.C., 1985, C-E14)
- Special Import Measures Act (R.S.C., 1985, C-515)

Organization

The Tribunal consists of a Chairman, two vice-chairmen, and not more than six other permanent members to be appointed by the Governor in Council. The Governor in Council may also appoint up to five temporary members, as required. The Tribunal is supported by the Research Branch, the Legal Services Branch, the Procurement Review Division and the Secretariat.

Classes of Personal Information

Some CMCC files summarized in the program records contain personal information which is not used in a decision-making process directly affecting the individual to whom it relates. Examples are inquiries about CMC and CWM collections, programmes and services, information and advice given to individuals by CMC and CWM employees about museums and museum objects, and information about individuals in documents relating to grants or proposed grants to institutions.

These classes of personal information are kept on the relevant subject files and are not identifiable by name of the individual or other personal identifier. To retrieve these classes of personal information, the CMCC would need as much detail as possible about the subject matter, the geographic location and the time the information would have come to the CMC or the CWM.

The retention periods for these classes of personal information are the same as those for the subject files containing the information.

Canadian Museum of Nature

Chapter 28

General Information

Background

The Canadian Museum of Nature (CMN), a Crown Corporation, was established in 1990 by the Museums Act, and reports to parliament through the Minister of Communications. It is administered by its own directorate under the authority of a Board of Trustees. The President is the Chief Executive Officer of the CMN.

Responsibilities

The purposes of the Corporation, as defined in the Act, are to establish and maintain for research and posterity a collection of natural history objects, with special but not exclusive reference to Canada, and to use the collection, the knowledge derived from it and the understanding it represents, to increase throughout Canada and internationally, interest, knowledge, appreciation and respect for the natural world.

Legislation

- The Museums Act, 1990

Organization

♦ Business Enterprises

This programme is responsible for the coordination and implementation of a wide range of revenue-generating and cost savings programmes aimed at delivering a positive profit picture for the CMN. These objectives are fulfilled through various operations such as: Commercial Operations which includes the Boutique, and Visitor, Rental, Parking and Food services; Professional Services and Product Development which is responsible for coordinating revenue contracts in response to outside requests for Museum scientific, technical and professional expertise; Marketing and Communications division which is responsible for all museum advertising and promotion, media and public relations, market research and planning, and consultant to projects throughout the museum; Publishing division which is responsible for disseminating information about the CMN, its research, activities and results through popular and scientific publications; Community Relations division which is responsible for President's Events, Community Events, Volunteers, and Resource Development such as fund-raising and membership.

♦ Capital Projects

This programme is responsible for negotiating the custody transfer of the museum's facilities from the GSC to the CMN; the planning and development of new accommodations and outgoing coordination of services for the management of current accommodations for the CMN; providing professional, technical and administrative advice and services on accommodation matters; and integrating museum priorities into accommodation planning for the achievement of the museum's mandate.

♦ Directorate

The Directorate includes the President's, Executive Vice-President's, Vice-President's and Chief Operating Officer's offices, and the Board of Trustees. Their responsibilities are to provide overall direction, guidance and management of operational and administrative divisions within the Museum.

♦ Environmental Issues

This programme is responsible for the direction of research, Museum involvement in science policy development, intergovernmental affairs, science information coordination and dissemination, national and international network development, and the development of Traditional Knowledge in the Museum. The main elements of the programme that seek to focus activity and create its sense of coherence are the Centres of Knowledge. These Centres form six general interest blocks through which all projects approved by the programme are funded; the Canadian Centre for Biodiversity, Polar Studies, Inter-American Studies, Planetary Evolution, Humans and Nature, and Science and Society.

♦ Governance

This programme enables the Museum to be governed by the Board of Trustees by establishing an efficient and effective secretariat, monitoring and evaluating museum activities, establishing the corporate image and profile, and encouraging new ideas and initiatives.

♦ National Heritage

This programme is responsible for the care and development of the national collections in natural history, their use in the interests of Canada and other nations, and leadership in the care and management of, and research on collections care. The Programme is a recognition that collections are important to Canadians, the CMN's collections responsibilities go beyond the walls of the Museum and that different types of expertise lead to excellence in collections care and research.

♦ Public Programmes

This programme is responsible for the evaluation, development and maintenance of programmes and activities to increase knowledge and appreciation for the natural world using the CMN's collection of natural history objects and specimens through exhibit-based programmes and a wide variety of modern educational media.

Canadian Polar Commission

Chapter 29

General Information

Background

In September 1985 the Minister of Indian Affairs and Northern Development commissioned a study group to investigate the state of Canadian polar science. Based on extensive consultations with Canada's northern research community, government departments, and non-government organizations, the study group produced its report, Canada and Polar Science, in March 1987. Among its recommendations was a call for the creation of "a national body ...to provide ongoing contact, at a senior level, between the federal government and those concerned with Canadian polar science and research".

Professor Thomas Symon's report The Shield of Achilles, which became the draft of a mandate for the Canadian Polar Commission, expressed concern that a new commission not duplicate the efforts of other institutions, but "...build upon, complement and support the work of the many diverse existing Canadian institutions, programmes, and organizations that are dedicated to the development of polar knowledge".

As a result of these efforts, the Canadian Polar Commission provides a new focus for polar scientific research in Canada. Through active interchange with industry, the private sector, governments, aboriginal people and other northern residents, the academic community, and interest groups, the Commission can reinforce Canada's existing role and reputation in the polar world.

Responsibilities

The mandate of the Commission is to monitor and to assess the state of polar knowledge in the country, and to foster the development of this important part of Canadian science. To this end, the Commission's role is to help determine scientific priorities with regard to polar regions, encourage Canadian organizations to support development and dissemination of knowledge of these regions, advise the minister responsible (Minister of Indian and Northern Affairs) on polar matters, disseminate information about polar research, and foster international cooperation regarding the sharing of polar knowledge.

It is within the mandate of the Commission to sponsor conferences, seminars and other activities, provide financial support for studies and the publication of reports, recognize achievements in polar science, support and encourage in various ways the endeavours of those who are involved in polar research.

Legislation

- Canadian Polar Commission Act (February 1991)

Organization

The Canadian Polar Commission is made up of 7 members, selected for their skills and merits. These members, who form the Board of Directors of the Commission, cannot be full-time employees in the Public Service of Canada. They are appointed for three year terms. Sub-committees have been established on science and the environment, international affairs, communications and the Canadian Polar Information Directory. The Polar Commission itself can call on others, especially northerners, to sit on these committees.

The Canadian Polar Commission offices are located in Ottawa and Yellowknife.

Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission

Chapter 30

General Information

Background

The Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC) is an independent public authority established by Parliament in 1968 as a successor to the Board of Broadcast Governors, an earlier regulatory agency. Its mandate was to regulate and supervise all aspects of the Canadian broadcasting system. These responsibilities were enlarged in 1976 by the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission Act, under which the Commission assumed responsibility from the Canadian Transport Commission for regulating telecommunications carriers within federal jurisdiction. On 4 June 1991 the new Broadcasting Act was proclaimed in force. On 25 October 1993 the new Telecommunications Act was proclaimed in force to replace the Railway Act and the National Telecommunications Powers and Procedures Act.

Responsibilities

In broadcasting matters, the CRTC regulates both the public and private broadcasting sectors. It has the power to inter alia, issue, renew, amend, suspend or revoke licences and to set any conditions of licence it feels necessary. With respect to federally-regulated telecommunications carriers, the CRTC has the power to ensure that the rates charged by the carriers are just and reasonable, and not unjustly discriminatory. The Commission's approval is also required for traffic and certain other types of agreements and capital stock issues. In order to fulfil its mandate, the CRTC collects a variety of information pertaining to applicants and existing licensees operating programming, distribution or network undertakings (cable, radio and television) across the country. Financial and operating information is collected on a yearly basis in Annual Returns. Programming on radio and television is monitored: television stations, including pay television and specialty services, must submit detailed program logs monthly and radio stations must submit their program logs upon request. In the course of the public hearing process, information concerning the applications being heard is made available for public examination, as outlined in the CRTC Rules of Procedure. These public files include the text of any intervention made by anyone wishing to express his/her views with respect to particular applications or issues raised in public hearings. In telecommunications hearings, interrogatories and other more formal practices may be carried out, as outlined in the CRTC Telecommunications Rules of Procedure. The Commission receives complaints and enquiries from specific individuals or corporations, or interest group regarding both broadcasting and telecommunications. Copies of complaints relating to broadcasting matters are forwarded to the licensee concerned for comment and placed on a file available for examination by the public. In Public Notice 91-90 dated 30 August 1991, the Commission announced its support for the Canadian Broadcast Standards Council (the CBSC), which will administer industry standards and codes of conduct. In Public Notice 92-22 the Commission also endorsed the Cable Television Standards Council (CTSC) which will administer Cable Service Standards.

Legislation

- Broadcasting Act (1991)
- Cable TV Regulations (1986)
- Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Act (1976)
- Pay Television Regulations (1990)
- Radio Regulations (1986)
- Specialty Services Regulations (1990)
- Telecommunications Act (1993)
- Television Broadcasting Regulations (1987)

Organization

Broadcasting Sector

The broadcasting component is composed of three functional activities — Broadcast Analysis, Broadcast Planning and Broadcast Technology and Distribution.

Broadcast Analysis, Broadcast Planning and Broadcast Technology and Distribution

These Branches are responsible for content policy development, as well as operational compliance, monitoring and analysis of applications. They provide advice on operational, policy and regulatory aspects of the radio, television and cable industries, assist in determining priorities and plans regarding future broadcasting developments and monitor new developments in broadcasting and cable technology. Marketing, financial and ownership data related to the industry and the analysis of that data is also conducted.

Secretary General

This office is the official point of contact between the Commission and the public. It coordinates Commission activities commonly used by both the broadcasting and telecommunications sectors.

Corporate Services, Review and Renewal

This Division performs internal audits (financial, compliance, operational), conducts special reviews and evaluates program relevance and effectiveness. It also studies and reviews regulatory reform. It is the focal point for the Auditor General audits and annual reports. It also provides services to both the Telecommunications and Broadcasting sectors, as well as coordination in the area of Finance, Human Resources and Informatics.

Finance and Management Services Branch

This Branch provides financial, program planning, management and administrative services to ensure the most effective operation of the Commission and the most cost-effective and efficient development and use of new services and facilities. It collects broadcast licence fees and helps to formulate licence fee regulations. The Branch also coordinates informatics activities throughout the Commission, maintains a library for communications industry information in Canada and administers the Commission's records management, mail room and fleet management services.

Human Resources, Official Languages and Security

This Division advises the Chairman and staff on all aspects of the administration of human resources, including classification, staffing, pay and benefits, staff relations and special program administration, including employment equity and training and development. The division is also responsible for the administration of the CRTC's security function.

Secretariat Operations and Licensing Branch

This Branch oversees the Planning and Scheduling Section for the Commission, the Decisions and Proceedings Division, and the Licensing Sector of the broadcasting sector. The Branch also exercises functional direction over the four regional offices with respect to activities in the broadcasting and telecommunications sectors and to federal-provincial relations. The Branch also administers the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act.

◆ Regional offices

They are four in number and provide an official CRTC presence in the various regions of Canada to advise headquarters of the concerns of interested parties in their region. They provide information to provincial governments, the industry, the academic community and the public.

Legal Directorate

The CRTC's general counsel and staff provide legal services to the Commission concerning the interpretation and implementation of the CRTC Act, the Telecommunications Act and the Broadcasting Act, statutory instruments made pursuant to these acts, and related federal and provincial legislation. Counsel advise the Commission of the legal implications of policy matters, conduct questioning, and advise on procedural matters at public hearings. They also make recommendations and carry out legal proceedings instituted by or against the Commission.

Public Affairs Division

The Public Affairs Division formulates and evaluates communications strategies, policies and initiatives and is responsible for all public relations activities, as well as for the production and distribution of CRTC publications. The Division also responds to briefs, letters, written inquiries and complaints received by the Commission and coordinates the referral of complaints to the Canadian Broadcast Standard Council (CBSC) and the Cable Television Standards Council (CTSC) in the case of issues covered by industry standards administered by the Councils.

Telecommunications Directorate

The principal mandate of this Directorate is to ensure that the rates charged by the carriers under federal jurisdiction are just and reasonable and not unjustly discriminatory. The Directorate assesses tariffs and agreements filed for approval by carriers, assists the Commission in the development of regulatory policies, decisions and orders and identifies and analyzes regulatory issues stemming from individual applications or major hearings.

Competition, Social and Convergence Policy

This Branch analyzes and provides advice to the Commission on competition and market structure, current and future regulatory issues, convergence issues, service quality and socio-economic aspects of regulatory issues.

Decisions and Operations Branch

This Branch plans and coordinates telecommunications staff agendas, receives and schedules applications, advises applicants on proper procedure, and formulates, drafts and edits public notices, orders and decisions issued by the Commission. The Branch is also responsible for analysis and advice to the Commission on the rates and costs of tariffed services, for the resolution of complaints and inquiries from subscribers and competitors of the federally-regulated carriers and for liaison with the independent telephone companies.

Financial Analysis Branch

This Branch is concerned with the financial aspects of rate regulation and the carriers' inter-corporate activities, statistical analysis, accounting and auditing carrier activities. The Branch is also responsible for the implementation of inquiries into carrier costs, for assessing the carriers' construction programs and for advice to the Commission regarding the depreciation, renewal and amortization of carrier equipment.

Canadian Security Intelligence Service

Chapter 31

General Information

Background

The Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) has operated pursuant to the Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act, since its inception in 1984.

Responsibilities

CSIS collects, analyzes and retains information and intelligence respecting activities that may on reasonable grounds be suspected of constituting threats to the security of Canada, and reports to and advises the Government of Canada in relation to these matters.

The Service also plays a role in providing security assessments to departments of the Government of Canada (in accordance with section 13 of the CSIS Act and government security policy) and may provide security assessments to the government of a province or any department thereof, any police force in a province, and to the government of a foreign state or institution thereof or an international organization of states or institutions thereof when a security clearance is a required condition of employment. As well, CSIS may advise any Minister of the Crown on matters relating to the security of Canada, or provide any Minister of the Crown with information relating to security matters or criminal activities that is relevant to the exercise of any power or the performance of any duty or function by that Minister under the Citizenship Act or the Immigration Act. It may also conduct such investigations as are necessary in order to provide security assessments or advice to Ministers.

Further, CSIS may, in relation to the defence of Canada or the conduct of international affairs, assist the Minister of National Defence or the Minister of Foreign Affairs and International Trade, within Canada, in the collection of information or intelligence relating to the capabilities, intentions or activities of any foreign state or group of foreign states or any person other than a Canadian citizen or permanent resident, or corporation.

Legislation

- Canadian Security Intelligence Service Act

Organization

The Director, under the direction of the Minister, has the control and management of CSIS and all matters connected therewith. The Director General, Secretariat has the responsibility to support the activities of the Director and senior management. The Deputy Director has general responsibility for the human resources, administration and finance, information management, internal security and internal review programs. The Deputy Director also has general responsibility for management services and technical and scientific services. Responsibility for operation programs such as counter-terrorism, counter-intelligence and security screening are divided between the Assistant Director Requirements and Assistant Director, Intelligence Production.

Personal Information Banks

Access Request Records

Description: This bank contains personal information on individuals who have submitted a formal request under the Privacy Act or Access to Information Act for access to information originally obtained or prepared by CSIS. Documents include access and correction requests, notations, consultations with other government institutions or third parties; exemptions, exclusions, disclosures, complaints, documents prepared for Court, and pertaining to the processing of the request. Class of Individuals: Individuals or authorized agents who have submitted a "Personal Information Request Form" or an "Access to Information Request Form" to a federal or provincial institution. Purpose: To process Personal Information Request Forms and requests under the Access to Information Act. Consistent Uses: Personal information may be used for the management of CSIS, research, audit, planning, evaluation and statistical purposes and to meet its legal reporting requirements. Retention and Disposal Standards: As a requirement of the Privacy Act Regulations, information is retained until all avenues of legal appeal have been exhausted with a minimum retention of two years. PAC Number: 85-001 TBS Registration: 001681 Bank Number: SIS PPU 020

Canadian Security Intelligence Service Investigational Records

Description: This bank contains personal information on identifiable individuals whose activities are suspected of constituting threats to the security of Canada; on identifiable individuals who are or were being managed as confidential sources of information; on identifiable individuals no longer investigated by CSIS but whose activities did constitute threats to the security of Canada and which still meet the collection criteria stipulated in section 12 of the CSIS Act, and on identifiable individuals the investigation of whom relate to the conduct of the international affairs, the defence of Canada or any state allied or associated with Canada or the detection, prevention or suppression of subversive or hostile activities. Exempt Bank Status: This bank has been designated as an exempt bank by Order-in-Council No. 14 (CSIS) dated 26 November 1992. Class of Individuals: Individuals suspected of espionage or sabotage against Canada or the interests of Canada; individuals involved in foreign influenced activities within or relating to Canada that are clandestine or deceptive or involve a threat to any person; individuals involved in activities within or related to Canada directed toward the use of serious acts of violence to achieve a political objective within Canada or a foreign state; or individuals whose activities are directed toward the unlawful covert undermining, or the overthrow by violence, of the constitutionally established government system in Canada; or any other activities described in the definition of "threats to the security of Canada" at section 2 of the CSIS Act; individuals identified relating to national security, the defence of Canada or the conduct of the international affairs of Canada; and individuals who are confidential sources of information. Purpose: Collected under section 12 of the CSIS Act with respect to threats to the security of Canada; under section 15 concerning the collection of information for the purpose of providing advice pursuant to section 14; and under section 16 concerning the collection of information or intelligence relating to the capabilities, intentions or activities of foreign states and certain persons. Consistent Uses: CSIS may only disclose information it obtains if it does so in accordance with the controls of subsection 19(2) of the CSIS Act. First, it may disclose information for the purposes of the performance of its duties and functions under the CSIS Act or the administration or enforcement of that Act, or as required by any other law. The Service may thus disclose personal information to the Government of Canada, for example, as part of its duty to report, and give advice, thereto in relation to activities suspected of constituting threats to the security of Canada. Secondly, where the information in its possession may be used in the investigation or prosecution of an alleged contravention of the law, or where it relates to the conduct of Canada's international affairs or to the defence of Canada, then it may be disclosed to the appropriate police officials and Attorney General; to the Minister of Foreign Affairs and International Trade and to the Minister of National Defence, respectively. Thirdly, information may be disclosed where, in the opinion of the Minister, disclosure to any Minister of the Crown or person in the Public Service of Canada is essential in the public interest and that interest clearly outweighs any invasion of privacy that could result from the disclosure. Pursuant to section 13 and 14 of the CSIS Act, CSIS may also disclose information in the preparation of a domestic or foreign security assessment, or in providing advice under the Citizenship Act, or Immigration Act. Personal information may also be disclosed to the Inspector General and the Security Intelligence Review Committee. All linkages are in compliance with Privacy Act provisions. Information in this bank may also be used for audit, research, planning, evaluation and statistical purposes. Retention and Disposal Standards:

Information in this bank may be retained from two years to twenty years after the last action, subject to the retention and disposal schedules approved by the National Archivist. When files have been designated as historical, they may be transferred to the custody and control of the National Archives of Canada. PAC Number: 82-013 TBS Registration: 002872 Bank Number: SIS PPU 045

Description: This bank consists of information on individuals who came to the attention of the former RCMP Security Service while carrying out its responsibilities pertaining to informing the government of national security concerns. This bank may also contain information on individuals who incidentally came to the attention of CSIS as a result of carrying out its mandate under section 12 and/or section 16 of the CSIS Act. This bank may contain information on individuals mentioned in reports related to probable unauthorized disclosure of, or unauthorized access to, classified information or assets. Class of Individuals: Defectors, human sources or individuals, the nature of whose actions or activities caught the attention of CSIS or of its predecessor, the former RCMP Security Service, while investigating: espionage or sabotage against Canada detrimental to the interests of Canada; individuals involved in foreign influenced activities within or relating to Canada that were clandestine or deceptive or involved a threat to any person; individuals involved in activities within Canada that were directed toward the use of serious acts of violence to achieve a political objective within Canada or a foreign state; or individuals whose activities that were directed toward the unlawful covert undermining, or the overthrow by violence, of the constitutionally established government system in Canada; individuals, other than Canadians or permanent residents, whose capabilities, intentions or activities regarding the defence of Canada or the conduct of international affairs are inimical to the interests of Canada. Purpose: Collected or obtained by the former RCMP Security Service and retained by CSIS under section 12 concerning threats to the security of Canada or under section 16 concerning the collection of information relating to the capabilities, intentions or activities of foreign states and certain persons. Consistent Uses: CSIS may only disclose information if it does so in accordance with the controls of subsection 19(2) of the CSIS Act. First, it may disclose information for the purposes of the performance of its duties and functions under the CSIS Act or the administration or enforcement of that Act, or as required by any other law. The Service may thus disclose personal information to the Government of Canada, for example, as part of its duty to report and give advice to the government regarding activities suspected of constituting threats to the security of Canada. Secondly, where the information in the Service's possession may be used in the investigation or prosecution of an alleged contravention of the law, or where it relates to the conduct of Canada's international affairs or to the defence of Canada, then the information may be disclosed to the appropriate police officials and to the Attorney General, the Minister of Foreign Affairs and International Trade, and the Minister of National Defence, respectively. Thirdly, information may be disclosed where, in the opinion of the Minister, disclosure to any Minister of the Crown or person in the Public Service of Canada is essential to the public interest and that interest clearly outweighs any invasion of privacy that could result from the disclosure. Pursuant to sections 13 and 14 of the CSIS Act, CSIS may also disclose information in the preparation of a domestic or foreign security assessment, or in providing advice under the Citizenship Act or the Immigration Act. Information in this bank may also be used to assist foreign and domestic agencies, on request, through agreements established under section 17 of the CSIS Act. (See Classes of Personal Information at the end of this Chapter) Personal information may also be disclosed to the Inspector General and to the Security Intelligence Review Committee. This bank may be used as a source of information or for linking with other information sources for the purposes of fulfilling CSIS's legislated mandate. All linkages are in compliance with the provisions of the Privacy Act. This information may also be used for audit, research, planning, evaluation and statistical purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Information in this bank is under continuous review and files are disposed of in accordance with the retention and disposal schedules as approved by the National Archivist. When files have been designated as historical, they may be transferred to the custody and control of the National Archives of Canada. PAC Number: 82-013 TBS Registration: 000837 Bank Number: SIS PPU 015

Complaints Against CSIS or Its Employees

Description: This bank contains complaints communicated to CSIS, the Security Intelligence Review Committee (SIRC) or the Office of the Solicitor General of Canada against CSIS or its employees, and any record generated to resolve such complaints that is under CSIS control. In addition to the requirements indicated on the Personal Information Request form, individuals must provide the location where the complaint was reported and the nature of the complaint to retrieve the information of interest for processing. Class of Individuals: Individuals involved in complaints against CSIS or its employees. Purpose: To determine the validity of complaints and to record any corrective measures taken, including recommendations for disciplinary or misconduct proceedings. Consistent Uses: Used in disciplinary and misconduct processes under the CSIS Act. The SIRC or the Inspector General may also use information in this bank to conduct investigations of CSIS. Information in this bank may also be used for the management of CSIS, research, audit, planning, evaluation and statistical purposes. Retention and Disposal Standards: A minimum of two years after the last documentation on the individual complaint file. However, letters of complaint may be destroyed after one year. TBS Registration: 002762 Bank Number: SIS PPU 035

CSIS Candidates

Description: This personal information bank contains recruitment documents or applications for employment with CSIS and any related correspondence. This bank may also contain personnel or staffing interviews, polygraph tests, psychological tests, test results, analysts' reports and security assessment advice. Class of Individuals: Potential CSIS candidates. Purpose: To meet the administrative and/or operational needs of CSIS. Consistent Uses: Information may be transferred to an employee bank if the individual is offered and accepts employment. The candidate's skills may be assessed and, if deemed suitable, may be invited to serve in a capacity other than the position or level of initial interest. Some information in this bank may be used to verify attempts to infiltrate CSIS. This information may also be used for research, audit, planning, evaluation and statistical purposes. Retention and Disposal Standards: Retained a minimum of two years. However, unsolicited applications are destroyed after six months. PAC Number: 78-001 TBS Registration: 000839 Bank Number: SIS PPU 025

Security and Integrity of Government Property, Personnel and Assets

Description: This bank contains personal information on individuals in contact with CSIS whose actions have raised concern about the security and integrity of government property, personnel or assets. This bank may contain letters, notes, facsimile copies, contact reports and related correspondence, and access control data that has been used in a decision-making process. Class of Individuals: Individuals of concern regarding the security and integrity of government property, personnel or assets and CSIS employees who were the object of such actions. Purpose: This information was compiled as an aid to internal security investigations of alleged breaches of security or in relation to the safety and integrity of government property, personnel and assets. Consistent Uses: Information may be disclosed to the accredited police agency having local jurisdiction of an incident. Information in this bank may be matched with information from other CSIS personal information banks for the purpose of preserving the security of Canada or CSIS internal security. All linkages are in compliance with the provisions of the Privacy Act. Retention and Disposal Standards: The records in this bank are retained for a period of five years, ten years for access control data, and then disposed of in accordance with the schedule approved by the National Archivist. TBS Registration: 003632 Bank Number: SIS PPU 055

Security Assessments/Advice

Description: This bank contains personal information on individuals who are or have been the subject of a request for a security assessment for pre-employment/employment with federal government departments and the private sector working under federal government contracts, when a security clearance is a required condition of employment. This includes information obtained during internal quality control investigations.

Similar records are held in respect to security assessments required by a provincial government, a foreign state, or an international organization of states. This bank may also contain criminal records, credit bureau results, security analysis, security assessments and investigative reports, related correspondence and a notation of the level of security clearance granted. In addition, this bank may hold information on persons subject to security assessment or advice relative to the Citizenship Act or Immigration Act. Class of Individuals: Persons for whom CSIS was asked to provide a security assessment or advice for pre-employment/employment, including contract and company personnel working under federal government contracts; CSIS employees; and individuals who would seek admittance or to remain lawfully in Canada; and individuals seeking citizenship. By virtue of the screening process, personal information may be held on individuals who are not themselves the subject of the security assessment. Purpose: Collected under section 15 of the CSIS Act to provide security assessments pursuant to section 13 or advice pursuant to section 14 of the Act. Consistent Uses: Pursuant to sections 19(2), 13 and 14 of the CSIS Act, CSIS may disclose information or may match information in the preparation of a domestic or foreign security assessment or in providing advice pertinent to the Citizenship Act or Immigration Act or where the information relates to the conduct of the international affairs of Canada, to the Secretary of State for External Affairs, or where the information is relevant to the defence of Canada, to the Minister of National Defence. It may also be used for data matching. All linkages for the purposes of conducting lawful investigations in matters which may on reasonable grounds, be suspected of constituting threats to the security of Canada and in other lawful investigations are in compliance with the provisions of the Privacy Act. In addition, information may be provided to the Inspector General and the Security Intelligence Review Committee, the Federal Court and the Supreme Court. This information may also be used for research, audit, planning, evaluation and statistical purposes. Retention and Disposal Standards: Information in this bank may be retained from two years to twelve years from the last updating, and then disposed of subject to the Retention and Disposal schedules approved by the National Archivist. When files have been designated as historical, they may be transferred to the custody and control of the National Archives of Canada. PAC Number: 82-013 TBS Registration: 000835 Bank Number: SIS PPU 005

Self Protection Activity

Description: This bank contains personal information on individuals in contact with CSIS with a view of providing services directly or through contract to CSIS. The information may include the individual's name, any aliases and other personal identifiers. Under subsection 16(2) of the Privacy Act, CSIS consistently responds to all applicants in a manner that neither confirms nor denies the existence of personal information in this bank, regardless of whether or not personal information about the applicant exists in this bank. Class of Individuals: Individuals in contact with the Service. Purpose: The purposes for which the information in this bank was recorded is in support of CSIS's counter intelligence program. The information will allow CSIS to better protect itself from infiltration by hostile foreign services and others whose interests are inimical to the interests of Canada.

Consistent Uses: Information in this bank may be used in support of CSIS's counter intelligence program. Information in this bank may also be used for audit purposes. Retention and Disposal Standards: Information in this bank will be retained for a minimum of ten years, and destroyed when considered to be of no further value. Related to PR#: SIS DDS 010 TBS Registration: 003297 Bank Number: SIS PPU 050

Unlawful Conduct Investigations

Description: This bank contains allegations, investigational reports, interviews, reports to the Solicitor General of Canada and related correspondence collected, pursuant to subsection 20(2) of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS) Act, of activities by CSIS employees who may have acted unlawfully in or outside the performance of the duties and functions of the CSIS under the CSIS Act. Class of Individuals: Individuals involved in investigations conducted under subsection 20(2) of the CSIS Act. Purpose: To determine the validity of allegations of unlawful conduct by CSIS employees and to take appropriate corrective measures if required.

Consistent Uses: Information in this bank may be disclosed to the Attorney General of Canada, the relevant law enforcement agency when necessary, and to the Security Intelligence Review Committee or Inspector General for review or to meet reporting requirements. Information in this bank may be used in disciplinary and conduct processes under the CSIS Act. This information may also be used for the management of CSIS, research, audit, planning, evaluation and statistical purposes.

Retention and Disposal Standards: Personal information in this bank will be kept for a minimum of five years. The National Archives of Canada is required to be consulted before disposal of this information. PAC Number: 86-001 TBS Registration: 002761 Bank Number: SIS PPU 040

In the course of carrying out the daily investigative activities and functions of the Canadian Security Intelligence Service, personal information may be accumulated such as in the security assessments and crisis management programs which are not described in the specific personal information banks. This information is not used for an administrative purpose affecting an individual, and can include names, addresses and other identifying data in a record. Such information is only retrievable if full specifics are provided concerning the subject matter. The retention period for this form of information is in accordance with the retention and disposal schedules approved by the National Archivist.

Unsolicited opinions or requests for information are received by the Service. This information is not used for an administrative purpose, other than to respond in some instances to the originator. This correspondence is stored in a file associated with the subject matter, and is disposed of in a manner authorized by the National Archivist.

Some interview clips on video cassettes purchased from the Public Service Commission are being used to help English and French speaking CSIS employees to prepare for oral interaction tests conducted as an administrative measure in support of the CSIS official languages program. The personal information in the cassettes is not being used for an administrative purpose respecting any of the individuals presented in the videos.

Canadian Space Agency

Chapter 32

General Information

Background

The Act of Parliament establishing the Canadian Space Agency was proclaimed into force on December 14, 1990. The Canadian Space Agency was created from divisions of the former Ministry of State for Science and Technology (MOSST), the National Research Council of Canada (NRC), the Department of Communications (DOC) and Energy Mines and Resources (EMR).

Responsibilities

The mandate of the Canadian Space Agency is to promote the peaceful use and development of space, to advance the knowledge of space through science and to ensure that space science and technology provide social and economic benefits for Canadians.

Legislation

- The Canadian Space Agency Act.

Organization

Communications

◆ Communications

The Directorate develops and implements a communications and public affairs, strategic plan to support the Canadian Space Program and to respond to public interest. This plan is based on a detailed environmental analysis which is also produced by the Directorate. A key role of the Directorate is to provide advice to the Minister, the Agency's senior management, and program managers on communications issues. In carrying out its functions, the Agency produces and distributes information and promotional materials to the media and to the general public, and monitors media coverage of the Canadian Space program. The Directorate provides an essential communications support to the Agency as a whole.

Corporate Services

◆ Administration

The Administration Directorate plans, develops, and implements programs in the areas of management, maintenance and construction of facilities, telecommunications and security. This Directorate also maintains an up-to-date inventory of assets, manages custom clearances as well as the contracts and procurement services. It also advises management on all matters related to these areas.

◆ Audit and Evaluation

The Directorate of Audit and Evaluation is accountable for providing Agency management with an independent capability to perform audits that are consistent with Agency and Central Agency policies, responding to Agency priorities, and enhancing the efficiency, effectiveness and economy of operations; and for providing essential input to the Agency's processes of policy/program formulation and resource allocations; also assists in carrying out evaluations of those programs/activities.

◆ Finance

The Finance Directorate is responsible for the development, direction and coordination of financial policies, procedures, systems and controls within the Canadian Space Agency; for ensuring that the requirements for acquisition, control and disbursement of funds, budgets and financial assets are met; for coordinating and preparing the Multi-Year Operational Plan and Estimates; for maintaining accurate financial and management accounting records; and for designing and producing corporate financial reports for all Agency activities.

◆ Human Resources

The Human Resources Directorate is responsible for the planning, development and implementation of sound, pro-active and progressive policies and personnel programs, needed to successfully locate, recruit, develop, effectively utilize and retain high calibre scientific, technical and support staff to meet the growing demands for space technology expertise within the Canadian Space Agency. The Directorate's activities focus on classification, staffing, compensation, staff relations, training and development and human resources planning. These activities assist managers in assuming their personnel management responsibilities. In addition, the Human Resources Directorate is responsible for the interpretation, application and monitoring of federal government official languages policies and programs within the Canadian Space Agency as well as for adapting these policies to the Agency's operational context.

◆ Information Management

The Information Management Directorate is responsible for ensuring that the Agency is provided with efficient and effective integrated systems to support operations, research, administration and management needs, and plans, develops, and implements programs in the areas of information technologies, management of information holdings and library services. It also coordinates the Access to Information and Privacy requests.

◆ Ottawa Office

The Ottawa Office is primarily responsible for facilitating the day-to-day interactions of the Canadian Space Agency with the Minister's office. This office coordinates the parliamentary liaison activities and is the custodian of Cabinet documents.

◆ Saint-Hubert Project Office

The Saint-Hubert Project Office is responsible for the delivery of the Agency's Headquarters in Saint-Hubert within the approved project definition, budget and established target dates. It supervises all of the project activities, from project definition to project delivery and evaluation following implementation.

Executive Offices

The President is the chief executive officer of the Canadian Space Agency. He is assisted by the Executive Vice-President, the Vice-President, Human Space Flights, the Director General, Radarsat, the Vice-President, Research and Applications, the Vice-President, Policy Coordination and Government Relations and the Vice-President, Corporate Services. A Director, Legal Services, a Director, Communications and an Audit and Evaluation Committee are part of the executive offices.

Human Space Flights

◆ Canadian Astronaut Program Office

The Canadian Astronaut Program maintains and trains astronauts to encourage and support the development and execution of Canadian scientific and technological programs in space, including the international Space Station Program. Canada's Astronauts collaborate with industry, universities and other institutes to undertake research that can be classified in two broad categories; space life sciences related to the adaptation of humans to microgravity, and applied sciences research to develop hardware and experiments to fly in microgravity. This type of research contributes to the development of new medical techniques and treatments, contributes to the advancement of space exploration, and may lead to the development of new products and processing techniques.

◆ Space Station Program Office

The Canadian Space Station Program Office is responsible for management and control of Canada's participation in the international Space Station project, as it relates to design, development, construction, testing, operation, utilization and evolution of the Mobile Servicing System (MSS) as well as technology transfer and intellectual property. This includes the Strategic Technologies in Automation and Robotics (STEAR) program for development within Canada's industry and research community of advanced technology capabilities to support evolution of the MSS. The User Development Program (UDP) supports the development of Canadian universities and industry as users of Space Station.

Policy Coordination and Government Relations

◆ External Relations

The Directorate provides strategic direction, support and expertise to the Agency in the areas of international and federal/provincial relations. It identifies opportunities for cooperation and opens doors to the Canadian space industry in the international market. Working in conjunction with a range of foreign space agencies, industries and international organizations to expand support for Canada's expertise in space, the Directorate manages the Agency's international cooperation MOUs and is the focal point for the Agency's relations with other federal government departments.

◆ Policy

The Directorate coordinates, analysis and develops policy initiatives, strategies and priorities respecting Canada's participation in national and international space programs. It serves as the focal point for coordinating space activities, coordinates the implementation of Canada's Long Term Space Plan and assesses progress made towards achieving Canada's space policy objectives.

RADARSAT

◆ RADARSAT Program Office

This office is responsible for managing the design, development, construction, testing and operation of the RADARSAT remote sensing satellite system in cooperation with several provincial governments, the private sector (Radarsat International), NASA and NOAA. The RADARSAT system is Canada's first remote sensing satellite system and will utilize a synthetic aperture radar to produce map-like images of the earth regardless of weather conditions. The images will have scientific and commercial applications in the monitoring of natural resources and environmental monitoring.

Research and Applications

◆ David Florida Laboratory

The Canadian Space Agency's David Florida Laboratory (DFL) is Canada's national facility for the environmental testing and integration of space systems, subsystems and components. On a fee for service basis, the DFL offers the Canadian space industry testing for their space products in the areas of thermal (thermal vacuum, thermal balance), structural (vibration, modal, static load), and RF (antenna, communications, payload, RF/EMC) verification. Additional facilities and services available through the DFL include large cleanroom highbay integration and storage areas, expert consultation on test programs, and test technology development for modern spacecraft. On a non-interference basis, and as schedules permit, testing and test support is also provided to Canadian non-space as well as foreign space and non-space companies. The facilities and services available through the DFL are unique in Canada.

◆ Space Mechanics

The Space Mechanics Directorate conducts a program of research and technology development within the Space Agency in four key technology areas: computer and intelligent systems, dynamics research, applied mechanics research and control systems.

◆ Space Optics

The Space Optics Directorate conducts research and development in three technology areas: remote sensing applications, spectroscopy applications and optical and electro-optical instrumentation.

◆ Space Science Program

This Division is responsible for planning, coordinating and implementing the space science activities in Canada. The Space Science Program supports five broad areas of research: astronomy, solar-terrestrial relations, the atmosphere, materials sciences in microgravity and space life sciences. The Program provides support to the Canadian science community by providing opportunities to participate in quality national and international programs through the development and provision of state-of-the-art scientific instruments and facilities. Almost all of the instrument development is contracted out to Canadian industry.

◆ Space Systems

The Space Systems Directorate conducts research and development in four key technology areas: spacecraft systems analysis, RF technology, digital technology and space systems applications.

◆ Space Technology

The Space Technology Branch conducts a program of research and development through three Directorates; Space Mechanics, Space Systems and Space Optical Technology. Also with the Branch is a R & D Contracts Office, with responsibility for technology transfer and intellectual property overview, as well as Earth Observation and Satellite Communication Program Offices responsible for liaison with national and international agencies involved in technology development.

Canadian Astronaut Program Office

Description: Information, correspondence, memoranda and technical material related to IML-1 Mission, CANEX-2 flight and other CAP microgravity projects, international and national agreements and all technical research and development within the program. Topics: Policy and agreements, general correspondence, finance, shuttle operational flights, public relations and speaking engagements, equipment, training, technical definitions, engineering and scientific studies and evaluations and scientific working groups. Program Record Number: SPA OPE 020

Communications

Description: Correspondence, reports, memoranda, general enquiries and requests from individuals and organizations. Topics: General correspondence; Annual Reports; Industry directories; mailing lists; communications strategies; publications; A/V documents; speeches; exhibitions. Program Record Number: SPA EXT 100

Contracts Administration

Description: The files contain general correspondence, proposals and evaluations, contracts and purchase orders with industry. Topics: Correspondence, contracts for professional services and purchase orders for materials, equipments and supplies. Program Record Number: SPA COR 200

David Florida Laboratory — Administration

Description: Correspondence; reports and memoranda pertaining to policies, contracts, test programs, program forecasts, and other administrative matters as they pertain to the overall operation of the laboratory. Topics: Policy; general correspondence; enquiries; visits/tours; facility use and loan agreements; co-operation and liaison with industry, federal departments, universities, associations, international organizations, and countries; technical support; resource documents; conferences and seminars; buildings and properties; equipment and supplies; and facility documents. Program Record Number: SPA APP 050

David Florida Laboratory — Operations

Description: Correspondence and documents on the operation of the individual test facilities (i.e. thermal vacuum, vibration, radio frequency). Topics: Environmental testing/ space simulation; thermal vacuum (infrared testing, outgassing studies, helium leak detection); (structural vibration, modal analysis, shock testing, static load, seismic block); radio frequency (passive intermodulation measurements, electromagnetic interference/compatibility, radar cross section measurements, spherical near field measurements); mass properties measurements (vertical and horizontal axis measurement systems); integration facilities (high bays, class 100,000 clean rooms); quality assurance; Data acquisition/data processing systems; enquiries and results of various subsystem and spacecraft level testing. Program Record Number: SPA APP 055

Information Holdings

Program Records

Audit and Evaluation

Description: Correspondence, reports, memoranda. Topics: Audit and Evaluation. Program Record Number: SPA COR 241

Economic Studies

Description: Studies, reports, analysis. Topics: Potential economic spin-offs of major space-related projects.

Program Record Number: SPA EXT 105

EDP Operations

Description: Information on the operation of the Division.

Topics: Administration and Scientists requirements; strategies, standards, policies, computer hardware/software, data communication, office automation, database management, EDP training, computer maintenance, technical support, computer needs, system development, internal and external EDP Professional consultants, future planning. Program Record Number: SPA COR 220

European Space Agency

Description: Correspondence, reports, memoranda, general enquiries and requests from industries relevant to Canada's membership in the European Space Agency.

Topics: General correspondence, Statutes, Annual reports, Council deliberations; ESRIN; financial data, reports of committees, progress reports on projects, contracts to Canadian firms, etc. Program Record Number: SPA EXT 110

Executive Vice-President

Description: Working papers, memoranda and correspondence with federal and provincial government departments, universities and industry on policy and planning; correspondence, memoranda and reports on the administration and operation of the Agency. Topics: General administration, speeches. Program Record Number: SPA EVP 010

Facilities Management and Telecommunications

Description: In accordance with Treasury Board and CSA policies, provide facilities and telecommunications service to all CSA employees. Topics: Processing requests regarding office disposition services, telephone system services, vehicle fleet management, parking management and forms management. Program Record Number: SPA COR 210

Federal/Provincial Relations

Description: Correspondence, reports, memoranda, general enquiries and requests from provinces. Topics: General correspondence, Annual Reports of Provincial Organizations, documents on provincial space activities and programs; Feasibility studies. Program Record Number: SPA EXT 115

Human Resources

Description: Correspondence, reports, memoranda, general enquiries. Topics: Organization charts, job descriptions, position classifications, staffing, planning, training, development, equity, redeployment, competition posters. Program Record Number: SPA COR 215

Industrial Development

Description: Correspondence, reports, memoranda, general enquiries and requests from industries and scientific organizations pertaining to economic and financial aspects of private organizations. Topics: General correspondence; Annual reports; Industry directories; regional conferences.

Program Record Number: SPA EXT 120

International Relations

Description: Correspondence, reports, memoranda, general enquiries and requests from industries and foreign organizations relevant to Canada's space cooperation activities with foreign countries and organizations. Topics: Foreign Agencies Annual reports, documents on foreign space activities and programs; NASA; NASDA; [etc]; Cooperation arrangements and MOUs; minutes of steering committees, Panels, working and ad hoc groups meetings. Program Record Number: SPA EXT 125

International Space University

Description: Correspondence, reports, course catalogues, memoranda, general enquiries and requests from individuals, relevant to Canada's contribution to the International Space University activities. Topics: General correspondence, Annual reports, Canada's contributions, Canadian ISU foundation; ISU permanent campus; ISU summer sessions. Program Record Number: SPA EXT 130

Inventory Control, Customs and Excises

Description: Coordination and steering of programs for Life Cycle Material Management of assets throughout the Agency. Topics: Statistics on Agency assets, movement of material on international level, recording and documenting capital acquisitions through crown research projects and grants establishing up to date information on equipment used throughout the Agency. Program Record Number: SPA COR 225

Ottawa Office

Description: The files contain ministerial and parliamentary relations information. Topics: Ministerial memoranda, memoranda to Cabinet, Treasury Board Submissions, Written and Oral Anticipated Questions, Correspondence. Program Record Number: SPA COR 205

Policy

Description: Correspondence, reports, briefs, memoranda, general enquiries and requests pertaining to Canadian space activities. Topics: General correspondence; space policy; Long Term Space Plan; programs. Canadian Space Program. Program Record Number: SPA EXT 140

President's Office

Description: Information on visits, lectures, gifts, interviews, correspondence with the Minister, outside enquiries on selection of staff, agenda, minutes and documents pertaining to executive committee and managers' meetings. Topics: General Administration, speeches, audits. Program Record Number: SPA PRE 005

Radarsat

Description: Information on the management of Canadian participation in the RADARSAT Program; the provision of international and national agreements and all technical research and development within the RADARSAT Program. Topics: Configuration management, equipment — RADARSAT Studies, ground systems, simulation facility, tests and integration, remote sensor development, solar arrays — technology, working groups, panel meetings and document reviews, regional development and technology exploitation. Program Record Number: SPA OPE 025

Records Management

Description: Information on the planning, development and implementation of records and of information systems and programs including related services. Topics: Records classification, records retention schedules, equipment relating to records, retrieval and reference services, mail and messenger services, review and analysis of forms, requests under the Access to information and privacy legislation. Program Record Number: SPA COR 240

Regional Distribution

Description: Correspondence, reports, memoranda, and data on the regional distribution of Canadian Space Program expenditures. Topics: General correspondence, regional distribution of space and space-related contracts and expenditures; industry team; Government team; SPAR MOU; data base. Program Record Number: SPA EXT 145

Saint-Hubert Project

Description: Correspondence, reports, acquisition programs. Topics: All acquisitions for furniture and equipment, definition of all programs which will be located in Saint-Hubert and the total budget for the Saint-Hubert Project. Program Record Number: SPA COR 230

Security

Description: The security Division is responsible for administering the Canadian Government Security Policy for the various programs of the Canadian Space Agency. It has responsibility to develop policies and procedures in the areas of access control, physical security, security of personnel, security of material, security of information technology, security of informatics and communications security. Topics: Data files are kept on the following topics; PROTECTED personnel information in support of the security clearance program, general investigation reports and general correspondence documents.

Program Record Number: SPA COR 235

Space Agency Forum

Description: Correspondence, reports, memoranda, general enquiries and requests from individuals, national and international organizations relevant to the Space

Agency Forum activities. Topics: General correspondence, reports of the Space Agency Forum, Hand-out for distribution; preparation and organization of meetings, participation in working groups. Program Record Number: SPA EXT 135

Space Mechanics

Description: Correspondence, memoranda, and working papers: general directorate correspondence; DOC — Agency; EMR — Agency MOUs and correspondence. Topics: current research activities include: dependable processing systems, knowledge based systems, control of large space structures, robot controls, sensor technology, materials & structures, thermal control technology, composite materials, dynamics/test of space structures, robot dynamics, and in-orbit characterization of SSRMS. Program Record Number: SPA APP 060

Space Optics

Description: Correspondence, memoranda, working papers and reports related to projects. Topics: general directorate correspondence; CRC. NRC and NSERC-Agency MOUs correspondence concerning current research activities: far infrared laser, bolometric detectors, detector passive cooling techniques, laser range finder, optical data processing techniques, optical fibre system elements, optical sensors for remote sensing, selective optical coatings, 3D-vision systems, object recognition systems. Program Record Number: SPA APP 080

Space Science Program

Description: Information, correspondence, memoranda and reports related to project planning, program forecasts, the management of the Space Science and User Development Programs, international and national agreements and all technical research and development within individual projects. Topics: Policy; general correspondence enquiries; administration and operation of the Division; visits; lectures; papers and talks; publicity; financial records; agreements and memoranda of understanding; co-operation and liaison with associations, international organizations and countries; public relations and speaking engagements; licences and permits; security; seminars; committees; finance, shuttle operational flights, equipment, training, technical definitions; engineering studies; satellite projects; space science program Development and planning group; Canadian Auroral Network for the Observation of Plasmas in the Upper Atmosphere and Space (CANOPUS) Data Analysis Network; Suprathermal Ion Mass Spectrometer (SMS); Viking Ultra Violet Imager; Waves in Space Plasmas (WISP); Wind Imaging Interferometer (WINDII); Ultra Violet Auroral Imager (UVAI); FREJA Cold Plasma Analyser (CPA); RADIOASTRON Radio Astronomy Program; Far Ultra Violet Spectroscopic Explorer; Measurement of Pollution in the Troposphere (MOPITT); General Excitation Mechanisms in Nightglow (GEMINI); Thermal Plasma Analyser (TPA); Observation of Electricfield Distribution in the Ionospheric Plasma: a Unique Strategy (OEDIPUS); Optical

Spectrograph and Infrared Imaging System (OSIRIS) for the ODIN satellite; Biocosmos; Balloon Anisotropy Measurement (BAM); Cosmic Ray Balloon Experiment (CRAYBEX); International Microgravity Laboratories (IML) I and II; Aquatic Research Facility (ARF); Torso Rotation Experiment (TRE); Neurolab/ (Visuo-Motor Coordination Facility) (VCF); Cosmic Background Radiation; Microgravity processes in Fluid Dynamics, Chemistry, Crystal Growth, Metals and Alloys, Glasses and Ceramics, Biotechnology and Combustion; Radiation Biology; Human Physiology; Canadian Float Zone Furnace (CFZF); Canadian Advanced Protein Crystallization Apparatus (CAPCA); Large Motion Isolation Mount (LMIM); Spacebound microgravity conferences; Canadian Space Agency Rocket (CSAR) Program; Parabolic Aircraft (T-33, Falcon & KC-135); Protein Crystallization. Program Record Number: SPA APP 065

Space Station Program Office

Description: Information on the management of Canadian participation in the Space Station Program; the provision of the Mobile Servicing System, including international and national agreements, all technical research and development within the Space Station Program, technology transfer agreements, licences and patents. Administrative, financial and technical information on all aspects of the STEAR program; STEAR contract proposals (commercial confidential), feasibility study reports delivered under contract. Topics: Configuration management, space robotics, Space Station studies, space assembly and maintenance systems, simulation, ground control facilities, materials in space, remote sensor development, solar arrays, NASA working groups, panel meetings and document reviews, regional distribution, technology diffusion, industrial development. Program Record Number: SPA OPE 030

Canadian Transportation Agency

Chapter 33

General Information

Background

The Canadian Transportation Agency (CTA) is a quasi-judicial tribunal which replaces the National Transportation Agency as a result of the proclamation of the Canada Transportation Act on July 1, 1996.

Responsibilities

The mandate of the CTA is that of an economic regulator and decision-maker with respect to transportation services under federal jurisdiction. Its responsibilities include the issuance of licences to air carriers and railways, a dispute resolution power over various air, rail and marine transportation rate and service matters, and the determination of the annual maximum rate scale for western grain movements. The CTA continues to have powers to remove undue obstacles to the mobility of travellers with disabilities in the federally regulated transportation network.

Legislation

- Aeronautics Act
- Canada Transportation Act
- Coasting Trade Act
- Energy Supplies Emergency Act
- Excise Tax Act
- Expropriation Act
- National Energy Board Act
- Pilotage Act
- Railway Relocation and Crossing Act
- Railway Safety Act
- Shipping Conferences Exemption Act, 1987
- St. Lawrence Seaway Authority Act

Organization

The CTA consists of a Chairman, Vice-Chairman and up to five other full-time and three part-time members.

The Agency comprises two program branches, Rail and Marine Transportation, and Air and Accessible Transportation, as well as two support branches, Corporate Management, and Legal Services, Secretariat and Communications.

♦ Air and Accessible Transportation Branch

The Branch protects the interests of consumers and carriers by ensuring that air carriers operating to, from and within Canada meet certain minimum economic requirements. To this end, it administers an air carrier licensing system, international air agreements and international air tariffs. The Branch is also responsible for ensuring that undue obstacles to the mobility of persons with disabilities are removed from federally regulated transportation services and facilities. Regional Field Investigators, responsible for the enforcement of CTA regulations and licence conditions, are located in Vancouver, Edmonton, Winnipeg, Toronto, Montreal and Moncton.

♦ Corporate Management Branch

The Branch is responsible for the design and operation of the CTA's management processes and related information systems; it also provides comprehensive services in support of CTA programs in the areas of informatics, records management, human resources, library, finance, planning and administration. It is responsible for developing and implementing personnel, finance, administration, information technology and official languages policies, systems and programs that will assist the CTA. It also ensures that the management of human resources and financial matters is in accordance with policies established by the central agencies.

♦ Legal Services, Secretariat and Communications Branch

Legal Services is responsible for providing legal advice to CTA members and staff. It acts as the Agency's legal representative at meetings, conferences, public hearings, inquiries, and, when required, at judicial proceedings in the Federal and Supreme Courts. Its other responsibilities include drafting and processing regulations in accordance with government policy. The Secretariat is responsible for recording CTA decisions and orders; and editing, reviewing, producing and issuing decisions, orders, reports and notices. It also plans CTA meetings, administers public hearings and inquiries, coordinates all translation services and produces the quarterly ministerial briefing notes. Communications provides information to the public and the news media on CTA decisions and orders, as well as on the programs administered by the CTA. It also maintains parliamentary liaison, coordinates ministerial and executive correspondence and produces the Annual Report.

♦ Rail and Marine Branch

The Branch is responsible for the following legislation and related CTA functions as they affect the rail and marine modes: the Canada Transportation Act, the Railway Safety Act, the Coasting Trade Act, the Shipping Conferences Exemption Act, 1987, the Pilotage Act and the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority Act.

With respect to the rail mode, the Branch administers various dispute resolution provisions relating to disputes between railways and other affected parties such as shippers, municipalities, utility companies, landowners and other railways. It also inspects railway accounting and operating statistics systems to ensure compliance with the law, sets the annual maximum rates for the transportation of western grain and undertakes railway costing activities as required under the Canada Transportation Act.

With respect to the marine mode, the Branch manages applications, complaints and investigations affecting various marine activities within federal jurisdiction.

Canadian Wheat Board

Chapter 34

General Information

NOTE: THIS INSTITUTION IS NOT SUBJECT TO THE ACCESS TO INFORMATION ACT.

Background

The Canadian Wheat Board was established by the Canadian Wheat Board Act in 1935 to provide for the orderly marketing of wheat, and since 1949, oats and barley, produced in the area designated by the Act. The marketing of oats was removed from the Board in 1989.

Responsibilities

The Board is obliged by law to purchase wheat and barley offered to it for sale by producers at an elevator or railway car and to pay an initial payment for same in accordance with the Act. The Board is then obliged to market this grain in interprovincial and international markets. The surplus proceeds received upon sale and available for distribution are divided equitably among the producers delivering grain to the Board after the initial payment made to the producers and the Board's operation costs are deducted. The Board is also responsible for administering a delivery system which is designed to maximize marketing opportunities, as well as allocate delivery opportunity among producers wishing to deliver grain for sale in interprovincial and international markets to elevators and railway cars. The Board also administers the Prairie Grain Advance Payments Act pursuant to which advance payments are made to producers undertaking to deliver wheat and barley as quotas permit.

Personal Information Banks

Grain Growers Advance Payment Records

Description: This bank is used to record the value of cash advances issued and refunds received from grain growers under the Prairie Grain Advance Payments Act. The information gathered is used to monitor the grower's repayment of monies advanced. Repayment is conditional on the grower's delivery and sale of grain as soon as he or she is able to do so. The information is shared with grain companies that act as agents of the Board in making and collecting cash advances. The information is summarized and controlled as required by the federal government. As of August 1990, it will be shared with those lending institutions specified by the producer which have a lien against the grain. Files are retained for three years following the retirement of the advance payment. Bank Number: CWB PPU 010

Grain Growers Delivery Records

Description: This bank contains a record of each producer certificate issued to a grower by a grain company, in payment for the grower's delivery of grain to the Board account. The growers delivery records are the basis for equitable distribution of profits realized from the sale of grain by the Canadian Wheat Board. The information produces statistical statements by district(s), grain company and type of grain. It is shared with Revenue Canada, Employment and Immigration Canada for unemployment insurance purposes and provincial crop insurance organizations. Files are retained for seven years. Bank Number: CWB PPU 015

Grain Growers Payment Records

Description: This bank contains a record of each payment made to grain growers which resulted from an increase in the price paid for grain or from the profits realized from the sale of grain by the Canadian Wheat Board. The information is maintained to control the value of payments and monitor bank cashings, lost cheques, uncashed cheques, etc. Statements are produced showing the value of payments by district(s), kind of grain, date of issuance, date of bank clearance and for other control purposes. Information in this bank is shared with Revenue Canada, Agriculture Canada's NISA and GRIP programs, and in the case of non-resident producers with their representatives in Canada and the Bank of Montreal. Files are retained for seven years. Bank Number: CWB PPU 005

Grain Growers Permit Records

Description: This bank is used to establish and maintain a record of each grain growers' entitlement to market grain under the quota system. Under the authority of the Canadian Wheat Board Act, this bank may contain the Social Insurance Numbers of those producers who chose to supply them. The permit book application information is used to monitor and record grain growers' delivery and sale of grain to Board Account and verify grain growers' entitlement for Cash Advances under the Prairie Grain Advance Payments Act. The grower's name and address are used to distribute profits realized from the sale of grain. Summary statements are produced by district(s) and type of grain for planning purposes. Information in this bank is used to prepare voters' lists for Canadian Wheat Board Advisory committee elections. Various components of the information are also shared with Revenue Canada, Agriculture Canada (including its Special Canadian Grains Program, the Drought Assistance Program and its NISA and GRIP programs), Canada Customs for inter-provincial and export licences, provincial crop insurance organizations, various other provincial institutions, departments and related commodity groups and universities for consistent use and statistical research purposes and the grain companies who are agents of the Board. Files are retained for seven years.

Citizenship and Immigration

Chapter 35

General Information

Background

The federal government has administered immigration matters since Confederation. The Department of Citizenship and Immigration (CIC) was created by an Act of Parliament which received Royal Assent on June 23, 1994. This brought together the Citizenship Registration and Promotion component of the Department of Canadian Heritage (previously with the former Department of Multiculturalism and Citizenship); the Immigration Policy, Selection and Enforcement components of the former Department of Public Security (previously with the department of Employment and Immigration); and the Immigration Settlement component of the former Department of Human Resources and Labour (previously part of Employment and Immigration). The Department reports to Parliament through its Minister, who is also responsible for the independent Immigration and Refugee Board (IRB). The IRB functions are separate from those of the Department. CIC's authority stems from the Immigration Act and the Citizenship Act. These provide the Deputy Minister, the Minister and Governor-in-Council with the discretionary authority required to develop and implement responsive and flexible policies and programs.

Responsibilities

The Department of Citizenship and Immigration Act establishes a specific federal mandate for the Minister of Citizenship and Immigration. This mandate includes all matters relating to the administration of the programs and policies of immigration and citizenship that are not assigned by law to other departments, branches or agencies of government.

The Department of Citizenship and Immigration Canada's mission is to build a stronger Canada by deriving maximum benefit from the global movement of people; managing access to Canada; defining membership in Canadian society; and protecting refugees at home and abroad.

The Department of Citizenship and Immigration Act establishes a specific federal mandate for the Minister of Citizenship and Immigration. This mandate includes all matters relating to the administration of the programs and policies of immigration and citizenship that are not assigned by law to other departments, branches or agencies of government.

The Department of Citizenship and Immigration Canada's mission is to build a stronger Canada by deriving maximum benefit from the global movement of people; managing access to Canada; defining membership in Canadian society; and protecting refugees at home and abroad.

The department consists of three main sections: Service Lines, Program Delivery, and Strategic Support. Each section is composed of a number of branches whose Directors General report directly to the Deputy Minister and are guided by an Associate Deputy Minister and two Assistant Deputy Ministers (Operations and Partnerships). The Associate Deputy Minister works closely with the Deputy Minister to set departmental priorities and to develop strategies to meet these goals. The ADM, Operations' role is to ensure that departmental processes are well designed and maintained, and that the various branches work together harmoniously towards a common purpose. The ADM, Partnerships makes sure that CIC takes full advantage of partnerships with other departments, central agencies, provincial governments, other national governments, international agencies and the private sector. Another important function of the position is to ensure that CIC remains client oriented in all its activities.

Organization

Departmental Support

This group is responsible for providing specialized support in leading the Department as it fulfils its broader role in the governance of Canada to support the Minister the Deputy Minister and those charged with the overall management of the Department and to provide services to branch heads.

◆ Case Management Branch

The Case Management Branch directs the development of strategies and procedures for the efficient management and coordination of cases, including the resolution of cases which have security, organized crime, criminal and potentially serious public policy dimensions and which require a representation to the Minister's personal attention/or for which special exemption is sought from the provisions of the Immigration Act and Regulations

◆ Finance and Administration

The Finance and Administration Branch provides services, advice and information to departmental management concerning the financial and administrative management of the Department's policies and programs. This includes: providing financial policies and systems; providing accounting services; managing the loan portfolio; developing cost recovery/revenue generation plans; developing resource management plans for reallocating departmental funds or securing funding approval through central agencies to fund departmental programs; providing financial analysis and reporting services; providing facilities and real property asset management services; and supplying materiel, contracting and security services.

◆ Human Resources Branch

The Human Resources Branch provides a full range of personnel services such as staffing and classification, official languages, pay and benefits, training and development services to staff, as well as management of staff relations, professional conduct, employee assistance, workforce adjustment, workforce analysis, human resources planning, awards and diversity management programs. This branch also develops, disseminates and monitors human resources policies and programs.

◆ Information Management and Technologies Branch

The Information Systems and Technologies Branch is responsible for the design, development, implementation and maintenance of all of Citizenship and Immigration Canada's automated systems which are utilized for the effective delivery of the departmental information holdings and ensures the integrity and accuracy of those holdings. The branch establishes and administers all policies and standards related to information technology. Finally, the branch is responsible for the effective introduction and innovative use of all information technology solutions for the department

◆ Ministerial and Executive Services

The directorate consists of Briefings and Parliamentary Affairs and Ministerial Enquiries and Public Rights Administration. It is responsible for support and coordination services to the office of the Minister, Deputy Minister and Associate Deputy Minister. The branch is also responsible for the management of access to information, privacy and human rights activities.

◆ Public Affairs Branch

The role of the Public Affairs Branch is to provide services which will meet the communications needs of the Minister, Deputy Minister, the department and its clients. The Branch informs the public, in both official languages, about departmental policies, programs and services, alerts key audiences to major new initiatives, and provides advice and guidance to the Minister and senior departmental officials on all aspects of public affairs activities. Public Affairs is divided into six units: Media Relations, Service Line Communications, Departmental Communications, Research and Analysis, Departmental Publishing Services, and the Director General's Office. The key functions carried out by these units include media relations; speechwriting for the Minister and senior departmental officials; communications advice and planning; community education and outreach; internal departmental communications; public environment research; program-related communications assistance; and departmental publishing.

Public Affairs is also responsible for the maintenance and upkeep of the departmental Internet Web Site. The Web Site gives access to a wide variety of departmental publications, and includes answers to frequently asked questions.

◆ Strategic Policy Planning and Research Branch

SPPR ensures Departmental policies, program and management processes are integrated and focused on the public interest and are connected to the broad government agenda.

The Federal-Provincial Relations, Partnerships and Projects component: establishes frameworks and acts as the Department's focal point for federal-provincial relations and other strategic partnerships; manages existing immigration agreements; establishes negotiating frameworks; manages federal-provincial negotiations for immigration agreements; manages negotiations of memorandums of understanding on the exchange of information with provinces, regional governments and municipalities; and supports other branches in federal-provincial consultation exercises.

The Policy component: establishes policy frameworks for the Department; provides strategic policy advice and briefings for the Minister and the Deputy Minister on government-wide and Department-wide issues; and provides leadership in the development of Departmental processes to prioritize policy issues.

The Planning and Review component: leads the development of Departmental planning and review processes and products; provides advice and support to Service Lines on the review of new and existing programs and activities; and develops planning and accountability processes.

The Research component: provides support to policy and program development; develops and manages the Departmental Research plan; and is the Departmental focal point for the development and contracting of research.

The Regulatory Affairs component: supports other branches in the development of regulations and legislation; and is the focal point for relations with central agencies on regulatory and legislative issues.

Program Delivery

Program delivery will be responsible for the delivery of CIC programs.

♦ Departmental Delivery Network

The Departmental Delivery Network (DDN) provides integrated program management and delivery on a product line basis in Canada. It ensures that CIC's seven centralized points of service have access to management and program support.

DDN includes a small NHQ structure (including Support Services and Program Services Divisions), three central processing centres (Case Processing Centres are in Vegreville, Alberta (CPCV), in Mississauga, Ontario (CPCM), and in Sydney, Nova Scotia (CPCS)), and four Ottawa-based central points of service (Interim Federal Health Program; Immigration Health Services; Immigration Warrant Response Centre; and Query Response Centre).

The Support Services Division is responsible for developing national systems for Information Management, Information Technology, Human resources practices, finance and administrative matters.

The Program Services area manages the major projects and initiatives of which DDN has the lead. It supports the other branches of CIC with the aspects of their projects that require service delivery expertise. Under the Program Services area, the Citizenship Services Division is responsible for issues relating to the delivery of the Citizenship program, and is the principal contact for issues related to CPCS. The Immigration Services Division provides advice, guidance and operational instructions on the immigration program to CPCM AND CPCV.

CPCV opened for full processing on April 1, 1994 and is responsible for:

- 1) Visitor Extensions; 2) Student Authorizations; 3) Employment Authorizations; 4) Minister's Permit Extensions; 5) Immigrant Applications for Landing in Canada; and 6) Right of Landing Fee (ROLF) Loans.

CPCM is the national case processing centre for all immigration Family Class sponsorships and is responsible for reviewing undertakings to determine eligibility of sponsors; assessing the financial information provided by sponsors and determining whether or not they will be able to meet their obligations; providing administrative support from Family Class sponsorships, i.e., liaison with Le Ministère des Affaires internationales de l'Immigration et des Communautés Culturelles (MAICC), respective provincial adoption ministries, ministries of social services, and issuances of appeal notices to sponsors.

CPCS has operated since 1984 and provides direct service to 31 citizenship courts across Canada. Through the Citizenship Registration System (CRS), the staff administers the Citizenship Act while serving as a citizenship card production centre.

The Interim Federal Health (IFH) Program which was known as the Non-Insured Health Benefit Program under Health Canada. Transferred to CIC on April 1, 1995, IFH is designed to cover emergency and essential health care costs for refugee claimants, refugees and others under immigration control.

The Immigration Health Services Division is responsible for centralized medical processing in North America; developing medical assessment guidelines; maintaining quality assurance standards; and providing statistical and qualitative medical information.

The Immigration Warrant Response Centre is responsible for upholding the Memorandum of Understanding between CIC and the Canadian Police Information Centre (CPIC) Services, Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

The Query Response Centre is responsible for all requests for verification of admission records of immigrants and visitors to Canada; all enforcement cases for Immigration; inquiries; and court cases.

♦ International Region

The International Region is responsible for the delivery of Canada's immigration programs at Canadian missions abroad. This includes immigrant selection, non-immigrant processing, immigration medical services, interdiction, and reporting and liaison. The International Region plays a lead role in international migration, and in the co-ordination of the Department's international activities, particularly with respect to relations with Foreign Affairs and International Trade (DFAIT), other countries, and multilateral organizations. The International Region comprises eight divisions — Asia and the Pacific, Africa and the Middle-East, Western Hemisphere, Europe, Resource Management, Personnel, Operational Co-ordination and Overseas Medical Services. The International Region is responsible for the delivery of all program activities at Canadian diplomatic missions around the world. This includes all operational aspects of immigration programs such as delivery of annual immigration levels; management of immigration, visitor and refugee programs abroad; ensuring a consistent approach across geographic regions; and co-ordination and liaison with other departments and agencies such as Canadian Security Intelligence Service (CSIS), Health Canada and the RCMP. The International Region ensures that the delivery of the program is consistent with Canadian law and policy and with Canada's bilateral and multilateral foreign policy interests.

Resource Management is responsible for the maintenance of an operational structure through the allocation of financial and human resources to ensure global immigration is consistent with levels established by Cabinet. This includes those resources in the DFAIT financial base that support the immigration program.

Operational Co-ordination is responsible for the development and dissemination of statistical information relevant to international operations, communications policies and activities with missions abroad, managing overseas mission reconfiguration, promotion and recruitment, and issues of global interest within the International Region.

In consultation with the departmental Human Resources and Finance and Administration Branches, the Personnel Division is responsible for the management of human resources relating to the International Service.

Overseas Medical Services identifies immigrants, refugees, and certain classes of visitors who are medically unfit for admission to Canada, for those applicants applying at missions abroad. In association with Health Canada (Occupational and Environmental Health Services), it ensures that federal employees and dependants are medically fit for posting abroad and helps them to remain healthy while serving abroad.

The four geographic branches are responsible for managing the delivery of immigration, visitor and refugee programs at missions within their respective territories.

Service Line Management

This Group is responsible for policy development, program design and direction for CIC's core Service Lines. Service line branch heads are accountable to the Deputy Minister for all Service-line related issues, up to but not including program delivery. Each branch is responsible for policy development, program design and direction of one of the four core CIC Service Lines.

♦ Enforcement Branch

The Enforcement Branch directs the development of strategies, policies, procedures and guidelines to support the implementation of the enforcement component of the Immigration Program and to monitor enforcement operations to ensure consistency.

♦ Integration Branch

The role of the Integration Branch is to develop policy and programs that define and promote membership in Canadian society by: maintaining an enduring federal role in the decentralized delivery of settlement and integration services; articulating the rights and responsibilities of persons in Canada; and granting and enhancing the role of Canadian citizenship. The Integration Branch oversees the delivery of programs under its jurisdiction through a network of national partnerships, as required. The Integration Branch is composed of three divisions:

Citizenship Program, Citizenship Policy, Education and Promotion, and Settlement Programs.

♦ Refugees Affairs

Refugees Affairs is composed of the Asylum, Resettlement, International Liaison and Refugee Program Support Divisions. They are responsible for the management of refugee policy, programmes and targets; liaison with the Immigration and Refugee board (IRB); representing the interests of CIC and the Government on international migration issues; and coordinating reporting and liaison activities.

♦ Selection

The Selection Branch is responsible for the development of policy, program design and procedural guidance affecting the selection of people to Canada both immigrants and non-immigrants. The goal is to develop policy with an operational perspective, provide procedural guidance to the field both nationally and internationally, and feed back field perspectives into the policy-making process.

The Social Policy and Programs Division is responsible for development of policy and programs for the social benefit of Canada including the new sponsorship criteria, issues relating to the family class, Humanitarian and Compassionate reviews of the live-in caregiver program and special classes of immigrants who may be landed in Canada.

The Economic Policy and Program Division is responsible for developing policy and designing programs for the economic benefit of Canada including the selection criteria for skilled workers, for all non-immigrant programs including foreign students and temporary workers, for returning residents and for provincial nominees. The Division is also responsible for international agreements (e.g. NAFTA, GATS, etc.) concerning temporary entry of business persons.

The Immigration Health Policy Division is responsible for the legislation on medical inadmissibility. It is also responsible for developing immigration health policy in consultation with federal and provincial partners and for maintaining liaison on immigration health issues with federal government departments, other immigrant receiving countries, and with international organizations.

The Business Immigration Division is responsible for ensuring regulatory controls and requirements are met with regard to the current entrepreneur and investor programs and for the design of the Business Immigration Program.

The Service Line Support Division is responsible for the establishment of branch objectives and monitoring of branch policy and program performance, for the development of the annual immigration plan for production of annual statistics and management reports including levels and mix information, and for ensuring compliance with program guidelines and directives.

Electronic Data Processing (EDP) Systems

Description: Information on systems used for gathering or amending statistics and other types of information necessary for the operational support of the immigration function and programs. The Immigration Group uses an integrated clerical, manual and EDP system to deliver its programs and services. The following sub-systems support the various immigration programs and services. These sub-systems may support several of the information banks already described; the numbers of the corresponding banks are given in all instances. All sub-systems (except the Settlement Management Information System) are linked to each other, either by a full computer connection (interface), or by information enabling a physical check of the systems. Therefore, actions in one sub-system can and do effect the smooth running of others. Approximately 25 separate immigration forms, with a total volume of 1,000,000 documents, are processed through these sub-systems each year. (1) Immigration Data System Overseas (IDSO) (EDP-1); Immigration Data System Canada (IDSC) (EDP-2); IDSO and IDSC maintain a record of all applications for permanent resident status either at an overseas office or from within Canada. The systems produce information in support of the recruitment and selection function. The data are case-oriented and can only be accessed by providing the case serial number recorded on the landing record. Files, including microfilm records, date back to 1975. Records are kept for 15 years. (EIC PPU 225) (2) Landed Immigrant Data System (EDP-3): The Landed Immigrant Data System retains a permanent record of the granting of permanent residence to individuals. Its main purpose is to create an official name index which is used by immigration officers in Canada and abroad to verify an individual's status in Canada as well as legal proof of residence for citizenship, Old Age Security, Family allowance, welfare, etc. In addition, information from the system is the sole source for all the Departments' reports on permanent residents. (EIC PPU 230) (3) Visitor Data System (EDP-4): The Visitor Data System retains a permanent record of all persons who have been granted permission to enter or remain in Canada for a temporary period either as a visitor, student, temporary worker or permit holder. Its main purpose is to create an official name index which is used by immigration officers in Canada to verify an individual's status in Canada. In addition, information from this system is the sole source for all the Department's reports on visitors and Minister's permit holders. Data to produce the annual report to Parliament on Minister's permits are retained in this system. (EIC PPU 285; 290; 295; 300) (4) Enforcement Information Index (EII) (EDP-5): See EIC PPU 265 for details. (5) Enforcement Data System (EDS) (EDP-6): (See EIC PPU 270 for details.) (6) Field Operational Support System (FOSS) (EDP-7): FOSS is designed to provide relevant information in order to allow status checks by field offices via computer terminal. It is the basic support of the inland and port of entry function. The feeder systems are: Enforcement Information Index (EII); Enforcement Data System (EDS), the Landed Immigrant Data System, and Visitor Data System (VIDS). FOSS output is available through an on-line terminal system in Canada. (7) Settlement Management Information System (SMIS): It is used throughout Settlement as the basic tool for management of programs and services. Provides Settlement information on the contracted non-governmental organizations for monitoring the effectiveness of Settlement services as well as a record of adjustment assistance granted to newcomers in need. The information is used in the administration of financial assistance loans. Settlement programs are: Immigrant Settlement and Adaptation Program (ISAP) (PPU 250), the Host Program (PPU 226) and the Adjustment Assistance Program (AAP) (PPU 235), and Language Instruction for Newcomers to Canada (LINC). A set of EDS (EIC PPU 270) and EII (EIC PPU 265) cases produced on microfiche is distributed to posts (embassies and consulates) abroad. (8) The Computer-Assisted Immigration Processing System (CAIPS) is an automated processing system which has replaced the processing of paper files in some visa offices abroad. Information is entered from the application forms submitted by applicants for immigrant and visitor visas, returning residence permits and student and employment authorizations. Information taken from documents submitted in support of these applications can also be entered into CAIPS. The information is used in the processing of the applications. Data from applications for student and employment authorizations are downloaded to FOSS and are available to officers at the port of entry. Data are normally retained on the CAIPS system at the mission which dealt with an application for a period of two years from the date of the last administrative action, and basic file data, such as the name of the applicant and the kind of visa applied for, can be retained indefinitely. The visa officer has the option of retaining the complete file for a longer period. (9) The STAIRS (Stand-Alone Immigration Reporting System) is designed to capture immigration and visitor information from non-CAIPS immigration missions overseas in a timely, accurate and automated manner, to produce operational reporting functionality to the mission, and to transmit this operational data to HQ for further processing in IDSO and

ISIS. There are at present seventeen STAIRS missions overseas. STAIRS enables the users to; Search by applicant and/or dependent in an automated case index; Print non-immigrant visas; Track by case status; Produce MOR (Monthly Operational Report), Key Indicators, and Operational Reports such as Pending (Bring Forward) and Cases Overdue, Wordperfect mail, merge and export capabilities to other software; Allows automatic conversion of full database to CAIPS at the time of CAIPS implementation. Topics: Information systems generally; standard statistical coding for completing forms; information-gathering systems (employment clearance, occupation, transportation tables, native language); data systems (immigrants processed abroad and in Canada, permanent residents, monthly program reports, special information retrieval procedures, foreign nationals visiting Canada). Storage Medium: Microfilm, magnetic tape or disk. Program Record Number: CIC IMM 110

Evaluation of Immigration Programs

Description: Information on the efficiency and effectiveness of the Immigration Program. Topics: Studies and projects on the assessment of the overall impact of the Immigration Program including an evaluation of refugee programs; examination of visa officer and port-of-entry officer decision-making processes; evaluation of the business immigration program and its impact on the Canadian economy; evaluation of the effectiveness of Primary Inspection Line (PIL); information on immigration recruitment and selection activities and subsequent labour market performance by class. Storage Medium: Paper and magnetic tapes. Program Record Number: EIC SPP 665

♦ Ministerial and Executive Services

Ministerial Inquiry & Correspondence Services

Copies of internal and external correspondence addressed to or handled by the Minister's and Deputy Minister's offices, as well as information related to its processing. Letters written by the general public or their representatives, and by MPs, private sector and other governmental and non-governmental organizations may include enquiries, requests, advice and opinions on the policies and programs of CIC and on the handling of individual cases. They may also deal with individuals employed by CIC and questions on quality of service. Memos and other briefing documents may deal with the same topics and individuals. Information is retrievable by personal identifier, including names of individuals and file numbers, from the automated Ministerial correspondence System containing processing and control data and from paper files containing copies of actual documents. The personal information contained in this correspondence is not used for an administrative purpose.

Ministerial Inquiry Unit

Receives telephone and fax queries from MP's, Senators, NGO's, lawyers, consultants, the media and the general public. This includes requests for ministerial intervention, and compliments, complaints, comments and questions on specific cases, legislation, procedures, ministerial announcements and quality of service. Liaises with Minister's Office staff on ministerial intervention requests from MP's, lawyers, NGO's and members of the general public, particularly when requests are deemed by MIU to have significant political implications. Liaises with Case Management Branch, International Service Sector, and other departmental officials in responding to representations. Liaison with International Service on quality of service issues affecting MIU.

♦ Public Affairs Branch

Public Affairs

Distribution mailing lists, both on paper and computer disks, which include individuals, as well as groups and media, who receive various departmental and branch publications, notably press releases and speeches, or who are targeted to receive promotional/educational or information materials (e.g. NCW and other campaigns) or key documents or legislation (e.g. Annual Immigration Plan). This information is not retrievable by personal identifier.

♦ Integration Branch

Immigration/Citizenship

Letters written by the general public asking for information on the programs and responses to these letters are placed on CIC program files and are not retrievable by personal identifiers. They may, however, contain personal information. Any questions relating to CIC's programs and services are referred to the appropriate program group and letters from the public will be found in the relevant program files. Mailing lists may be found by consulting the Public Affairs Branch.

Copyright Board Canada

Chapter 36

General Information

Background

The Copyright Board was created by a series of amendments to the Copyright Act which were proclaimed on February 1, 1989. It also has attributions under the Free Trade Agreement Implementation Act. It replaced the Copyright Appeal Board which had been responsible since 1935 for approving annual tariffs respecting the public performance of music. The Copyright Board is designated as a department in accordance with and for the purposes of the Financial Administration Act.

Responsibilities

The Copyright Board is an independent administrative tribunal which has five principal attributions:

approve tariffs for the retransmission of distant radio and television signals; approve tariffs for the performance or the communication by telecommunication of musical or dramatico-musical works;

arbitrate disputes on copyright fees between licensing bodies representing classes of copyright owners and users of their works; rule on applications for non-exclusive licences to use published works of unlocatable copyright owners; and set compensation, under certain circumstances, for formerly unprotected acts in countries that later joined the Berne Convention, the Universal Convention or the Agreement establishing the World Trade Organization.

The Board reports annually to Parliament through the Minister of Industry.

Legislation

- Act to amend the Copyright Act, S.C. 1988, c. 15
- Act to implement the Agreement establishing the World Trade Organization (Bill C-57, 1994, S.C., C.47)
- Act to implement the Free Trade Agreement between Canada and the United States of America, S.C. 1988, c. 65
- Copyright Act, R.S.C. 1985, c. C-42

Organization

The Board consists of a chairman, a vice-chairman and a maximum of three other members, all appointed by the Governor in Council. The Chairman, who must be a judge of a superior, county or district court, directs the work of the Board and apportions its work among the members of the Board. The Vice-Chairman, who is the Chief Executive Officer of the Board, supervises and directs the work of the Board's staff. The senior staff of the Board consists of the General Counsel and the Secretary to the Board.

Correctional Investigator Canada, The

Chapter 37

General Information

Background

The Office of the Correctional Investigator was established by Part II of the Inquiries Act. The office investigates complaints from inmates as defined in the Penitentiary Act and reports upon problems of inmates that fall within the responsibility of the Solicitor General of Canada and meet the following conditions:

- (1) The subject matter of the complaint concerns an incident occurring within twelve months of the lodging of the complaint;
- (2) The complainant has taken, in the opinion of the Commissioner, all reasonable steps to exhaust legal or administrative remedies;
- (3) The subject matter of the complaint does not involve the preparation of material for consideration by the National Parole Board.

The Commissioner need not investigate if the subject matter of a complaint has previously been investigated, or in the opinion of the Commissioner, a person complaining has no valid interest in the matter.

Responsibilities

The Correctional Investigator investigates and reports on the problems of inmates that come within the responsibility of the Solicitor General of Canada (other than those problems raised on complaint in certain defined circumstances). Investigations are undertaken at the request of the Solicitor General, on the Investigator's own initiative, or upon complaint from or on behalf of inmates as defined in the Penitentiary Act.

Legislation

- Parole Act and Regulations
- Penitentiary Act
- Penitentiary Service Regulations
- Prison and Reformatories Act

Organization

The Office of the Correctional Investigator comprises three secretarial/administrative positions, a director of investigations and five investigators.

Correctional Service of Canada

Chapter 38

General Information

Background

In 1977, the Correctional Service of Canada (CSC) was formed through the amalgamation of the Canadian Penitentiary Service and the National Parole Service.

Responsibilities

Mission: The Correctional Service of Canada, as part of the criminal justice system, contributes to the protection of society by actively encouraging offenders to become law-abiding citizens, while exercising reasonable, safe, secure and humane control. The CSC provides programs for offenders from pre-admission until the expiration of their sentence. In order to carry out its responsibilities, the Correctional Service creates files to hold information on prisons, organizations and occurrences that affect or may affect it in the carrying out of its mandate. Information must be collected from and shared with numerous sources, such as the community at large, with special consideration for victims of crime, as is explained in the section "General Information on Data Matching", at the end of this chapter.

Legislation

- Corrections and Conditional Release Act, SC 1992, c. C-20
- Criminal Code RSC, 1985, c. C-46
- Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1976
- Criminal Records Act RSC, 1985, c. C-47
- Prison and Reformatories Act RSC, 1985, c. P-20
- Young Offenders Act RSC, 1985, c. R-1

Organization

Audit and Investigations Sector

This sector is responsible to the Commissioner for the convening of Investigations at the National level as well as for the conduct of operational audits. This includes the development of policy and standards as well as the training of investigators for Investigations convened at the National, Regional and Operational Unit levels. The Sector is also responsible for the implementation of The Security Policy of The Government of Canada within the Correctional Service of Canada.

Commissioner Office

This Commissioner, under the direction of the Solicitor General, manages and guides the policies and programs of the Correctional Service of Canada. Included in this office is a Senior Deputy Commissioner who supports the Commissioner in the management and direction of the Service.

Communications and Corporate Development Sector

This sector is responsible for the development and formulation of a comprehensive corporate policy framework, strategic planning and international development, and for research, program evaluation, and communications.

♦ Communications Branch

The Communications Program is implemented by all managers and all employees of the Service. Communications support is provided nationally by the National Headquarters Communications Division and by five Regional Communications branches. Reporting to the Assistant Commissioner, Communications and Corporate Development, the Communications Branch is responsible for preparing strategic communications plans to support corporate objectives, and preparing and carrying out operational plans that support the strategic plan. The Branch has three separate components that work to carry out the communications function. Media Affairs deals with the media on a daily basis responding to inquiries and providing background data to media on government announcements and initiatives. Creative Services is responsible for all publications, exhibits and periodicals such as "Let's Talk" and "Forum". It is also responsible for the management of the Public Inquiries Program and ensures the provision of administrative functions to the whole of Communications Branch. The Public Participation and Consultation component educates the general public and creates links to the community by working with victims groups, provincial and municipal officials and, other community based organizations.

♦ Policy Planning and International Development Branch

Responsible for developing a corporate policy framework, reviewing all policy proposals and for liaison on correctional policy issues with the agencies of the Ministry of the Solicitor General and with other external groups involved in the criminal justice system. Also responsible for strategic planning to assist the Service to identify and respond to emerging issues, opportunities and trends in its internal and external environment and to assess the Service's performance in key areas to determine opportunities for improvement. In addition, develops a framework for international development and cooperation between CSC and other correctional jurisdictions.

♦ Program Evaluation and Information Analysis Branch

Responsible for the provision of program evaluation and information review and analysis within guidelines established by the Central agencies and as directed by the Commissioner. The branch provides the Commissioner and the Executive Committee (EXCOM) with advice and information to improve program effectiveness and enhance the Service's ability to meet its Mission. Evaluation studies are conducted which are diverse in scope and duration ranging from the mandate and processes of a major activity or program to a specific program support activity. The branch is also responsible for analyzing information to ensure the Solicitor General, the Commissioner, and EXCOM are aware of issues and trends relative to the management and operation of the correctional program and its mandate.

♦ Research and Statistics Branch

Responsible for coordinating and executing policy and program-related research activities for the Correctional Service of Canada. Case Management — Community Bank

Description: Since 1991, as a result of the shift of case preparation from the community to the institutions, the CSC gradually introduced a major change to its case management records system. The existing three-bank case management records system, CSC PPU 035 Case Management — Institution "A", CSC PPU 040 Case Management — Institution "B", CSC PPU 030 Case Management — Community was phased out; as a result of the conversion the CSC has one, single ACTIVE case management bank called "CSC PPU 042 Case Management Bank". (a) ALL the records filed before the conversion on the CSC PPU 030 Case Management Community Bank remain active and are transferred to the new "CSC PPU 042 Case Management Bank", (b) the name CSC PPU 030 Case Management — Community Bank disappears; (c) ALL case management records, be they generated from then on in the institution or in the community, are filed on the one, single case management bank CSC PPU 042 Case Management Bank. Therefore, all the CSC PPU 030 Case Management — Community records that were held on the former CSC PPU 030 Case Management — Community Bank are now all on the CSC

PPU 042 Case Management Bank. In order to access a CSC PPU 030 Case Management Community Bank the requester merely has to request the CSC PPU 042 Case Management Bank and he will thus get all his former CSC PPU 030 Case Management — Community records. Status of CSC PPU 030 Case Management Community Bank for offenders who were under CSC jurisdiction BEFORE the conversion of the case management records system and who DID NOT return under CSC jurisdiction: The CSC PPU 030 Case Management Community Bank remains inactive. This bank remains accessible under the Privacy Act. Status of CSC PPU 030 Case Management Community Bank for offenders who were under CSC jurisdiction BEFORE the conversion but who came back under CSC jurisdiction AFTER the conversion of the case management records system: The CSC PPU 030 Case Management Community Bank is: (a) retrieved from Archives, (b) the name CSC PPU 030 Case Management Community is deleted, (c) the content of this former CSC PPU 030 Case Management — Community Bank is reactivated and the file is renamed CSC PPU 042 Case Management Bank. From then on, the CSC continues filing ALL case management records on the offender on this one, single, CSC PPU 042 Case Management Bank, be they generated in the community or in the institution." This bank contains records and data on an offender's release programs as well as background information on his/her incarceration. It may contain information provided under expressed or implied confidentiality related to the offender's conduct, such as routine police reports, community investigations and information of a general investigative nature. This bank also encompasses any operational information in this area that may be required by the CSC to carry out its mandate under the relevant statutes. Class of Individuals: Individuals who are or have been incarcerated in a federal institution; or individuals who belong(ed) to a provincial jurisdiction but whose case preparation and supervision are (were) effected by the Correctional Service of Canada (Example: provincial offenders serving time in Nova Scotia). Purpose: To provide documentation to assist in the decision-making process for parole. Consistent Uses: This bank is used in the preparation of penitentiary placement and release. Classes of Personal Information

Administrative Inquiries

This group is a class of records on incidents involving offenders, staff or members of the public regarding injury sustained while on institutional property, damage or loss of personal property or departmental property and other unusual incidents such as fires which might result in a claim against the Crown. Individuals seeking access to these records must provide the location and the approximate date the inquiries was held. This class of records is used to process claims for and against the Crown, to establish the nature and length of disabilities and to determine the need for establishing or revising internal operating procedures. Records are retained for ten years. Historical records are transferred to the National Archives of Canada.

Appreciation, Complaints, Inquiries

This group is a class of records generated by members of the public, or staff such as: letters of appreciation, complaints and general inquiries. The data contained in this class of records is only used for an administrative purpose in cases where a complaint or inquiry is acted upon. Individuals seeking access to these records must provide the approximate date that the letter of appreciation, complaint or inquiry was initiated. These records are retained for two years. Historical records are transferred to the National Archives of Canada.

Complaints and Criticisms

This group is a class of records on complaints or criticisms received from staff regarding conditions of employment, including those from the Human Rights Commission and the Anti-discrimination Branch of the Public Service Commission. Individuals seeking access to these records must provide the approximate date the complaint or criticism was lodged. This class of records is used to record information dealing with complaints or criticisms involving staff and to make specific decisions to resolve the matter. Records are retained for three years.

Correctional Investigator Inquiries Records

This group is a class of records on inquiries initiated by the Correctional Investigator. This class of records is used to analyze and make action recommendations resulting from these inquiries conducted by the Correctional Investigator. These records are retained for ten years. Historical records are transferred to the National Archives of Canada. Data matching occurs with the correctional investigator.

Disciplinary Court Hearings

This group is a class of records on disciplinary court hearings. For each session of disciplinary court, audio recordings are made which contain the transcripts of the hearings on offenders who have been charged while incarcerated in an institution. This class of records is used to make decisions on the discipline of offenders resulting from the disciplinary court and during the grievances process. Individuals seeking access to these records must provide the name of the institution in which they were charged and the date of the disciplinary hearing. It should be noted, however, that records may be obtained by the offender by sending a written request directly to the warden of the institution where the disciplinary hearing occurred. These records are retained for two years following the suspension of all actions relating to the disciplinary hearing. No data matching occurs.

Information Services — Inquiries

This group is a class of records on miscellaneous inquiries received from the public, outside organizations and other government departments on services performed by the Department. This class of records is used to respond to requests to interview employees and offenders from external sources such as the media and provincial organizations. Individuals seeking access to these records must provide the approximate date that the inquiry was initiated. These records are retained for two years. Historical records are transferred to the National Archives of Canada.

Institutional Security Threats

This group is a class of records on national and international groups, organizations and criminals. This class of records is used to provide background information on threats to institutional security and to provide reports on all security investigations to aid in preventing recurrences. Individuals seeking access to these records must provide the location and approximate date of the threat or investigation. These records are retained for ten years. Historical records are transferred to the National Archives of Canada. Data matching occurs with NPB, law enforcement agencies and provincial authorities.

Ministerial Inquiries

This group is a class of records on inquiries received from the public, outside organizations and other government departments on parliamentary matters, and material agendas and decisions of Cabinet. This class of records is used to prepare ministerial correspondence resulting from these inquiries. Individuals seeking access to these records must provide the subject matter, and approximate date the inquiry was initiated. Records are retained for five years. Historical records are transferred to the National Archives of Canada.

Research/Public Opinion Research

This is a class of records generated by research subjects, offenders or staff who participate in research, including public opinion research, on a vast spectrum of topics, conducted in the Correctional Service of Canada.

Retrievable records consist of data gathering instruments such as, but not exclusively, questionnaires containing personal information that reveals the identification of the research subject. Data contained in this class of records are not used for administrative purposes. Individuals seeking access to these records must provide the title of the research project in which they participated, the location and date of the research, and any other data that may help to identify and locate the personal information they are seeking. No data matching occurs.

Security Inquiries

This group is a class of records on serious security incidents. For each incident, the report includes the inquiry terms of reference, facts gathered and recommendations. This class of records also encompasses police reports and intelligence assessments and is used to provide documentation to prevent recurrences of security incidents. Individuals seeking access to these records must provide the type of incident, the location and approximate date of the incident. These records are retained for ten years. Historical records are transferred to the National Archives of Canada. Data matching occurs with NPB, law enforcement agencies and provincial authorities.

Special Investigations

This group is a class of records on special investigations performed by the Audit and Investigations Sector on a wide variety of operational matters. The reports of the investigations include the terms of reference, facts gathered and recommendations. This class of records is used to resolve incidents involving offenders or employees and to correct, where required, methods of operation and internal procedures. Individuals seeking access to these records must provide the investigation, the location and approximate date it was initiated. Records are retained for five years. Historical records are transferred to the National Archives of Canada.

General Information on Data Matching

Data Matching — Data Sharing

Within the mandate of the Correctional Service of Canada (CSC) is the requirement to share data with other areas of the Criminal Justice Community, to ensure that offenders are appropriately managed in a safe, secure and humane environment, and to ensure the safety of the offender, other inmates, staff and the community at large. Also, in order to accomplish its mandate the Service needs the information provided by other agencies and therefore a match is conducted.

Data Matching with Law Enforcement Agencies (Municipal, provincial, international, federal police forces or another law enforcement body).

Following an offender's sentence to a federal institution, the CSC requests a Criminal record (history information from the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP)). This information is used to assess the impact of the offender's criminal behaviour and to alert staff who will deal with the offender. CSC also requests a police report from the arresting and/or investigating law enforcement body in order to have a full understanding of the events surrounding the offence.

Following a sentence to a federal institution in the case of foreign nationals, the CSC must also request from the Inland Service (Immigration) that they provide it with information that is relevant to the administration of the offender's sentence and to the case management process.

When an offender is released to the community, there is a requirement to notify the RCMP and/or the local police force, and, when necessary, the Inland Service (Immigration), of the offender's address and the terms and conditions of the release. If an offender violates conditions of release, or is considered to be a risk, CSC will issue a warrant for the apprehension of the offender. The warrant is transmitted to the local police and entered into the Canadian Police Information Centre (CPIC) system, and also the police are requested to locate and apprehend the offender.

Data Matching with the National Parole Board

CSC data is matched with the National Parole Board (NPB). With the implementation of the OMS (Offender Management System) there will be one integrated system to meet the demand of both agencies.

While it is CSC's responsibility to manage the offenders for the duration of their sentence, it is the NPB's responsibility to assess the offender's progress during incarceration, their risk to society, and their potential for successful reintegration into the community as law-abiding citizens. CSC information is shared with NPB pertaining to all aspects related to the offender prior to and during incarceration. Once NPB has assessed the information, and through a hearing process, makes their decision, CSC is notified. If the Board makes a decision to conditionally release an offender, it is CSC staff who are responsible for the supervision and control of the offender in the community and keeping NPB informed of the offenders' progresses.

Data Matching with Provincial Authorities

An offender who is sentenced to a period of incarceration of two years or more, will serve this sentence under the jurisdiction of CSC. Offenders sentenced to less than two years will serve their sentence under a provincial jurisdiction. However, the Service is doing the case preparation and supervision for some provinces who do not have a Parole Board.

Often an offender will have a history of provincial incarceration, further, prior to sentencing the offender could be held in a provincial institution or a remand centre. Information collected during any period of incarceration is deemed significant and sometimes crucial to the successful management of that offender. It is for these reasons that information is routinely shared and matched between CSC and provincial authorities which include also the Boards of Education and Hospitals.

Information is also requested from the sentencing judge and could also be requested from the Crown Attorney, from Provincial Parole and Probation Services. This information is used by CSC in the management of the offender and decision-making process.

Method of Data Matching/Sharing

In the preceding descriptions of CSC data matching/sharing, every effort is taken to ensure that the data matched/shared concerns the same individual. In order to validate that the different agencies are dealing with the same individuals, a number of personal identifiers are matched.

These included Name, Sex, Date of Birth, Finger Print Series Number (FPS) and in some cases physical features.

CSC may conduct or assist others in conducting ad hoc data matching for the purpose of the enforcement of any law (i.e. Criminal Code).

Organization

Access to Information and Privacy Division

This division is responsible for administering the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act for the Department. It processes requests submitted under the legislation, handles complaints lodged with the Information and Privacy Commissioners and responds to informal enquiries. The Division also provides advice and guidance to departmental officials on matters which concern the legislation.

Canada Investment and Savings

Canada Investment and Savings is a Special Operating Agency within the Department of Finance responsible for the retail component of the government's debt obligations, including the strategy, management and performance. The Agency was created in August 1995 and the name was changed from "Canada Retail Debt Agency" to "Canada Investment and Savings" in September 1996 to better reflect the agency's mandate. The Agency has three main functions:

◆ Marketing Services

Conceptualizes the government's overall marketing and communication strategy for the retail debt program (e.g. Canada Savings Bonds), develops and implements marketing plans and advertising campaigns for existing and new products, and monitors performance.

◆ Product Management

Maintains existing instruments and develops and introduces new retail debt products.

◆ Sales and Distribution

Manages the delivery network for the family of retail debt products, develops new partnerships with financial institutions, explores and pilot tests new distribution channels including electronic alternatives and ensures easier access to existing Government of Canada retail debt products.

Co-managed with the Treasury Board Secretariat

Crown Corporations and Agencies and Privatization

◆ Crown Corporations Policy

Provides a focal point for the government's relations with Crown corporations by advising generally on the financial requirements and on the development of policy and legislation for Crown corporations and their subsidiaries.

◆ Privatization

Plays a central role in the privatization of federal Crown corporations, other corporate holdings and government services that no longer require government ownership or direct delivery to fulfill a public policy role. The process itself is complex, requiring consideration of a broad spectrum of public policy, financial and employee concerns to ensure the longer term viability of the entity/service in the private sector and fair treatment of the employees. The rigorous five stage process followed consists of initial analysis, in-depth review, legislation where required, preparation for sale, an implementation of the sale. Following these steps ensures full consideration of all factors and allows for decisions to be taken at appropriate intervals.

Consultations and Communications Branch

This branch is responsible for managing a comprehensive communications and consultations program for the Department.

◆ Communications Policy and Strategy Division

Role is to research and write major ministerial speeches, prepare departmental communications plans and strategies for economic initiatives, and monitor and analyze media coverage of economic affairs.

◆ Public Affairs and Operations Division

Prepares announcements and departmental publications, carries out media and public relations programs. The Division also is responsible for planning and managing consultations with Canadians and private sector as a permanent feature of the economic policy development process. It is responsible for departmental correspondence and provides coordinating expertise and service in the areas of official conferences and meetings.

Corporate Services Branch

The role of this branch is to assist the Deputy Minister of Finance and the Secretary of the Treasury Board in the management of the internal administration of their organizations and to provide financial, personnel, administrative and management advice to branches and divisions. The Branch consists of six divisions: Administrative Services; Informatics Services; Financial Services; Human Resources; Security Services; and Systems Integration and Process Re-engineering Division.

Economic and Fiscal Policy Branch

This branch analyzes and appraises all factors affecting Canada's economic and financial situation and recommends measures to meet the requirements of appropriate fiscal policies. It also analyzes and forecasts the financial requirements of the government of Canada.

◆ Economic Analysis and Forecasting Division

This division has primary responsibility for monitoring and analyzing current Canadian economic conditions and the economic outlook and for the preparation of quarterly economic forecasts for the Canadian (national and provincial) and U.S. economies and annual economic forecasts for the other G-7 economies. It also prepares assessments of the impact of policy measures and other events on the Canadian economy. In addition, the division produces the quarterly publication entitled "Economy in brief".

◆ Economic Development Policy Secretariat

The major role of this secretariat is to provide analytical support for and policy advice to the Minister of Finance on a wide range of economic, fiscal, and financial issues related to the microeconomic policies of government.

◆ Economic Studies and Policy Analysis Division

The division has primary responsibility for anticipating major policy issues the government of Canada is likely to face, develops tools to analyze these issues, prepares analysis and research of the highest calibre and, based on all this, recommends policy advice in both macroeconomic and structural areas. The technical work undertaken in the division is made public in the form of a working paper series.

◆ Fiscal Policy Division

This division has primary responsibility for advising on fiscal policy and analyzing the financial requirements of the Government of Canada and for monitoring and analyzing the developing fiscal positions of other levels of government. It also has primary responsibility for analysis and advice on the government's fiscal framework and co-ordinating the department's advice to the Minister on overall spending priorities. The division plays a key role in the budgetary process, and is responsible for the preparation of the Fiscal Monitor, as well as several budgetary papers. In addition, the division reviews the form and content of the Public Accounts and other statements for which the Minister has responsibility under the Financial Administration Act.

Federal-Provincial Relations and Social Policy Branch

This branch is responsible for providing policy advice on federal-provincial fiscal arrangements and social policy programs.

◆ Federal-Provincial Relations Division

This division is responsible for the federal government's major transfers to provinces and territories. It also provides advice on all matters pertaining to the federal-provincial fiscal arrangements, including the Canada Health and Social Transfer, Equalization, Stabilization and Territorial Financing.

◆ Social Policy Division

Advises on the development of the federal government's social policies as well as on specific proposals in the major functional areas of labour market, income security and socio-economic programs.

Financial Sector Policy Branch

This branch provides policy analysis and advice with respect to the financial sector.

◆ Financial Markets Division

Provides policy analysis and recommendations with respect to the management of the federal government's borrowing program, the public debt and debt issues in both domestic and foreign markets, borrowing policy relating to Crown corporations, loan guarantees, analysis and policy advice on matters respecting the exchange rate, international reserves and balance of payments, and trends and developments in Canada's financial markets.

◆ Financial Sector Division

Develops and analysis policies applicable to Canada's financial institutions. Among its responsibilities, this Division leads work on issues related to development of policy to ensure the proper regulation of the sector. This includes consideration of legislative changes to be considered by Ministers, considerations of precedent-setting transactions and developing policies on such matters as clearing and settlement, payments systems and deposit insurance. Also, the Division leads work on federal-provincial issues as well as international relations and negotiations, business financing and consumer issues, and industry analysis. Finally, the Division will be responsible for developing and seeking passage of the 1997 package of legislative reforms.

International Trade and Finance Branch

This branch has the responsibility for international trade, investment and economic and financial co-operation; the Canadian Customs Tariff and other legislation governing imports; the international monetary system, defence programs, international development assistance and export financing.

◆ International Economic Relations Division

Assists in the development of Canada's policies on international trade and investment by monitoring and evaluating the international trading environment and making recommendations on import policy issues.

◆ International Finance and Economic Analysis Division

Responsible for all aspects of international monetary, financial and development issues, as well as defence issues. Provides analysis and policy advice on international economic policy coordination.

◆ Tariffs Division

Responsible for tariff policy. Investigates and conducts economic assessments on proposals for amendments to the Customs Tariff and related matters and participates in international trade negotiations.

Tax Policy Branch

This branch undertakes analysis of and makes recommendations on tax policy issues and prepares appropriate legislation for passage through Parliament.

♦ Business Income Tax Division

Undertakes economic and quantitative analysis of tax policy issues in the areas of corporate, business and resource sector taxation.

♦ Federal-Provincial Taxation Group

♦ Intergovernmental Tax Policy Group

Policy and administrative responsibility for the federal-provincial income tax collection agreements and analysis of issues in the area of federal-provincial tax relations. Reviews Indian taxation and develops federal policy on Indian taxation in the context of self-government.

♦ Personal Income Tax Division

Responsibility for economic and quantitative analysis of personal income tax matters, including tax issues that have a bearing on the government's economic and social policy objectives. Seeks to develop policies in the area of personal income taxation that are consistent with the government's overall policy objectives.

♦ Sales Tax Division

Analyzes and develops federal sales and excise tax policy.

♦ Tax Legislation Division

Provides policy advice from a legal and structural perspective on income tax related issues applicable to persons, corporate entities and tax-exempt entities and drafts amendments to the income tax law required to implement budget proposals and other tax policy statements.

Department of Justice Canada

Chapter 41

General Information

Background

The Department of Justice was created by the Department of Justice Act, passed at the first session of Parliament of the Dominion of Canada, and assented to on May 22, 1868. This Act outlined the responsibilities of the Minister of Justice and the Attorney General of Canada and, with a few exceptions, these responsibilities have remained substantially unchanged.

Responsibilities

The work of the Department consists of litigation, provision of legal advice and opinions to the federal government of Canada on a very wide range of matters, and the drafting of legislation, contracts and other legal documents. The Department is also concerned with the legal aspects of developing government policy, and prepares recommendations or reviews recommendations, for reform of the law. To carry out these responsibilities, the Department uses federal Statutes and Regulations. In addition, contributions are made to provide financial assistance to organizations conducting studies and legal research and to other law-related programs. A limited number of grants is made in connection with legal education, and cost-sharing agreements are entered into with provincial and territorial governments in connection with young offenders, compensation of victims of violent crimes, legal aid in criminal cases for adults and young offenders, native court worker programs, and access to legal information. The Department also undertakes research in support of policy initiatives and other departmental responsibilities.

The role of the Federal Department of Justice does not include the provision of legal services or advice to members of the public.

Organization

Deputy Minister's Office

The Office provides essential support services to the Deputy Minister. It ensures appropriate communication and liaison on policy and operational issues between the Deputy Minister and the Minister's Office, the Department and other government departments and agencies.

Canadian Unity Group

The Canadian Unity Group includes the Office of the Associate Deputy Minister and provides assistance to the Government of Canada with respect to Canadian unity and other constitutional issues.

Civil Law and Corporate Management Sector

The Civil Law and Corporate Management Sector includes the Office of the Associate Deputy Minister and has dual roles and responsibilities.

The Sector is responsible for litigation involving the federal government in the province of Quebec and for providing legal services with respect to real property and commercial law in Quebec. The Sector is also responsible for promoting and protecting the bilingual and bijuridical nature of Canada's justice system, advising on the overall direction and management of all departmental interactions with the province of Quebec, for coordinating the participation of the Department in the 'Comité d'experts sur la coopération juridique et judiciaire pour la Francophonie', and for evaluating the impact of the new Civil Code of Quebec on federal practises.

The Sector also provides administrative support services related to finance, human resources, accommodation, security, telecommunications, computer systems, information management and all other logistical elements common to government departments. The Sector is also responsible for legal and other contracts, management reviews, internal audits, family law assistance systems, the Central Registry of Divorce Proceedings as well as corporate services, including the Access to Information and Privacy Office, the Departmental Library, and Corporate Legal Training.

Access to Information and Privacy Office

The Office is responsible for administering the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act for the Department of Justice. It processes requests submitted under the legislation, handles complaints lodged with the Information and Privacy Commissioners and responds to informal enquiries. The Office also provides advice and guidance to Justice officials on matters which concern the legislation.

Civil Code Section

The Civil Code Section is responsible for bringing the administration of the federal government into line with the new civil law of Quebec. The Section has a mandate to harmonise federal statutes that impact on the private law with the civil law of Quebec in order to ensure improved application of federal legislative policy in the province. In addition, the Section provides a civil law research and consultation service and is involved in policy development and training as well as in preparing and revising information manuals on the civil law of Quebec that may have an impact on federal activities in the province.

Civil Litigation and Real Property (Quebec) Section

The Section is responsible for litigation involving the federal government in the province of Quebec (except in districts within the jurisdiction of the Montreal Court of Appeal) and for real property law matters in Quebec.

The Commercial and Property Law (Quebec) Section has general responsibility for providing functional direction to all lawyers in property law matters, and for providing policy and legal advice to federal departments and agencies in matters of property law.

Corporate Management Policy, Systems and Services Directorate

The Directorate consists of seven divisions: Planning and Resources Management Division; Financial Management Division; Contracts and Material Management Division; Facilities Management Division; Protective Services Division; Family Law Assistance Section; and Contraventions Project. The Directorate provides support services to departmental officials, managers and employees in the areas of strategic resourcing, finance, administration, special programs, and security. The Directorate is involved in the following main activities: providing research management services (e.g., financial planning and strategic resourcing analysis and advice, operational planning, development of strategies, identification of required level of resources); developing, implementing and maintaining financial policies and systems and providing accounting services and administrative services; managing material and contracting services, as well as maintaining related systems and providing facilities management; managing special programs (e.g. the Family Orders and Agreements Enforcement Assistance Unit, the Central Registry of Divorce Proceedings, the Garnishment Registry and the Contraventions Project); providing physical, personnel, contract, communications and informatics security/protective advice, training and services (including business resumption planning), and implementing corporate protective programs in these areas.

Francophonie and Visitors Programs

The Office of the Coordinator for the Francophonie is responsible for departmental and interdepartmental coordination of Department of Justice activities and initiatives relating to the Francophonie. This involves coordinating legal and judicial cooperation in francophone countries in order to ensure that it meets the objectives and priorities adopted by Canada in this regard. The Office is also responsible for coordinating initiatives taken to promote bilingualism and bijuralism within the Department and in its partners such as the implementation of Part VII of the Official Languages Act designed to promote the growth of official language minorities in Canada.

The Office is also responsible for coordinating the Visitors and Professionals Interchange Program, which is designed to facilitate and promote exchanges of professional skills between the Department of Justice and its partners. In particular, it gives employees the opportunity to participate in external projects of great interest to the Department and enables it to invite professionals whose expertise or views are not available within the Department to accept short-term assignments to the Department.

Human Resources Directorate

The Directorate is responsible for managing, developing, implementing, and advising on a wide variety of human resources management programs and policies, including those in the areas of staffing, classification, staff relations, compensation, employment equity, human resources planning, training and development, and official languages.

Information Management Directorate

The Information Management Directorate (IMD) consists of six divisions: Application Division, Informatics Services Division, Library Services Division, Planning and Communications Division, Project Support and Administration Division, and Records Services Division. IMD is responsible for providing information technology (corporate networks, hardware, applications, systems and services), library and records services to the Department of Justice.

Internal Audit

The mandate of the Internal Audit Section is to conduct an independent assessment of key programs, operations and systems, and to provide objective information on the adequacy of the management framework in place, in terms of the cost-effectiveness of program delivery activities and internal operations, the economical and efficient use of resources, the protection of these resources, the integrity and utility of information, and compliance with statutes and policies.

Legal Education Division

The Division coordinates central legal training activities in the Department. Its clients include employees from the Department and from client departments. The Division also offers special training to other groups as needed, including training for standing legal agents and for magistrates in Haiti.

Office of Conflict Resolution

The mandate of the Office of Conflict Resolution is to implement the departmental policy on harassment in the workplace. The Office is responsible for administering formal harassment complaints, for resolving informal conflicts through mediation and conciliation and for providing advice and training to managers and employees on appropriate workplace behaviour. In addition, the Office is responsible for reporting on the nature of the complaints and conflicts, and for presenting its recommendations to the Deputy Minister and senior management on conflict prevention and resolution.

Quebec Regional Office

The Quebec Regional Office provides legal services to federal government departments and agencies working in Quebec, especially in civil litigation matters in the territory within the jurisdiction of the Quebec Court of Appeal sitting at Montreal, and in taxation and criminal cases throughout the province of Quebec with the exception of the National Capital Region,. The Office consists of the Civil Litigation Section, the Criminal Prosecutions Section, the Tax Litigation Section, the Administration Section and the Human Resources Section.

Renewal Secretariat

The Renewal Secretariat is responsible for assisting managers in improving the effectiveness and efficiency of the Department's activities and operations. It oversees and facilitates the implementation of the Choices for the Future Task Force Reports and Program Review recommendations; and facilitates and manages change in the Department.

The Secretariat is responsible for: monitoring and coordinating, on behalf of the Deputy Minister, the implementation of the Choices for the Future and Program Review summary plans and all detailed workplans; coordinating and monitoring an Investment Fund; providing management support services; directing and coordinating business process reengineering projects; and providing general corporate support to the Civil Law and Corporate Management Sector.

Communications and Executive Services Branch

The Communications and Executive Services Branch is responsible for managing and conducting all aspects of the Department's communications, both internally and externally. It coordinates material for Question Period, as well as briefing notes on Supreme Court decisions and other matters. It takes care of the logistics of the Minister's participation in Cabinet and standing parliamentary committees. In consultation with various sectors, the Branch also prepares replies to correspondence addressed to the Minister.

Director General's Office

The Director General's Office is responsible for the overall direction and administration of the Branch. It also organizes departmental corporate events and special projects and coordinates the Branch's communications initiatives on firearms.

Executive Services Division

The Executive Services Division has two main areas of responsibilities: Parliamentary Affairs and Cabinet Affairs.

Parliamentary Affairs is responsible for the coordination of the legislative process for Justice Bills; the preparation of responses to Parliamentary Committees' reports; Justice related items on Private Members' Business; Question Period; the preparation of responses to petitions and to questions raised in the House and in the Senate that require written responses; and lateshows. Parliamentary Affairs also has a coordination and advisory role with respect to appearances before Parliamentary Committees.

Cabinet Affairs is responsible for the coordination and provision of advice on Cabinet approval of Justice policy initiatives; the coordination and/or preparation of appropriate briefing material for the Minister for Cabinet and Cabinet Committee meetings; and the receipt, circulation and return of Cabinet documents to the Privy Council Office.

Ministerial Correspondence Unit

In consultation with departmental officials, the Ministerial Correspondence Unit prepare replies to correspondence addressed to the Minister.

Operations and Ministerial Services Division

The Operations and Ministerial Services Division provides front-line service to the public (inquiry lines and distribution of publications), manages federal-provincial-territorial communications and networks, and coordinates communications with other government departments. The Division also makes arrangements for advertising or wide-ranging communications programs, including the preparation of material for the news media, exhibits, videos, and feature articles. It provides distribution plans and compiles the public information material required when bills are introduced. The Division also operates various public and interest group outreach programs, including the Department's Speaker's Bureau.

The Division has daily contact with the media and the public and prepares news releases, updates on court cases, summaries of departmental achievements, and other educational and information materials for the news media and general and specialized publics. It monitors public response to proposed legislation or existing policies and keeps subject files of news clippings and transcripts.

Planning, Advice and Programs Communications Division

The responsibilities of the Planning, Advice and Programs Communications Division are divided into three areas: communications planning, communications advice, and program communications. Activities include communications research, environmental analysis, and the preparation of communications plans for Memoranda to Cabinet and communications strategies for a wide array of internal and external initiatives.

Publishing and Corporate Communications Division

The Publishing and Corporate Communications Division assists sectors in planning and implementing their publications and projects. This Division provides expert services and advice in areas such as publishing, writing, editing and design, and producing publications. It is also responsible for internal communications products including the departmental newsletter, Inter Pares, and does focus-group testing for external communications products.

Legal Operations Sector

The Legal Operations Sector includes the Office of the Associate Deputy Minister, Legal Operations. The Sector is responsible for the delivery of legal services to clients, including legal advisory and litigation services and, in collaboration with the Legislative Services Branch, legislative services. The Sector amalgamates a diverse range of areas in the Department of Justice legal practice, from public to criminal law, to litigation, business, finance and aboriginal law, to name a few.

The Sector serves government departments and agencies in the National Capital Region and all regions of Canada through its network of Regional Offices, except the Quebec Regional Office. It is organized along portfolio lines and client services grouped together under the following main areas: Civil Litigation, Specialized Legal Advisory Services, Criminal Law, Tax Law Services, Citizenship and Immigration Law, Aboriginal Affairs, Business Group, Central Agency Group, Regulatory Group, and the Regional Offices.

The Associate Deputy Minister, Legal Operations, is responsible for the coordination, planning and supervision of all Sector services provided to government clients.

Aboriginal Affairs

This portfolio includes the Office of the Assistant Deputy Attorney General, Aboriginal Affairs. The portfolio carries out a wide range of responsibilities in relation to Aboriginal matters: it advises the government on broad issues that are not the responsibility of any one program department (eg. Metis and non-status Indians); it develops positions on legal policy issues such as management of the Crown's fiduciary obligations; it coordinates native litigation on behalf of the Crown; it provides legal advice to the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development (DIAND); and it leads and manages the Government's Aboriginal Justice Initiative.

◆ Aboriginal Justice Directorate

The Aboriginal Justice Directorate administers the government's Aboriginal Justice Strategy, which has been developed to help implement justice programs in Aboriginal communities, particularly communities wanting to negotiate self-government arrangements. The Strategy has two major objectives. The first is to respond to the aspirations of Aboriginal people to assume greater responsibility for the administration of justice in their community. The second is to help reduce the rates of crime and incarceration among Aboriginal people.

◆ Legal Services Unit of Indian Affairs and Northern Development

This Legal Services Unit is divided into several legal teams. Specific Claims (East and West) works with DIAND to implement the government's Specific Claims Policy; provides legal advice and representation at negotiating tables; represents the federal Crown on matters before the Indian Specific Claims Commission; and provides legal and policy advice on client driven initiatives such as the development of an independent claims commission. The Federal Treaty Negotiations Office provides legal support to DIAND in the negotiations of claims by British Columbia First Nations, submitted under the Comprehensive Land Claims Policy, and supports the government in its dealings with the British Columbia Treaty Commission and the Treaty Negotiation Advisory Committee. Indian Affairs and Self-Government provides legal support to DIAND in relation to the administration of the Indian Act, in the negotiations of self-government agreements, in policy development and administrative issues related to the operations of DIAND. Comprehensive Claims and Northern Affairs provides support to DIAND in the implementation of the Comprehensive Land Claims Policy (with the exception of British Columbia) and support to DIAND in fulfilling their responsibilities in the North.

◆ Native Law Section

This Section coordinates Aboriginal law matters in the Department in order to ensure consistency of legal advice, early identification and consideration of emerging Aboriginal law issues and the presentation of a uniform view on Aboriginal law issues to other departments and agencies.

Business Group

The Business Portfolio includes the Assistant Deputy Minister, Business Law, and 15 on-site legal services units: Atlantic Canada Opportunities Agency, Canadian Commercial Corporation, Canadian Heritage, Canadian International Development Agency, Canadian Space

Agency, Federal Office of Regional Development (Quebec), Foreign Affairs and International Trade, Industry Canada, National Defence, National Research Council, Natural Resources Canada, Public Works and Government Services, Royal Canadian Mint, Transport Canada and Western Economic Diversification. It also includes the Property Law Unit and four Secretariats.

The Business Portfolio is the departmental center of expertise for business and trade law (both international and interprovincial), as well as communication law. Moreover, the Portfolio provides legal opinions and advice on legislation, regulations, negotiates agreements and conducts litigation in selected areas. In addition to providing advice on the specific legislation, policy and programs of each of its clients, the common thread of business law runs through their activities and covers an important part of the advice provided by the Business Group.

The Property Law Unit provides property law advice not only to portfolio clients, but also to all other clients of the Department of Justice. The Commercialization Coordination Secretariat, Electronic Commerce Secretariat, Intellectual Property Secretariat and Maritime Law Secretariat coordinate work in their respective areas of activity.

Central Agency Group

The Central Agency Group is composed of the Office of the Assistant Deputy Minister and five Legal Services Units providing on-site legal services to central agencies in their respective areas of activity. Two legal services units serve the Department of Finance: General Legal Services and the Tax Counsel Division. In addition, one unit serves each of the following clients: the Office of the Superintendent of Financial Institutions, Treasury Board and the Public Service Commission.

Citizenship and Immigration

The Citizenship and Immigration Portfolio provides legal services to the Department of Citizenship and Immigration (the client department). This portfolio includes the Office of the Assistant Deputy Attorney General, the Legal Services Unit of the Department of Citizenship and Immigration, the War Crimes Section, and the Immigration Sections of the Regional Offices that provide services to the client department.

The portfolio provides legal advice on operations and on policy and program development; represents the Minister of Citizenship and Immigration in all immigration and citizenship proceedings before Canadian courts (including citizenship revocation and deportation proceedings); coordinates the delivery of litigation services by the Department of Justice's Regional Offices; and helps ensure that uniform legal positions are taken across the country.

◆ War Crimes Section

The War Crimes Section is responsible for prosecuting Criminal Code offences involving war crime and crimes against humanity committed outside Canada; litigating citizenship and deportation cases where wartime activities or crimes against humanity committed abroad have fraudulently been hidden; advising immigration officials in cases involving allegations of war crimes or crimes against humanity; and advising and providing direction to the RCMP in war crimes and crimes against humanity investigations.

Civil Litigation

The Section includes the Office of the Assistant Deputy Attorney General, Civil Litigation, and comprises two areas:

◆ Civil Litigation Section

This Section, along with its counterparts in the Regional Offices, is responsible for the conduct of all litigation by or against the federal government, except tax and criminal litigation. The practice ranges across many areas of law, including administrative, admiralty and maritime, constitutional, contract, employment, environment, human rights, immigration, language, native law and trade law. Civil litigation services are provided to virtually every federal department and agency. Counsel appear before all levels of provincial and federal courts and before many federal administrative tribunals and international panels, such as NAFTA panels. Civil litigation counsel also advise on potentially litigious issues and are involved in finding policy and legislative solutions to problems that have come, or may come, before the courts.

Civil litigation services are provided by departmental litigation counsel and, in appropriate cases, by private sector lawyers appointed as agents of the Attorney General of Canada and working under the instruction of departmental litigation counsel.

◆ General Counsel Group

This group consists of senior lawyers with broad experience and expertise in the conduct of major litigation. They handle particularly complex and high profile litigation having significant financial and operational implications for the Crown.

Client-Driven Services and Portfolio Support Secretariat

This unit provides the administrative, financial and research support for the Client-Driven Services initiative. This is the primary vehicle of the Department of Justice for delivering high-quality and cost-effective service to client departments and agencies. The aim is to develop and implement, in partnership with clients, a management framework for allocating resources based on a joint planning and resource allocation process on a three-year cycle.

Criminal Law

The Criminal Law Branch is comprised of the Office of the Assistant Deputy Attorney General, the Criminal Law Section, the Office of National Strategy for Drug Prosecutions, and the National Security Group. Criminal litigation services are provided to the Government of Canada by prosecutors located in Prosecution Groups in the five Regional Offices and by private sector lawyers hired as agents, on a standing or ad hoc basis, and working under the instructions of departmental counsel.

The Assistant Deputy Attorney General is the senior legal adviser in the Criminal Law Branch on matters relating to the enforcement or administration of the criminal law, and is accountable to the Associate Deputy Minister (Legal Operations Sector), the Deputy Attorney General and the Attorney General of Canada.

The Assistant Deputy Attorney General exercises responsibility over all prosecutions conducted on behalf of the Attorney General of Canada and provides functional direction, advice and assistance generally in areas related to criminal law. The Assistant Deputy Attorney General also plays a leadership role in the conduct of criminal litigation and is responsible for the position advanced by the Attorney General or the Minister of Justice in criminal litigation, including all criminal cases to be heard by the Supreme Court of Canada.

◆ Criminal Law Section

This section consists of the Criminal Prosecutions Group for Ottawa/Hull, the International Assistance Group, as well as a group of criminal law lawyers (including the Supreme Court of Canada Criminal Appeals Coordinator and Environmental Prosecutions Coordinator).

The Section assists in the exercise of functional responsibility for criminal litigation in the Department, coordinates with the Litigation Committee any criminal cases before the Supreme Court of Canada in which the Queen in Right of Canada is a party or intervenor, and advises on criminal law and federal enforcement policy and programs.

The Ottawa/Hull Prosecutions Office handles all federal criminal proceedings at the trial level in the National Capital Region. It also supervises federal prosecutorial activities undertaken by private sector lawyers as agents in Northern and Eastern Ontario and Western Quebec.

The International Assistance Group handles extradition and rendition requests, develops extradition policy and negotiates extradition treaties. It discharges the Minister's duties under the Mutual Legal Assistance in Criminal Matters Act and related treaties.

The Criminal Law Section also coordinates the work of the Northern Flying Squad in the Northwest Territories and the Yukon. The squad members (experienced prosecutors from regional offices and Headquarters) supplement the work of Crown counsel in the northern offices.

◆ Integrated Anti Drug Profiteering (IADP) Units

Set up in April, 1992 under a five year pilot project funded by Treasury Board, IADP Units are staffed by Justice counsel, police investigators, forensic accountants and administrative support employees. Operating under Memoranda of Understanding, IADP counsel report directly to the Prosecutions Group Head in the Regional Office. IADP Units are located in Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver, and housed at RCMP headquarters in each of these cities.

Investigators and prosecutors in these units are working as members of Atask forces@ on proceeds of crime and money laundering investigations. In addition to providing an on-call advisory service to the police and other members of the units on a wide variety of issues related to the conduct of their investigations, IADP counsel also supervise the initial drafting of court applications for special search warrants and restraining orders and draft any submissions needed to obtain the approval of the Attorney General for the giving of undertakings.

◆ National Security Group

This group is responsible for advising the Assistant Deputy Attorney General (Criminal Law) on national security and intelligence matters.

◆ Office of National Strategy for Drug Prosecutions

This office has the primary responsibility for providing assistance and direction on all drug and proceeds of crime investigations, wiretap issues and prosecutions as well as management of the law with respect to these areas and certain related matters. Its main task is to support Regional Office counsel in the development of a strategic approach to the drug prosecution work of the Department. It develops drug and proceeds of prosecution policy, liaises with government agencies about drug prosecutions and provides input on policy issues from prosecutors to those responsible for the development of legislation on substantive criminal law and procedure.

Dispute Resolution Project

The mandate of the Dispute Resolution Project is to promote, encourage and implement dispute resolution mechanisms (conciliation, mediation, arbitration, etc.), other than litigation, in the federal government. It provides legal advice both within the Department of Justice and to all other federal departments and agencies. The Project is also involved in developing government policies to ensure that resolution mechanisms are applicable as part of those policies. Training of Department of Justice employees is an intrinsic part of the Project's mandate. Finally, to improve knowledge of this area, the Project's members prepare general and technical information documents and increase the awareness of other departments and agencies, non-governmental organizations and the public about the advantages and disadvantages of these mechanisms.

Regional Offices

Four Regional Offices report to the Associate Deputy Minister: the Atlantic Regional Office, located in Halifax; the Ontario Regional Office, located in Toronto; the Prairies and Northwest Territories Region, with regional offices in Winnipeg, Saskatoon, Edmonton and Yellowknife and sub-offices in Calgary, Iqaluit, Inuvik and Rankin Inlet; and the British Columbia and Yukon Regional Office, with regional offices in Vancouver and Whitehorse.

The Regional Offices represent the client departments in civil and criminal matters, and provide a wide variety of legal services.

Regulatory Group

The Regulatory Portfolio is composed of the Head of Regulatory Group Portfolio and fifteen Legal Services Units providing on-site legal services to government clients whose mandates have in common a strong regulatory or public safety element. These units include: Agriculture and Agri-Food, Atomic Energy Control Board, Canadian Environmental Assessment Agency, Canadian Security Intelligence Service, Communications Security Establishment, Correctional Services, Environment Canada, Fisheries & Oceans, Health Canada, Human Resources Development, National Parole Board, Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Solicitor General, Statistics Canada, and Veterans Affairs.

Specialized Legal Advisory Services

This section provides specialized legal advisory services and litigation support in the areas of constitutional and administrative law, information and privacy law, international law and human rights law.

◆ Constitutional and Administrative Law Section

The principal function of this section is to provide legal advice and litigation support on all matters of constitutional, administrative law and Crown law, including the interpretation of statutes and regulations. The Section has developed particular expertise in issues related to Crown liability, Crown agencies, cost recovery under the Financial Administration Act, the machinery of government, commissions of inquiry, Parliamentary law and privileges, and the National Defence Act.

Another important aspect of the work of the Section is legal education, including educational activities and seminars conducted in conjunction with the Canadian Centre for Management Development (CCMD).

◆ Human Rights Law Section

The Human Rights Law Section provides legal advisory services and litigation support on matters relating to the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms, the Canadian Human Rights Act and the Canadian Bill of Rights.

Included within the Section is the Official Languages Law Group which provides legal advice on language rights issues arising out of the Constitution Act 1867, the Charter, the Official Languages Act and the language rights provisions of the Criminal Code. The Group also supports litigators at all levels of courts and develops and coordinates the position of the Government in language rights cases.

The Section also provides services in the area of international human rights law — advising and assisting in negotiating and developing Canada's position on international human rights instruments, negotiating provincial and territorial support for new human rights instruments, and developing and drafting Canada's position on complaints to the various United Nations and Organization of American States complaint bodies.

Legal education in all the above areas is an important aspect of the Section's work. It organizes conferences, seminars, prepares case briefs on Supreme Court of Canada Charter decisions, publishes a twice yearly review of Supreme Court Charter decisions and participates actively in the educational programs of CCMD.

◆ Information Law and Privacy Section

The Information Law and Privacy Section's primary role is to provide legal interpretation and advice relating to the Access to Information and Privacy (ATIP) Acts. The Section also provides litigation support on ATIP issues and legal advisory services on policy development in the area. The Section has a continuing legal education role in conducting annual seminars for Justice lawyers, providing legal updates to the ATIP community, training at CCMD and as requested by other departments. It works closely with the Treasury Board Secretariat in supporting their policy responsibilities under the ATIP legislation. The Section also participates in and supports a variety of special projects that relate to information law and privacy within the government.

◆ Office of the Coordinator, International Issues and Activities

The Office of the Coordinator, International Issues and Activities, provides leadership and coordination in international law matters and ensures the consistency of the Department's legal advice on international law. It is responsible for international litigation and for the establishment of special litigation teams, legal education in the area of international law and advising the Department and Minister on the filing of briefs before foreign courts.

The Office works with the Canadian International Development Agency and the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade to provide technical legal assistance abroad and to promote the Department's legal technical assistance capabilities and experience.

Tax Law Services

The Tax Law Services Portfolio includes the Office of the Assistant Deputy Attorney General and serves Revenue Canada in all aspects of its legal needs across the country. The Portfolio has functional responsibility for litigation and advice nationally in respect of fiscal matters relating to income tax, the GST and FST, other excise tax matters, collections, excise, customs

◆ Headquarters Tax Litigation Section

This Section is responsible, on behalf of the Minister of Revenue Canada, for all civil appeals from income tax assessments or concerning Part IX of the Excise Tax Act (GST), as well as certain appeals under the Canada Pension Plan, the Unemployment Insurance Act and the Petroleum and Gas Revenue Tax Act. It is responsible for the conduct of litigation on behalf of Revenue Canada in all areas and regions of the country.

◆ Revenue Canada Legal Services Unit

The Legal Services Unit provides legal services and advice, on behalf of the Attorney General of Canada, to Revenue Canada officials in matters relating to the Income Tax Act, the Excise Tax Act, the Excise Act, the Customs Act and Customs Tariff, and related legislation. The Unit coordinates the delivery of legal services across the country and is also responsible for the legal aspects of Revenue Canada's operations and policies.

Legislative Services Branch

The Legislative Services Branch includes the Office of the Chief Legislative Counsel. The Branch provides a range of services, including the provision of legal advice, relating to the drafting, editing and publishing of government legislation and regulations, ensuring quality and compliance with the Charter of Rights and Freedoms, the Canadian Bill of Rights, the Statutory Instruments Act and the recognition of the provisions of the Civil Code. Access to the laws of Canada is ensured through the updating and consolidation of federal statutes and regulations in accordance with the Statute Revision Act and publication in accordance with the Publication of Statutes Act.

The outputs of the Legislative Services Branch include drafting of bills and government motions to amend bills, examination of regulations, publication of Parts II and III of the Canada Gazette, the Table of Public Statutes, the Table of Acts and Responsible Ministers, the Annual Statutes of Canada, CD-ROM and Internet access to the consolidated statutes and regulations, certification of bills and regulations and publication of consolidations of statutes and regulations.

Legislation Section

The Legislation Section is responsible, by Cabinet authority, for the drafting of all Government bills. The drafters of the Section draft bills authorized by Cabinet, the Government House Leader or another authority. They also draft the motions to amend that the responsible Minister may propose during the consideration of the bill by Parliament. At the stage of policy development, drafters provide advice on both formal and substantive legal questions to the departmental officials responsible for preparing legislative proposals.

The Chief Legislative Counsel acts for the Minister of Justice in certifying the consistency of the government bills with the Canadian Declaration of Rights and the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms. The Section is responsible for reviewing each bill for such consistency.

The Tax Counsel Division to the Department of Finance includes a satellite unit of drafters of the Legislation Section located on the premises of that department. That unit works on tax bills and other legislative initiatives of that department.

Legislative Editing and Publishing Services

Legislative Editing and Publishing Services comprises the Legislative Editing Office, Automation Services and Database Management Services (formerly the Statute Revision Commission).

The Legislative Editing Office provides French and English editing services and paralegal support to the drafters of both the Legislation Section and the Regulations Section. It drafts proclamations and commissions for review by legal officers of the Regulations Section. It reviews all government bills as they proceed through Parliament to ensure that each reprint of the bill accurately reflects amendments made to it by parliamentary committees. It also maintains the only complete up-to-date indexed set of master copies of federal statutes and regulations, and has the additional responsibility of preparing and overseeing the printing of the "Assented to" Acts, the Table of Public Statutes and Table of Acts and Responsible Ministers, the Table of Private Acts, Part III of the Canada Gazette and the annual volumes of the Statutes of Canada. The Office also produces the consolidations of the Constitution Acts 1867 to 1982. It is the only government office responsible for all official publishing of Acts of Parliament following Royal Assent, as well as for related reference tables.

The Automation Services Unit is the centre of all photocomposition coding and publishing activities for draft government bills prepared by the Legislation Section, and for the publications of the Legislative Editing Office and Database Management Services. The Unit is also responsible for maintaining the Legislation Composition and Publication System network and the Interleaf network, and supporting the users thereof. It also maintains the database for Statutes and Regulations.

The Database Management Services maintains the database of consolidated federal Acts and regulations, which is used to produce office consolidations and CD-ROMs of the consolidated Statutes and Regulations of Canada.

National Program for the Integration of both Official Languages in the Administration of Justice (POLAJ)

The National Program for the Integration of Both Official Languages in the Administration of Justice is a joint program of the Department of Canadian Heritage and Justice Canada, in which the federal Translation Bureau is also involved. Its objective is to contribute to promoting and enhancing the administration of justice in both official languages so as to enable Canadians to exercise their rights in the two official languages. All organizations interested in the administration of justice in both of Canada's official languages are represented in the Steering Committee of POLAJ.

Regulations Section

The Regulations Section (formerly known as the Privy Council Office Section) examines regulations on behalf of the Clerk of the Privy Council to advise as to whether certain legal and drafting criteria set out under the Statutory Instruments Act are met. It also provides the services of a lawyer to advise the Assistant Clerk of the Privy Council Office (Orders in Council) on legal and drafting matters concerning orders in council, proclamations and other statutory instruments. The Section works very closely with the Regulatory Affairs Branch of the Treasury Board in order to ensure that the processing of regulations is done in an orderly way and to establish, when necessary, government priorities. There are currently two satellite units — one each at the Departments of Transport and of Health.

Policy Sector

The Sector plans, develops and implements government justice policies dealing with criminal, family, international, administrative, information and privacy, and human rights law; judicial affairs, regulatory compliance, crime prevention, sentencing, conviction review, gender equality and multiculturalism. Special projects within the Sector include the Canadian Firearms Centre, the Child Support Initiative, the Self-Defence Review and the National Crime Prevention Council. In addition, the Sector provides policy, planning and coordination capability within the Department. This includes the management of the Department's substantive policy agenda and the management of key relationships with the Department's policy partners in the federal government, the provinces and territories, and non-governmental organizations. The Sector is responsible for research and development, public legal education and information, coordinating the Department's consultation process and administering and managing cost-shared programs (Criminal Legal Aid, Young Offenders, Native Courtworker), and grants and contribution funds. The Sector also supports the establishment of the new Law Commission of Canada.

Canadian Firearms Centre

The Canadian Firearms Centre replaces the former Firearms Control Task Force, which was originally set up to develop and implement Bill C-17. The Canadian Firearms Centre will develop and implement the new firearms licensing and registration system required by the Firearms Act (Bill C-68) which received Royal Assent on December 5, 1995. The Centre also has responsibility for the overall coordination and management of the Canadian Firearms Program, involving its federal partners (the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Revenue Canada, the Solicitor General of Canada, and the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade), provincial and territorial governments, law enforcement agencies and other organizations across the country.

Child Support Interim Team

The Team is responsible for implementing, monitoring and communicating legislative changes to Canada's child support system, including the introduction of federal guidelines to establish fairer and more consistent child support payments, and stronger enforcement procedures to help provincial and territorial enforcement agencies ensure that family support obligations are respected. The Team also manages the provision of financial assistance to the Provinces and Territories to help them deal with the expected increase in applications to vary child support orders as a result of the legislative changes.

Consultation Division

The Consultation Division prepares consultation plans; advises on appropriate consultation strategies; re-writes consultation papers to improve their readability and accessibility to lay people; edits consultation papers in English and French; ensures that translations of consultation papers are accurate; prepares distribution lists; analyzes consultation responses; advises on who should attend small consultation meetings; contacts experts in cities across Canada and invites them to attend consultation meetings in their city; assists in the preparation of a list of groups who should appear before a Parliamentary Committee to comment on a bill; and undertakes appropriate follow up where necessary, including evaluations of consultations.

Corporate Policy Group

The Group provides policy planning, coordination, integration, and liaison services to the Department. Through the work of its three divisions, namely the Law and Policy Division, the Federal-Provincial Relations and External Liaison Division, and the Law Reform Division, the Corporate Policy Group supports the Department's policy functions. It provides support for the management of the policy agenda, including strategic advice, policy coordination, planning and priority setting. It develops tools and elaborates approaches to enhance policy development and integration. It manages key relationships with the Department's policy partners in the federal government, the Provinces and Territories, and national non-government organizations. It provides strategic advice, coordination, and secretariat support to a range of committees and other policy forums. The Group supports the establishment of the new Law Commission of Canada and the development of mechanisms to ensure liaison between the Government and the Commission.

Criminal Conviction Review Group

The Criminal Conviction Review Group assists the Minister of Justice in the assessment of section 690 Criminal Code applications. These applications originate from persons who allege that they were wrongly convicted of indictable offenses. Section 690 of the Criminal Code confers a discretionary power on the Minister of Justice to provide a remedy in the form of a new trial or appeal hearing.

Criminal Law Policy Section

The Section identifies and analyzes emerging criminal justice issues, and develops and implements government policies dealing with criminal justice. It monitors the development of the criminal law, advises the Minister and senior officials and proposes amendments to the Criminal Code and related statutes. The Section consults on an ongoing basis with provincial and territorial officials responsible for criminal justice and, as needed, with international and non-governmental organizations for the purposes of identifying emerging issues, sharing information and coordinating activities in areas of mutual interest.

Family, Children and Youth Section

The Section identifies and analyzes emerging legal and related issues relating to the family, children and youth, and develops policies and legislation to address them with respect to the criminal law, family law and related Charter issues. The Section monitors the development of the law, provides advice to the Minister and senior officials and proposes changes, where necessary, to the statutes for which the Minister is responsible in these areas.

National Crime Prevention Council Secretariat

The Secretariat supports the National Crime Prevention Council, coordinates the National Strategy on Community Safety and Crime Prevention and facilitates the work of the Federal-Provincial-Territorial Working Group on Community Safety and Crime Prevention. This integration of responsibilities helps to ensure that the efforts of the National Crime Prevention Council, the Secretariat and the federal, provincial and territorial governments are harmonized and complementary.

Programs Directorate

The Programs Directorate contributes to the development of a fair and accessible Canadian justice system. It provides advice and financial assistance to provincial/territorial governments, community-based organizations, national voluntary agencies and individuals and undertakes and supports public legal education and information activities. The Directorate also administers and manages the Cost-Shared Programs (Criminal Legal Aid, Young Offenders, Native Courtworker) and Grants and Contribution Programs.

Public Law Policy Section

The Public Law Policy Section deals with the development of private international law through support for international organizations such as the Hague Conference on Private International Law, UNCITRAL and UNIDROIT. As well, the Section manages the Minister's responsibility for judicial affairs and is carrying reform projects in areas such as information and administrative law and the Canadian Human Rights Act.

Research, Statistics and Evaluation Directorate

The Directorate is responsible for assisting departmental policy-makers and decision-makers by bringing a multi-disciplinary approach to the identification, tracking and analysis of current and emerging corporate and sectorial issues; the production and dissemination of quality research findings and statistical information; and the development of innovative justice projects and programs.

Sentencing Team

The Sentencing Reform Team is responsible for identifying and analyzing issues relating to the sentencing of adult offenders in Canada. It proposes amendments to the Criminal Code and related statutes on sentencing matters. The Team's work focuses on assisting in the development and encouragement of alternatives to incarceration for low-risk offenders.

Social Policy Section

The Section ensures that the administration of justice is consistent with national priorities and that the justice system is inclusive, fair, rational and efficient. It initiates, formulates and monitors policies, especially in the areas of gender equality, racial equality and multiculturalism.

LINKING STATEMENT

The Department of Justice files are maintained based on the subject content of the record or case name and/or details of the case using a central file classification system. Each Regional Office, Legal Services Unit and Headquarters Section classifies records according to the subject matter or case name. Generally the records can be categorized into four main groups: Administrative, Legal Operational, Legal Policy and Program Development. As a rule information is retrieved by name, subject, statute or term. Requesters need only describe the record they wish to access. If the request pertains to a specific case, the location indicating where the case took place is also required.

Description: This bank contains information on members of the general public who have exercised an interest in employment with the Department of Justice. Complete files include application forms giving educational and personal histories, interview appraisal forms, letters of reference, correspondence and memoranda. Class of Individuals: Members of the general public who have expressed an interest in employment with the Department of Justice. Purpose: The information in this bank is used to assess individuals for positions that are to be filled through open competitions. Retention and Disposal Standards: Material is retained for one year. PAC Number: 86-001 TBS Registration: 001658 Bank Number: JUS PPU 085

Central Registry of Divorce Proceedings

Description: This bank contains information obtained from the Registration of Divorce Proceeding Forms received from the various divorce registries in respect of the petitioner and the respondent, and includes all relevant personal information. Class of Individuals: Persons who filed for divorce in a Canadian court either in their individual capacity or through the lawyers who represent them.

Purpose: The information in this bank is maintained for the purpose of informing the District Registrar of the various court offices of the existence or otherwise of pending divorce applications, thus settling jurisdictional issues pursuant to section 3 of the Divorce Act, 1985. In addition, statistical information is provided to Statistics Canada for the purpose of compiling marriage and divorce statistics for publication. Lastly, address information of the individuals or their lawyers is collected for the purpose of facilitating the mandatory pension credit-splitting legislation for spouses who divorce, a program which is administered by Human Resources Development under section 55.1 of the Canada Pension Plan. Retention and Disposal Standards: Textual records are retained for five years after divorce registration and machine-readable records are maintained actively for the life of the Divorce Registry program or for the length of time the Divorce Registry is administered by the Department of Justice. TBS Registration: 002274 Bank Number: JUS PPU 005

Civil Litigation

Description: This bank contains information on legal proceedings of a civil nature in which the Crown in right of Canada, a crown agency or a Crown servant is a party, including proceedings before administrative boards and tribunals. It includes pleadings, briefs, appeal books, transcripts and statements of evidence, writs, opinions and related correspondence. The greater part of the information contained in the bank is obtained from other federal institutions, as authorized by sub-section 8(2)(d) of the Privacy Act. Considering the sources of the personal information compiled, the social insurance number (SIN) is in some cases part of the information transmitted by institutions authorized to collect it, such as in some cases involving Revenue Canada. Class of Individuals: Persons who have been involved in civil litigation involving the Federal Government. Purpose: The material in this bank is retained to enable the Department to carry out its duties as legal advisor to the federal government. Retention and Disposal Standards: Civil litigation files are retained for 21 years after cessation of the legal action; records pertaining to other legal matters are retained for 30 years; and material of precedent value is retained for 35 years after a legal opinion is rendered and the file is closed. Files will be microfilmed and the copy kept permanently at the Department of Justice. PAC Number: 88-002 TBS Registration: 002704 Bank Number: JUS PPU 010

Family Orders and Agreements Enforcement Assistance

Description: This bank contains information on individuals who are in default of family support orders or agreements.

It contains identifying information, as well as applications for tracing such persons submitted by provincial authorities and for the garnishment of federal payments to them. It also contains records of federal payments to such individuals that have been diverted in compliance with a garnishee summons. The application form includes a request for the social insurance number (SIN) of the person being traced or garnished. Since the form is part of the Regulations, this is a use authorized by statute and regulation. The Family Orders and Agreements Enforcement Assistance Act and regulation also provide for the search of designated federal data banks for matching and compiling data. The designated banks are from the Department of National Health and Welfare — Canada Pension Plan — Record of Earnings, Retirement Benefits, Survivors Benefits, Social Insurance Number Validator, Computer Master Data, Disability Benefits and International Social Security-Domestic and Foreign Benefits — Computer Master Benefit Data (NHW PPU 140, 146, 147, 150, 155, 166 and 170); and from the Canadian Employment and Immigration Commission — Record of Employment, Benefit and Overpayment Master file (PAYDAC File) and Social Insurance Number Registration (EIC PPU 385, 180 and 390). Class of Individuals: Individuals who are in default of family support orders or agreements, or who are in violation of a custody or access rights. Purpose: This is the administrative and operational activity required to carry out the Government of Canada's responsibilities under the Family Orders and Agreements Enforcement Assistance Act. Consistent Uses: Information is used to obtain addresses for use by authorized organizations and to comply with legal garnishee summonses served on the Crown. Retention and Disposal Standards: Information is retained at the Family Orders and Agreements Enforcement Assistance Unit Office for a period of 30 calendar years. Related to PR#: JUS PPR 030 TBS Registration: 001870 Bank Number: JUS PPU 125

Garnishment Registry

Description: This bank contains information on civil servants and contractors who are subject to garnishment of wages and other remunerations under the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act. It contains identifying information, financial information on the nature and amount of debts owed, the employment status of the civil servant or contractor, court orders, garnishment summonses and administrative documentation. Class of Individuals: Civil servants and contractors who are subject to garnishment of wages and other remunerations under the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act. Purpose: To fulfill the Department of Justice's responsibility to administer the Garnishment, Attachment and Pension Diversion Act. Retention and Disposal Standards: The records are retained for 21 years. TBS Registration: 003914 Bank Number: JUS PPU 150

Classes of Personal Information

Mailing List

This class of personal information contains the names and addresses of individuals who are on mailing lists to receive publications and other publicly available materials relating to departmental activities. The lists are used by all sectors of the Department and are updated on a continuing basis. The correspondence and request cards from individuals used for amending addresses and to add or delete individual names on mailing lists are retained until the mailing lists have been amended.

Management Effectiveness Survey (Upward Feedback)

This class of information contains employees' attitudes regarding management effectiveness with regards to work supervision, communications, training and development. The results of questionnaires serve as a catalyst to improve management practices within work units. Information from the questionnaires without respondent identifier is retrievable by location (client department) except for units having five employees or less, in which case the information is available by groups of three units without respondent identifier.

Subject Files and Routine Correspondence

Some departmental programs and activities result in the accumulation of personal information which is not contained in the personal information banks described above. This personal information is stored within subject files described as part of department's Information Holdings where records are not normally retrieved by the name of the individual or other personal identifier. This form of personal information consists of enquiries concerning particular justice matters, as well as requests for publications and reports. The information is normally retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the subject matter. Retention of this form of personal information is controlled by the records schedules of the subject files in which the information is stored.

Environment Canada

Chapter 42

General Information

Background

The Department of the Environment was established by the Government Reorganization Act, 1970-71-72, ch. 42 on June 10, 1971. The Department, also known as Environment Canada, has as its primary duties renewable resources management and the protection of Canada's air, water and land resources. The departmental organization has three principal services: Environmental Protection which concentrates on response strategies and behavioral changes to prevent pollution of air, land and water ecosystems; Environmental Conservation which focuses on sustainable development of environmental resources; and Atmospheric Environment which focuses on integrated monitoring, atmospheric sciences, and services to Canadians.

Responsibilities

The primary objective of the Department of the Environment is to preserve and enhance the quality of the environment for the benefit of present and future generations of Canadians. Departmental programs are designed to promote the establishment or adoption of objectives and standards relating either to environmental quality or pollution control, to ensure the wise management and use of renewable resources and to provide Canadians with environmental information in the public interest. As well, the department ensures that new federal projects, programs and activities are assessed early in the planning process for potentially adverse effects on the environment.

Organization

Atmospheric Environment Service

The Atmospheric Environment Service (AES) delivers, with the regions, the Atmospheric Environment Program (AEP). The AEP's main activities include services related to monitoring and forecasting air quality, weather, climate and ice conditions, and to monitoring of water quantity and quality. The AEP also carries out research in the atmospheric sciences to improve our understanding of the atmosphere and to help Canadians understand how they affect the environment.

While the regions are responsible for observation and most service production and delivery, the AES is responsible for the AEP's overall direction and standards, for some specialized services like ice services, for support services — for example, super-computing, forecast guidance, and climatological and hydrological data archiving — and for most atmospheric research. The AES is also responsible for international affairs, including relations with the World Meteorological Organization, program plans and performance measurement. It contributes, through its science and activities such as science assessment, to the development of the department's policies dealing with the atmospheric environment.

The Atmospheric Environment Service consists of four directorates that strive toward providing Canadians — as citizens, clients or decision makers — with enough information to enable them to make wise decisions about their health, their safety and the environment.

♦ Canadian Meteorological Centre (CMC)

The Centre is responsible for the national telecommunications and data management systems and for the national meteorological and environmental predictions. CMC also co-ordinates national and international support to environmental emergencies. The Centre gathers, archives, analysis and disseminates data related to climate, stratospheric ozone, ultraviolet radiation, air quality and water quantity and quality. The Canadian Meteorological Centre plays a primary role in technology transfer to regions. Some of the clients for this specialized information include Transport Canada, National Defense, other government departments and agencies, several airlines, the media and many private companies.

♦ Climate and Atmospheric Research Directorate (CARD)

As AES' main scientific research component, CARD's overall objective is to advance scientific knowledge and understanding of the atmosphere as an integral and integrating component of Canadian and global ecosystems in support of policy and services. Scientific research is carried out at a number of locations in Canada in order to: support weather and ice services; study the earth's climate system; improve understanding of the transport, dispersion, chemical transformations and deposition of pollutants in the atmosphere; and develop awareness of and possible adaptive responses to the relationship of weather, climate and air quality to social and economic activities.

Science Subvention Program — The AES Science Subvention Program provides research grants to eligible staff at Canadian universities. Within the domain of the atmospheric and related sciences, the Program's objectives are to ensure the existence of (a) an adequate supply of university graduates trained in areas of strategic importance, (b) a broad knowledge base to support the climate and atmospheric environment science and technology needs, and (c) academic centres of excellence for priority areas. Decision criteria for approval of submissions include scientific excellence and relevance to the Atmospheric Environment Program objectives.

♦ National Weather Services Directorate (NWSD)

The NWSD is responsible for ensuring that Canadian weather, water and ice monitoring and service delivery components of the Atmospheric Environment Program (AEP) are carried out according to national standards; that national clients such as the DND and the aviation industry receive services that are of demonstrable quality, in a business-like fashion; and that investments are made which enable the AEP to respond to changing technologies and priorities and to take advantage of scientific advances.

♦ Policy, Program and International Affairs Directorate

The Policy, Program and International Affairs Directorate (PPID) provides a wide range of services supporting the Atmospheric Environment Service (AES) and the Atmospheric Environment Program (AEP) of Environment Canada in areas of corporate accountability, services to management, policy development and advice, international affairs, science assessment, science-policy integration, and business planning and development.

Corporate Secretariat

Ministerial Briefing, Ministerial Planning and Scheduling, Cabinet Liaison, Parliamentary Relations, Management Board Secretariat.

Corporate Services

Administration, Corporate Management & Review, Finance and Systems & Informatics.

♦ Administration

Environmental Conservation Service

The Environmental Conservation Service (ECS) is responsible for communicating to Canadians what is necessary to sustain ecosystem health and biodiversity in Canada. The Service is organized into four areas: Canadian Wildlife Service, Ecosystem Conservation, Ecosystems and Environmental Resources, and State of the Environment.

◆ Canadian Wildlife Service

Endangered Species, Migratory Birds Conservation, Wildlife Trade, Wildlife Toxicology, Wetlands and Habitat Conservation, Cooperative Wildlife Management, Managing North American regional wildlife issues with the United States and Mexico.

Biodiversity Convention Office — Coordination of Canada's response to the Convention on Biological Diversity including national coordination of the development of a Canadian Biodiversity Strategy and follow-up to the Strategy including coordination of the federal report on implementation and coordinating Canada's contribution in international meetings to advance implementation of the Convention.

◆ Ecosystem Conservation

Ecosystem Science, Science Policy, Conservation Strategies, Flagship Program, National Guidelines and Standards of Environmental Quality, National Water Research Institute, National Hydrology Institute, Guidance on Developing Ecosystem Health Indicators and Objectives.

◆ Ecosystems and Environmental Resources Directorate

The Ecosystems and Environmental Resources Directorate has the following responsibilities: conserve and promote the wise use of water, under the authority of the Canada Water Act, International Rivers Improvement Act and the Federal Water Policy; departmental lead on national sustainable development reporting and ecosystem initiatives; directs the development of unique interpretive electronic tools to integrate scientific information for the resolution of environmental problems; apply socio-economic approaches to environmental resource conservation policies and directs a variety of national, federal/provincial and international initiatives; provides strategic policy and planning advice to Environmental Conservation Service executive management. The Key Issues are: Sustainability of Fresh Water, Green Corps Program, National Conservation, Knowledge Integration, Environmental Economics and Strategic Policy and Planning.

◆ State of the Environment

State of the Environment Reports, Ecological Applications Research.

Environmental Protection Service

The EPS mandate focuses on assessment and management of risk associated with national and international environmental matters. The range of activity includes issue, strategy and policy development, development and implementation of environmental protection options, through to research and technology advancement to support a healthy and prosperous Canadian environmental industry.

The priorities of EPS consist of toxic substances management, national and international air issues, Canadian water quality, as well as prevention and preparedness related to the environmental aspects of emergency situations.

The pollution prevention approach and ecosystem management guide activity in regional offices and at headquarters, and strongly link EPS to the federal government's sustainable development agenda.

A large part of the EPS mandate involves carrying out environmental protection obligations under the Canadian Environmental Protection Act and the Fisheries Act. EPS activity includes assuring compliance with over 35 regulations dealing with industrial discharges, product and use bans for toxics, toxic substances management, permitting for ocean discharges and for international transport of hazardous materials, etc.

Efficient and effective management of environmental problems means involving all interested parties in developing and implementing solutions. EPS works with other governments, industry, non-government organizations and others to accomplish its mandate. Engaging Canadians to take responsibility for the environmental impact of their activity is another important element of EPS work. Agreements with industry sectors to reduce their impact on the environment provide for accelerated environmental protection results.

The Service is organized into five areas: Air Pollution Prevention, Environmental Technology Advancement, National Programs, Regulatory Affairs and Program Integration and Toxics Pollution Prevention.

◆ Air Pollution Prevention

Global Air Issues, Transboundary Air Issues, Pollution Data, Transportation Systems, Oil, Gas & Energy.

◆ Environmental Technology Advancement

National Round Table on the Environment and the Economy

The National Round Table was created in 1988 in response to the Report of the World Commission on Environment and Development (Brundtland Commission) and the recommendations of the National Task Force on the Environment and the Economy. In 1994, the Prime Minister proclaimed the National Round Table on the Environment and the Economy Act, which established the organization as a departmental corporation, reporting directly to the Prime Minister and mandated by the Parliament of Canada. In addition to its advisory role to the Prime Minister on issues relating to environment and the economy, the National Round Table plays a special catalytic role in Canada and abroad by attempting to reach a consensus among competing economic and environmental interests concerning sustainable development.

Policy & Communications

Policy and Communications focuses on developing a coherent policy and communications agenda and linking departmental and ministerial priorities to the broader government-wide agenda. It provides advice on the general conduct of policy and communications, including the strategic handling of major issues and subjects that are of particular interest to the Minister, the department and government. Policy and Communications is organized in five groups reporting to the Assistant Deputy Minister: Communications and Consultations Directorate, Federal-Provincial Relations Branch, International Affairs Branch, Planning and Coordination Directorate and Policy and Economics Directorate.

◆ Communications and Consultations Directorate

The Communications and Consultations Directorate plays a key role in providing strategic advice to the Minister and the department and in linking the department with its stakeholders, NGOs, and Canadian public.

◆ Federal-Provincial Relations Branch

The Federal-Provincial Relations Branch is the departmental focal point for federal-provincial-territorial and Aboriginal relations.

◆ International Affairs Branch

The International Affairs Branch provides departmental leadership in multi-lateral, multi-issue fora (e.g. CSD, UNEP, OECD, APEC); provides policy and strategic advice on international relations and trends as they pertain to the environment; ensures coherence and consistency in the department's international activities.

◆ Planning and Coordination Directorate

Planning and Coordination Directorate oversees the development and implementation of Environment Canada's policy function.

◆ Policy and Economics Directorate

Policy and Economics Directorate focuses on policy development with an economic perspective.

Information Holdings

Program Records

AES Headquarters — Projects Research

Description: Information on computerized and man-machine mix system; module component development and design; research data set development; also implementation and joint projects with forecast operations. Topics: Systems design for automated weather forecasting procedures; creation of research data sets for weather forecasting research. Program Record Number: ENV AES 400

AES HQ — Projects

Description: Information on satellite activity reports; data collection platforms; SDL Staffing; SDL GOES; Meso-met Network; Wind Energy Field Studies investigations.

Program Record Number: ENV AES 370

Canadian National Climate Archive

Description: The National Climatological Archive (NCA) contains data sufficient to define the general climate of Canada. Data are retained in three forms — paper, microform and digital. This archive contains the majority of the long-term atmospheric data collected in Canada. The Digital portion of the archive contains data from about 6000 stations from all provinces and territories of Canada. About half are currently active stations. Data covers the period from 1840 to present Topics: Climatological data; data elements include temperature and precipitation, plus a number of other meteorological parameters such as winds, humidity, solar radiation, snow depth and soil temperature. Elements include monthly means daily climate parameters, and hourly elements. The archive also contains upper air information, ozone measurements, and air quality data. Access: On-line interactive access to National Climate database; also computer print-outs, copies of original paper documents, microfiche, digital diskette and CD-ROM through DOE regional climate services offices and DOE AES Headquarters — Climate Information Branch. Storage Medium: Computer database, microfiche, paper documents. Program Record Number: ENV AES 550

Communications — Computing Services

Description: Information on communications and communications-programming. Program Record Number: ENV AES 470

Communications — Facsimile

Description: Information on Satellite Data Laboratory Operations. Program Record Number: ENV AES 330

Contracts — Satellites

Description: Information on contracts for satellite systems; also contracts for satellite research and development — TOVS, RAINSAT, ICE STATUS. Access: Files are arranged by subject and company. Program Record Number: ENV AES 335

Data Acquisition

Description: Information on land surface networks; upper air and aerological networks; Voluntary Observing Ship Program; remote sensing; environmental network. Topics: Station classification; site information; meteorological and aerological instruments; codes; data standards; data reduction; quality assurance; equipment supply; development and testing; lists of ships participating; satellite ground stations; APT, weather radar; signal processing; data transmissions; maintenance; plans and policies. Program Record Number: ENV AES 440

Hemispheric Observations

Program Record Number: ENV AES 450

Ice

Description: Information on regional ice models.

Program Record Number: ENV AES 410

Ice Observing Programs — Reconnaissance

Description: Information on verification of satellite data.

Program Record Number: ENV AES 340

Instruments

Description: Information on Aeromet Facility Instrumentation. Program Record Number: ENV AES 345

Marine Meteorology

Description: Information on TOVS. Program Record Number: ENV AES 355

Meso-meteorology

Description: Information on the Meso-met Network. Topics: Operation; data. Program Record Number: ENV AES 360

Meteorological Research

Description: Major areas of activity include numerical modelling of the atmosphere for the purpose of developing new weather forecast techniques and improving existing ones (from short to extended range); data assimilation and satellite meteorology with a focus on the development of techniques for both quantitative application of operational satellite data to weather forecasting and making use of new satellite data; and atmospheric processes research studies of the interactions of airborne pollutants with clouds and precipitation, and the utilization of Doppler radar to recognize severe weather and its precursors. Program Record Number: ENV AES 460

Meteorology Aviation

Description: Information on the Rockcliffe STOL Project. Program Record Number: ENV AES 350

Meteorology Training

Description: Information on professional training, development, technical training in meteorology. Program Record Number: ENV AES 475

Oil and Gas Exploration and Development

Description: Information on oil spill trajectories, freezing spray, ice and sea state models. Program Record Number: ENV AES 415

Radar

Description: Information on the MOT Radar and Satellite System. Program Record Number: ENV AES 375

Research — Air Quality

Description: Information on air quality, pollutant transport, dispersion, chemical transformations, and deposition, monitoring and the development of measurement techniques, modelling, and field and laboratory experimental studies. Topics: Acid rain, toxic chemicals, photochemical smog, stratospheric ozone, and greenhouse gases.

Program Record Number: ENV AES 315

Research — Climate

Description: Information on climate, circulation modelling (numerical modelling of the general circulation of the atmosphere, ocean, land surface, and cryosphere) with special interest on modelling ocean circulation, the middle atmosphere, and regional-scale systems; climate processes research conducted into the study of the energy and water cycle, surface processes, precipitation-runoff relationships, and climate-cryosphere interactions; and climate variability and change, and extreme and anomalous events. Program Record Number: ENV AES 455

Research — Environmental Adaptation

Description: Information on research to improve understanding of socio-economic and ecosystem impacts of atmospheric change and to generate knowledge that will help to improve decision-making and facilitate adaptive response; integrated climate impact assessment at regional (Mackenzie Basin, Great Lakes) and national (Canada Country Study) scales is an important focus. Program Record Number: ENV AES 325

Research Management and Policy

Description: Information on meteorological, environmental adaptation and other related environmental and technological research and development; research and related support activities of a general management nature — decisions and large-scale agreements; special problems of the Arctic; training for research and grants for research outside the federal government which support the objectives and policies for climate and atmospheric research in Canada; mechanisms for better transfer of technology to and from government research laboratories; contracting-out of federal research and development; relationship with the Canadian Space Program. Topics: Agreements; treaties; studies; committees; plans and programs; fellowships; training and development; grants; unsolicited proposals; contracting; technology transfer. Program Record Number: ENV AES 310

Satellites

Description: Information on satellite programs. Topics: Cost recovery; staffing the SKL; ICS Submission; AES Satellite Programs; SDL Operations; NOSS; SURSAT. Program Record Number: ENV AES 380

Telecommunications

Description: Operational, alpha-numeric and facsimile information distributed by dedicated or dial-up communication lines. Topics: Facsimile contracts; installations; procedures; traffic; teletype contracts — installations, procedures, traffic; computer aspects.

Water Quality Management Data

Description: Information and interpretive reports on the quality of surface and ground waters based on analysis of samples; information on field surveys and analytical methods, and on quality control; water quality guidelines for protection of uses, and water quality objectives for specific surface waters. It does not include water quality objective work done under specific international or federal-provincial basin studies, nor research related to water quality management. Topics: Water pollution, water quality surveys, analytical methods, quality of surface waters, rain water and snow water quality, water quality guidelines, water quality monitoring programs. Access: Files are arranged by subject, geographic location and title in the national and regional ENVIRODAT databases.

Storage Medium: On-line in the national and regional ENVIRODAT database. Program Record Number: ENV AES 185

Weather Forecast

Description: Digital information about global observational data sets (1992-present), digital gridpoint information about global analysis (1983-present) and forecasts (selected fields for last 5 years), and about regional analysis and forecasts (selected fields for last 5 years), of heights, temperature and moisture on mandatory pressure levels (currently 16 levels from 1000-10 hPa) as well as several surface based fields. The information is kept online in real time and then a subset is stored on digital tape. There are digital archives of weather maps and bulletins issued as well as historical records of verification statistics. There are microfilms of weather maps (1957-March, 1994) of hemispheric analysis of the surface, 850, 700, and 500 hPa levels. Storage Medium: microfilm, digital tapes.

Program Record Number: ENV AES 445

Weather Service

Description: Information on RAINSAT. Program Record Number: ENV AES 385

Weather Service — Air Transportation

Description: Information on MOT Radar and Satellite System. Program Record Number: ENV AES 390

Water Quantity Management Data

Description: Information on data collection, hydrometric and water levels, and sediment, as well as the management and operation of data systems and interpretive reports. These data include data collection under specific international or federal-provincial water management or planning studies and data collection carried out as an integral part of other studies. Topics: Gauging stations, international gauging stations, gauging stations inventory, hydrometric investigations, hydrologic interpretive and analytical reports, sediment links to water quality, sediment surveys, remote sensing, watershed research, tidal gauge records, tidal surveys. Access: Files are arranged by subject, geographic location, river and site location with interactive online access to the national databases HYDAT AND HYDEX. Storage Medium: Computer print-outs, microfiche, CD-ROM, online database. Program Record Number: ENV AES 200

Weather Services

Description: Information on policies, standards, procedures and guidance concerning the provision of weather services. Topics: General weather services; public weather services; air, marine and road transportation; agriculture; forestry; climatology; preflight weather information service; radio and television broadcasting; scientific support units; weather service outlets. Program Record Number: ENV AES 435

◆ National Weather Services Directorate (NWSD)

AES HQ — Forecast Project

Description: Information on the development of forecast methods and techniques for AES forecast systems (including models — numerical, statistical). Topics: Weather prediction methodology; snow squall modelling; ice and sea state models; oil spill trajectory models; freezing spray; investigations. Program Record Number: ENV AES 420

Contracts — Sea State

Description: Information on contracts for ice, oil spills on water and sea state models. Access: Files are arranged by subject and company. Program Record Number: ENV AES 405

Data Acquisition Networks

Description: Information on atmospheric environment operations, overall policy, operational performance, procedures and standards. Program Record Number: ENV AES 480

Forecast Procedures

Description: Information on meteorological models, procedures and techniques in support of forecast production. Topics: Maps, charts and forms; satellite operations; plans and programs. Program Record Number: ENV AES 430

Ice Information, Consultation and Advice

Description: Information on ice forecasting and services, ice research, climatology and Observing Program (reconnaissance). Program Record Number: ENV AES 465

Instruments and Instrument Systems

Description: Information on instruments; general, humidity, evaporation, precipitation, marine, physical phenomena, pressure, radiation, atmospheric sounding wind. Program Record Number: ENV AES 485

Environmental Conservation Service

Ecosystem Health Objectives and Indicators

Description: Information on integration of social, environmental and economic factors in developing objectives and indicators to enhance, protect and sustain the health of Canadian ecosystems. Topics: Ecosystem approach; a framework for developing ecosystem health goals, objectives and indicators; tools for Ecosystem-Based Management. Program Record Number: ENV ECS 495

Environmental Quality Guidelines

Description: Information on national science-based guidelines/standards for soil quality, water quality, sediment quality and tissue quality to protect and sustain terrestrial and aquatic ecosystems and their beneficial uses; scientific assessments of toxic substances; national protocols.

Topics: Environmental effects of toxic substances; National environmental quality guidelines and protocol publications including Canadian Water Quality Guidelines for the protection of raw drinking water quality, recreational water quality, aquatic life, livestock water, and irrigation water; Sediment Quality Guidelines for the protection of aquatic life and wildlife; Tissue Quality Guidelines for the protection of aquatic life and wildlife; and soil quality guidelines for agricultural, residential/parkland, commercial and industrial land uses; guidance for setting site-specific environmental quality objectives; ecological risk assessment guidance. Program Record Number: ENV ECS 490

Federal Policy on Wetland Conservation

Description: Outlines roles and responsibilities of federal agencies, commitments of federal government and strategies to promote wetland conservation nationally and internationally. Information to federal departments on the development and assessment of federal projects affecting wetlands; analysis and advice to provincial and territorial jurisdictions with regard to wetland policy development; implementation of national and international wetland programs with partner agencies; interaction with North American Waterfowl Management Plan; provision of advice to the public, Parliament and Minister on the Policy and other initiatives affecting wetland conservation; development of selection criteria for Ramsar sites; publications and public and scientific events on wetland and habitat conservation. Topics: Biodiversity conservation, Ministerial enquiries; Ramsar Convention on Wetlands of International Importance; policy advice to federal agencies. Program Record Number: ENV ECS 500

◆ Canadian Wildlife Service

Aboriginal People

Description: Information and correspondence on native harvest surveys comprehensive land claims and self government issues. Topics: Hunting and fishing rights, treaties, acts and regulations, Council of Yukon Indians, Inuit, Naskapi, Western Arctic Inuit — COPE, Nunavut, Gwich'in and Sahtu Dene/Metis, Labrador Inuit, Innu Nation of Labrador, Makivik Offshore, Nisga'a Treaty

(B.C.). Access: Files are arranged by name of individual.

Program Record Number: ENV ECS 115

Biodiversity

Description: Information on biodiversity conservation and the sustainable use of biological resources. Topics: Wide range of biodiversity related issues including Agenda 21, agriculture, biotechnology, business and economy, ecosystems, education, extinction, fisheries, forestry, wildlife and endangered species, genetic resources, parks and protected areas, population and consumption, and sustainable development. Also, includes national and international biodiversity strategies. Access: Files are arranged by subject and listed by author or subject. Available at the Biodiversity Convention Office (BCO).

Program Record Number: ENV ECS 125

Canada-United States and Interjurisdictional Waters

Description: Information on all activities carried out under specific Canada-United States agreements or arrangements such as investigative, control, or surveillance board activities for the International Joint Commission (IJC) or in other bilateral Canada-United States situations; studies and implementation programs under formal federal-provincial arrangements; and Canada-United States activities on shared river basins. Policy development, data collection and research carried out as a part of any of these formal arrangements are included as well as specific federal-provincial agreements required to carry out Canada's obligations in boundary waters (the Canada-Ontario Agreement on Great Lakes Water Quality) and interprovincial arrangements (Prairie Provinces Water Board). Information is also available on water use for selected years and geographic areas. Topics: Great Lakes connecting channels, Great Lakes programs and studies, International and Interprovincial Waters, Prairie Waters, Lake of the Woods, Ottawa River Regulations. Access: Files are arranged by subject and project title; many reports are referenced in AQUAREF. Program Record Number: ENV ECS 175

Ecological Applications Research

Description: Information on production of nationally consistent spatial data on the ecological characteristics and resource potentials of land; dissemination of scientific knowledge, methods and techniques used for surveying and classifying land, including wetlands, by ecological characteristics, for assessing resource potentials, impacts and hazards and for increasing knowledge of land and land/water process linkages of concern in environmental management; the assessment of potential climate change of the vegetative and land base of Canada and consequent implications for resource management. Topics: General correspondence; public awareness; inter-regional projects; wetlands and acid rain sensitivity; climate change; Canada Committee on Ecological Areas. Program Record Number: ENV ECS 160

Habitat Conservation

Description: Information on habitat strategies, plans and data banks; research on habitat impacts from exotic species and land use changes; resource strategies and methodologies to monitor habitat changes/impacts; provision of land management services and advice to federal departments and agencies responsible for administering federal lands located in the provinces or specially dedicated lands located in the territories. National co-ordination of Ramsar Convention and delivery of Federal Policy on Wetland Conservation. Topics: Habitat planning and management; resource management data; federal land data; public awareness; policy research and coordination; Canada Committee on Ecological Areas. Program Record Number: ENV ECS 165

Migratory Bird Surveys

Description: Information on the biometry of migratory birds. Topics: Migratory game birds hunting permits; waterfowl harvest; breeding bird surveys; data processing. Program Record Number: ENV ECS 105

National Wildlife Areas and Migratory Bird Sanctuaries

Description: Public information and correspondence at all levels, concerning policies and regulations that govern land use activities on these designated nationally significant wildlife habitat areas. Activities also include development of selection criteria for both terrestrial and marine areas, consultation and development of management plans, progress reporting and scientific research and data collection. Topics: Agreements; policy; regulations; rentals; leases. Program Record Number: ENV ECS 135

North American Waterfowl Management Plan (NAWMP)

Description: Information on the development, coordination and planning of the North American Waterfowl Management Plan (NAWMP). Topics: Joint ventures; implementation agreements (multilateral, internal); NAWMP committees; long-term and annual work plans; funding arrangements; communications and general correspondence. Program Record Number: ENV ECS 173

Ornithology

Description: Information on all aspects of migratory birds and their conservation. Topics: Migratory Birds Convention Act and Regulations; waterfowl hunting; North American Waterfowl Management Plan; bird banding programs; reports, studies and surveys; sanctuaries; migratory bird sanctuaries regulations; damage to crops by birds; Canadian Landbird Conservation Strategy; songbirds, seabirds, shorebirds; permits; research on species; use of birds; waterfowl kill statistics; waterfowl populations; breeding ground survey; breeding bird survey; brood production survey; waterfowl status reports. Correspondence with provinces, United States Fish and Wildlife Service; Mexico; and states on migratory birds and their conservation. Access: Files are arranged by name and geographic locations. Program Record Number: ENV ECS 120

Technology Development — Waste Water

Description: Information on development and demonstration of waste water pollution control technology; technology development assistance programs; technical training; technology transfer; program planning and evaluation. Topics: Program planning and evaluation; technology assistance program; waste water technology. Access: Files are arranged by company. Program Record Number: ENV ECS 265

Transboundary Wildlife

Description: Public information and correspondence on the proposal by the Republican Party in the U.S. to explore for and develop potential oil and gas reserves in the sensitive coastal plain of the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge in northeast Alaska. Such development would seriously impair the calving grounds of the Porcupine caribou herd which is shared by Canada and the U.S. and a vitally important resource for Aboriginal peoples in Yukon and the Mackenzie Delta, N.W.T. In response, Canada has urged the U.S. to accord wilderness status to the Arctic coastal plain in the Refuge, thereby protecting it from development. Program Record Number: ENV ECS 575

Water Management Research

Description: Information on water resource research, including the study of the impact of pollutants and nutrients on the environment, sediment composition, water quality and quantity modelling, groundwater quality and sub-surface disposal of wastes, pathways, fate and effects of pollutants, dispersion and energy transfer processes in lakes and rivers, urban runoff processes, ice dynamics, hydrological forecasting, groundwater movement, biological and chemical techniques for water quality analysis, snow and ice hydrology, glacier dynamics, sociological, geographical, legal, institutional and economic aspects of water management. Also included is research management and coordination and research contracts. Topics: Ground water; ground water quality; ice river breakup; new analytical techniques; improved methodologies for aquatic studies; predictive technique on models for toxic substances; pathways and fate of pollutants; hydraulic variables; drought; floods; climatic changes; restoration of lakes and polluted waters. Access: Files are arranged by subject and location. Most information is readily available. Storage Medium: Microfiche, magnetic tapes, computer printouts, punchcards. Program Record Number: ENV ECS 205

Water Pollution Programs

Description: Information on federal/provincial programs; pollution control in coastal areas; International Joint Commission programs; data management; Arctic water programs coordination; program evaluation; interservice and interagency program coordination; program planning and development. Topics: Program coordination and evaluation; coastal zone; data management and analysis. Program Record Number: ENV ECS 270

Wildlife Management

Description: Information on the federal participation and responsibilities in the management of wildlife. Topics: Endangered species conservation; endangered species legislative development; Committee on the Status of Wildlife in Canada; Recovery of Nationally Endangered Wildlife; Endangered Species Recovery Funds; transboundary wildlife; Porcupine Caribou Management Agreement; Convention on the International Trade in Endangered Species (CITES); Wild Animal and Plant Protection and Regulation of International and Interprovincial Trade Act (WAPPRIITA); Canada Wildlife Act; Conservation of Arctic Flora and Fauna; Humane Trapping; Federal-Provincial Agreements; Correspondence on wildlife conservation issues. Program Record Number: ENV ECS 150

Wildlife Toxicology

Description: Information and advice on the impacts of pesticides and pest control practices, environmental contaminants and other toxic substances on birds, other vertebrates wildlife (but not fish) and their habitats and foods (biodiversity). Topics: Predicting and evaluating wildlife effects of toxic substances for support of environmental conservation and protection policy and regulation development. Research to establish cause-effect relationships for toxic substances and wildlife, to identify toxic substances in the environment and their sources, to develop and apply assessment methodology including modelling and tests methods, and to select indicators of environmental quality and health of wildlife. Wildlife disease issues and federal contact point with the Canadian Cooperative Wildlife Health Centre. Biomonitoring of contaminant trends and effects in wildlife in Arctic, Great Lakes-St. Lawrence, Marine and other Canadian ecosystems. Laboratory services for measurement of selected contaminant residues, biomarkers and bioassays and quality assurance management. National Specimen Bank of more than 30,000 frozen specimens (mainly birds) dating from around 1970 and specimen preservation technology. National database of toxic chemicals residues in wildlife (primarily birds). Contaminants in waterfowl and wildfoods for human consumption. Access: By subject. Program Record Number: ENV ECS 145

◆ Ecosystem Conservation

Flood Damage Reduction

Description: Information on all activities under federal-provincial flood damage reduction agreements, including flood risk mapping, construction of physical flood control works, and flood forecasting. It also includes policy development, data collection (hydrometric and other data collection programs and research for many water management purposes) carried out as an integral part of these agreements, and guidelines or methodology development and information programs directly in support of the program. Topics: Floods, flood damage reduction, floodplain mapping, designations. Access: Files are arranged by subject, geographic location, annual reports and project title; a FDRP database is being developed; many reports are referred to in AQUAREF. Program Record Number: ENV ECS 180

Sustainable Development

Description: Program for implementation of sustainable development within the government; development of federal conservation strategy; coordination of federal-provincial links on conservation strategy development; coordination of intergovernmental activity on land policy and program matters; development of sectoral resource management policies (e.g. wetlands); assessment of impact of federal programs on environment and economy; analysis of links between environment, resources, and economic development; development of means to build environmental criteria into economic development policies and programs; assessment of the value of environmental resources; analysis of success stories of sustainable development as models for further implementation; application of sustainable development criteria to federal land transactions; development of means of measuring success towards sustainable development. Responsibilities include provision of scientific and technical advice to other departments, other countries and international organizations with respect to sustainable development implementation. Topics: Sustainable development; wetlands policy; federal policy on land use; environment/economy integration; federal program impact; Sustainable Development newsletter; success stories of sustainable development. Program Record Number: ENV ECS 155

♦ Ecosystems and Environmental Resources Directorate

Canadian Biodiversity Strategy

Description: Supporting documentation for Canadian Biodiversity Strategy and the Convention on Biological Diversity. Topics: Reports on ten expert focus groups convened to provide input into the CBS; a compilation of recommendations relevant to biodiversity already being undertaken by governments; an inventory of current government policies, programs and legislation relevant to biodiversity; and preparatory documentation for the drafting of the convention on Biological Diversity. Access: Available at the Biodiversity Convention Office. Storage Medium: Inventory information is available on computer database. Program Record Number: ENV ECS 130

Valuation of Natural Capital

Description: General information related to valuing natural capital; documentation related to the Environment Valuation Reference Inventory, which is a storehouse of valuation studies that is capable of matching the results of previous valuation studies with current policy requirements; reports on the 1987 and 1991 survey on the Importance of Wildlife to Canadians; municipal and industrial water demand surveys. Topics: Natural capital valuation, socio-economic indicators of sustainability, Environmental

Valuation Reference Inventory, valuing biodiversity, Importance of Wildlife to Canadians, water uses and pricing, benefits transfer. Program Record Number: ENV ECS 585

♦ State of the Environment

State of the Environment Reporting

Description: Information and interpretive reports on significant conditions and trends related to environmental components (air, water, land and wildlife) and human activities (agriculture, forestry, fisheries, etc.) to meet the requirements of the Federal Environmental Quality Policy Framework and Canadian Environmental Protection Act; development, assessment and recommendations for selecting and utilizing key environmental indicators; development and dissemination of scientific methods and techniques for State of the Environment (SOE) Reporting, identifying emerging issues; development of methods and guidelines for storage, manipulation and transfer of environmental data vis-à-vis the SOE centralized database and referral system. Topics: General correspondence; SOE publications; state of the environment data; scientific methods; indicator research; inter-regional projects; publication guidelines and a wide range of land, water and other resource data. Storage Medium: Files, maps, EDP systems. Program Record Number: ENV ECS 167

Environmental Protection Service

Abatement and Compliance

Description: Information on inventories of pollution and cost of abatement; state of the art of pollution abatement by industry; regulations development; policy and technical advice on enforcement programs; energy-related studies. Topics: Pulp and paper industry; mining and metallurgical processes; petroleum and industrial organic chemicals, inorganic chemical processes; toxic chemicals emission/release controls; control options, evaluation of their costs and effectiveness; municipal waste and miscellaneous industries; power generation. Access: Files are arranged by subject. Program Record Number: ENV EPS 260

Atmospheric Issues

Description: Information on atmospheric issues including climate change, stratospheric ozone, acid rain, smog, hazardous air pollutants; information on emissions; international emissions reduction protocols; national control options and strategies. Topics: Climate change; stratospheric ozone, acid rain, hazardous air pollutants. Access: Files are arranged by issue. Program Record Number: ENV EPS 570

Chemical Process Sources

Description: Information on industrial pollution; producers, emissions, products, guidelines and codes and regulations. Topics: Chemical products; pulp, paper and wood products; forest products operations; pulp and paper processes; textiles and related manufacturers; woods and allied products manufacturing; polymers and plastics; surface coating industry. Access: Files are arranged by subject.

Program Record Number: ENV EPS 220

Combustion Sources

Description: Studies and surveys; assessments; questionnaires; analytical reports; information on emissions and emission controls; investigations; codes and regulations. Topics: Interdepartmental programs; thermal power-fuel; thermal power-fuel processing and storage; combustion systems; internal combustion engine; emission calculation and analysis; emission data; air quality surveillance; air quality criteria; incinerators; investigations, studies and surveys. Program Record Number: ENV EPS 235

Contaminants Control

Description: Information on predicting and evaluating environmental effects of new chemical substances and new products of biotechnology; determining amounts and end uses of chemicals in Canadian commerce; regulating substances which pose a significant threat to human health or the environment; and coordinating tests of chemicals for environmental effects. Topics: Studies and surveys; chemical elements and compounds; Canadian Environmental Protection Act; ecological risk assessment of priority substances; assessment reports for priority substances; notices; mandatory reporting; automated information system; pesticides programs — re-evaluation, research and trade information; non-chemical pesticides; mercury program. Access: Files are arranged by subject, company and product. Program Record Number: ENV EPS 275

Data Analysis

Description: Information on air pollutants; emissions source categories; industrial questionnaires; studies and surveys and air pollution costs; National Pollutant Release Inventory (NPRI). Topics: Emission inventory; air pollutants, source categories; effects of regulations; socio-economic impact studies and surveys; industrial, geographical; economy impact studies and surveys — pollutants; analytical concepts and methodology — statistical and economic. Program Record Number: ENV EPS 240

Planning, Assessment and Policy

Description: Information on the development of an environmental protection strategy; program, planning and systems development; socio-economic analysis of proposed major regulations. Topics: Program planning system development; activity program development; operational plans; activity management reports; policy development and analysis; program evaluation; program development; organization and systems project; economics; socio-economic program; socio-economic impact analysis — Canadian Environmental Protection Act, Fisheries Act. Access: By subject. Program Record Number: ENV EPS 290

Pollution Prevention

Description: Information on pollution prevention programs and activities; voluntary agreements; pollution prevention planning guidelines. Topics: Pollution prevention: A Federal Strategy for Action; Pollution Prevention Coordinating Committee; agreements and memoranda of understanding with industry and governments. Access: Files are arranged by subject. Program Record Number: ENV EPS 565

Program Activity Structures and Objectives

Description: Information on systems for strategic and operational planning and program evaluation, management practices and controls, performance measurement, priority settings, resource-based economic strategy and perspective, socio-economic and scientific development studies, implementation of integrated programs. Topics: Program activity structures and objectives, surveys and studies, Improvements in Management Practices and Controls (IMPAC), toxic substances, Co-operative Projects with Industry (COPI), Pilot Industry Laboratory Program, Shore Zone Program, Biomass. Program Record Number: ENV EPS 100

Program Coordination

Description: Information on regulations development; monitoring of agreed implementation schedules, program evaluation. Topics: Acts and legislation; regulations enforcement; federal/provincial programs; international activities; (eg. NAFTA/NAAEO); international organizations; intradepartmental activities. Program Record Number: ENV EPS 245

Technology Advancement

Description: Information on clean technologies; technology R&D, demonstration and advancement; technology transfer and outreach; Canadian Environmental Industry Strategy (CEIS); Canadian environmental industry; CEIS initiatives. Topics: Environmental technology R&D and demonstration programs; conferences and seminars promoting clean technologies; national and international technology transfer programs; CEIS initiatives in Canada and foreign countries. Access: Files are arranged by subject and program. Program Record Number: ENV EPS 560

Transboundary Air Issues

Description: Information on Canada's domestic, bilateral and international air issue initiatives (Acid Rain, Smog and Hazardous Air Pollutants) including committees, negotiations, controls and effects. Topics: Canada's joint federal-provincial abatement programs, federal-provincial meetings and reports; Canada-U.S. bilateral negotiations, and general information on U.S. initiatives; international negotiations, conventions and protocols. Program Record Number: ENV EPS 555

◆ Air Pollution Prevention

Federal Activities

Description: Information on the regulation of emissions/effluents from federal departments and agencies as well as on waste management at these institutions; information on the evaluation of federally funded pollution control projects; demonstration of technology at federal facilities.

Topics: Federal projects; clean-up program; methods, techniques and refinements. Access: Files are arranged by company, subject and project. Program Record Number: ENV EPS 295

Fuels

Description: Information on fuel types, composition and use. Topics: Fuel producers; types; composition; resources marketing and processing; pollution investigations; pollution control equipment, and regulations on fuels and components of fuels; guidelines development; synthetic fuels, gasoline; natural gas; coal; petroleum producers; petroleum marketing; energy conservation; sulphur and by-products; fuels and fuel additives composition; fossil fuel resources. Access: Files are arranged by subject, company and product. Program Record Number: ENV EPS 230

Mining, Mineral and Metallurgical Industries

Description: Information on mining and metallurgical production, refining, and smelting operations and the significance of such processes in terms of pollution; mineral, and metallurgical industry studies; and emission control requirements such as codes and regulations.

Topics: Mining operations and processes; mineral products processing; primary metallurgical industries; secondary metallurgical industries. Access: Files are arranged by subject. Program Record Number: ENV EPS 225

Toxic Chemicals

Description: Information on toxic chemical management.

Topics: Inventory; guidance manual for ecological risk assessments of Priority Substances; assessment of existing substances for toxicity; control throughout the life cycle of toxic chemicals; regulations; guidelines; codes of practice. Program Record Number: ENV EPS 300

Waste Management

Description: Inventory of commercial and industrial hazardous wastes; technology development; studies and surveys; handling, storage and environmentally safe transportation; disposal of industrial and hazardous wastes; inventory sources and amounts of hazardous wastes; regulations development. Topics: Wastes and types; waste management and disposal; waste management systems — disposal; resource recovery and reclamation, materials; information and training; solid waste information retrieval system, inventory; regulations; guidelines and codes of practice; consultation services; technical evaluation.

Access: Files are arranged by subject, company and project. Program Record Number: ENV EPS 280

Mobile Sources

Description: Information on vehicle emission data; test methods and procedures; test results; studies and surveys; standards and regulations. Topics: Abatement programs; engineering and evaluation; fugitive emissions; fleet programs; mobile source compliance; special studies.

Access: Files are arranged by subject, company, and project. Program Record Number: ENV EPS 215

Surveillance

Description: Information on national air pollution surveillance monitoring equipment; monthly and annual summary reports; source testing methods. Topics: National air pollution surveillance; operations and maintenance; equipment testing and evaluation; source testing procedures; studies, surveys and investigations; specific pollutants. Access: Files are arranged by subject, location and specific pollutants. Program Record Number: ENV EPS 250

Technology Development — Pollution Abatement

Export Development Corporation

Chapter 43

General Information

NOTE: THIS INSTITUTION IS NOT SUBJECT TO THE ACCESS TO INFORMATION ACT.

Background

The Export Development Corporation (EDC) was established on October 1, 1969, by the Export Development Act. The Export Development Corporation is an agent of Her Majesty in right of Canada and is a Crown corporation whose shares may be owned only by Canada. It is accountable for its affairs to Parliament through the Minister for International Trade. Both the Export Development Corporation and its predecessor, the Export Credits Insurance Corporation which commenced operations in 1944, were created to facilitate and develop trade between Canada and other countries.

The Corporation achieves this through a wide range of insurance, guarantee and financing services not normally provided by the public sector.

The Export Development Corporation's services are provided to help Canadian exporters who offer products competitive in price, quality, delivery and service, to compete internationally.

Standards: Records retained for two years or until such time as the individual has had the opportunity to exercise all his or her rights under the Privacy Act. TBS

Registration: 000150 Bank Number: EDC PPU 005

Classes of Personal Information

In the course of conducting the programs and activities of the Export Development Corporation, categories of personal information not used for administrative purposes may be accumulated. Such personal information includes, among other things, general biographies of individuals in relation to EDC's program services. This form of personal information is retrievable if specifics are provided concerning transactions filed e.g. names of exporters, countries and projects, rather than by name of individual or other personal identifier.

Other information provided by or about individuals may also be found in corporate record holdings such as information services, telecommunications, accounts payable and library files. This class of personal information is retrievable only if the requester identifies, in sufficient detail, the subject of the information that they wish to access. The retention periods are controlled by the record schedules of the general subject files in which they are stored.

Farm Credit Corporation Canada

Chapter 44

General Information

Background

The Farm Credit Corporation was established in 1959, under the Farm Credit Act, as a Crown agency reporting to Parliament through the Minister of Agriculture. Its objective was to provide long-term mortgage credit to farmers and to syndicates of farmers. The Farm Credit Corporation Act became law in April, 1993, repealing the Farm Credit Act and the Farm Syndicates Credit Act. The Farm Syndicates Credit Act remains open until such time as all advances are repaid by the Corporation or otherwise forgiven or written off.

Responsibilities

The Corporation makes and administers farm loans under the authority of the Farm Credit Corporation Act to enhance rural Canada by providing specialized and personalized financial services to farming operations, including family farms, and to those businesses in rural Canada, including small and medium-sized businesses, that are related to farming. As well, it administers programs as directed by the federal government.

Legislation

- Farm Credit Corporation Act
- Farm Syndicates Credit Act (Section 8.1)

Organization

In order to fulfil its mandate, the Corporation has established a network of offices to serve the farming community. Corporate headquarters is located in Regina. Regional offices are located in Edmonton, which serves Alberta, British Columbia and the Yukon; Regina, which serves Saskatchewan and Manitoba; Guelph, which serves Ontario; and Moncton, which serves Quebec and the four Atlantic provinces. The regional offices are functionally organized into a lending services group, including all field operations, and a loan administration group. In addition to the four regional offices, the Corporation has 100 district and field offices.

Corporate headquarters is organized into six component groups.

◆ Agri-Land

Agri-Land is responsible for managing FCC's land holdings in Saskatchewan. It manages and markets FCC's land holdings in Saskatchewan through tenant search and selection, lease negotiations, land and rental valuations, appraisals, environmental assessments and land sales.

◆ Controllers Office and Treasurer's Office

These offices are responsible for the overall financial management of the Corporation including financial risk management, funding, cash management, corporate accounting, financial reporting and internal controls. They also ensure that the financial provisions of the Farm Credit Corporation Act and the financial management provisions of the Financial Administration Act are effectively employed by the Corporation.

◆ Corporate Management Services

Corporate Management Services directs, controls, and advises on management information, communications, administrative and human resources services.

◆ Executive Office

This Office consists of the Chairman and the President. The Chairman is a member of the Board of the Corporation. The President is a member of the Board of the Corporation and exercises all of the powers and duties of the Chairman in his absence. As Chief Executive Officer, he directs the business of the Corporation and exercises all other powers and duties as may be assigned to him by the Chairman or the Board of the Corporation.

◆ Lending and Marketing

Lending — responsible for the Corporation's overall lending activities, which include lending and administration of loans, client services and regional operations,

Policy Approval and Training — responsible for approval of lending and for loans in excess of regional limits and administration exceptions,

Loan Administration and Systems Design — responsible for administration of accounts and maintenance of monitoring systems,

Approval and Environmental Management — responsible for quality of appraisals and environmental policy and control,

Marketing — responsible for developing new products and services to meet clients needs.

◆ Office of the Chief Economist

This office consists of:

Portfolio Management — responsible for loan monitoring, economic information and corporate planning, research and development.

Corporate Audit — responsible for a comprehensive audit plan. It performs regular regional loan portfolio audits and conducts periodic reviews of systems and practices related to corporate office and regional operations. It is also responsible for the coordination of all audit activities: internal audits, external financial attest audits and special examinations.

Federal Office of Regional Development (Quebec)

Chapter 45

General Information

Background

The Federal Office of Regional Development (Quebec) (FORD(Q)) was established by Order in Council on June 13, 1991. It had already been operating as a separate entity within Industry, Science and Technology Canada in the area of regional development in Quebec. Since January 1996, FORD-Q has been part of the Industry Portfolio.

Changes to the organizational structure are currently underway, and are broadly reflected in this document. The detailed version will be completed when Info Source is next updated.

Responsibilities

FORD(Q)'s mandate is to promote economic development in areas of Québec where low incomes and slow economic growth are prevalent or where opportunities for productive employment are inadequate. To this end, it emphasizes long-term economic development and sustainable employment and income creation. FORD(Q) concentrates its efforts on small and medium-sized business and the development and enhancement of entrepreneurship.

Legislation

- Atlantic Enterprise Loan Insurance Regulations with regard to projects in the Province of Quebec (P.C. 1986 1107, P.C. 1991 1114, P.C. 1993 1671)
- Department of Industry Act regarding regional economic development in the Province of Quebec (P.C. 1995 1536, P.C. 1995 1537)
- Enterprise Development Regulations with regard to contributions and projects in the Province of Quebec (C.R.C. 1969 P.C. 1991 1113, P.C. 1993 1671)
- Industrial and Regional Development Act regarding activities in the Province of Quebec (P.C. 1991 1118, P.C. (1993 1671)
- Small Business Loans Act (P.C. 1991-1116, 1993-1671)
- Special Areas Act regarding activities in the Province of Quebec (P.C. 1991 1118, P.C. 1993 1671)

Organization

The Federal Office of Regional Development — Quebec is headed by the Deputy Minister, assisted by two Assistant Deputy Ministers responsible for Operations and Strategy and Policy and Liaison. FORD-Q also has a Director General responsible for Communications, the Secretariat and Document Management, a Director General for Information Management and Technology Development and a Director General responsible for Resource Management (human, financial and administrative).

♦ Communications, Secretariat and Document Management

This branch is responsible for advising the Minister and the Secretary of State, FORD-Q senior management and program managers on matters relating to communications. It prepares and implements a strategic communications plan and manages a public relations and promotional program intended to gain the desired visibility for FORD-Q's accomplishments.

The branch provides information for the media and organizes public events with regard to projects to which FORD-Q has contributed. In addition, it produces publicity messages, ensures FORD-Q participation in fairs and seminars and produces publications on FORD-Q programs and services, co-ordinates regional communications activities and provides strategic opinion with regard to promotional activities; it maintains ties with federal organizations, government and the private sector.

This branch is also responsible for the administrative mechanisms set up to respond efficiently to the needs of Parliament, the Minister, the Secretary of State, the Deputy Minister and senior management. It co-ordinates the preparation of an integrated set of briefings for the various activities in which the Minister, the Secretary of State and the Deputy Minister are called upon to participate, and prepares submissions to Treasury Board and Memoranda to Cabinet and forwards them for the Minister's approval. The duties of the branch include enforcement of the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act, and the management of ministerial correspondence. Other functions, which are concentrated in the Hull office, include Parliamentary relations.

♦ Information Management and Technology Development

This branch is responsible for designing, developing and implementing integrated information management systems.

♦ Operational Support

This branch provides operational support. More specifically, it ensures the consistency of business plans, the interpretation of terms and conditions for the delivery of programs as well as financial planning. It also ensure that FORD-Q, the Community Futures Development Corporations (CFDCs) and the Community Economic Development Corporations (CEDCs) work together.

♦ Operations

The Operations Sector is responsible for planning, conceiving and the delivery of FORD-Q's programs and services in the regions, notably its new IDEA-SME Program. Two branches and a network of 13 regional offices carry out the various activities in this sector.

♦ Regional Offices

As part of the federal government's Program Review, FORD-Q's activities have been completely redirected. In April 1995, a new program, IDEA-SME, was to facilitate the breakthrough of small businesses to the year 2000. The IDEA-SME Program focuses on three activity components: Innovation, Research and Development, and Design; Market Development and Exporting; and Entrepreneurship and Development of the Business Climate. The SMALL BUSINESS ACCESS CENTRE is the new concept through which FORD-Q delivers federal programs and services in Quebec.

Regional Offices in the various regions of Quebec are the nerve centres for delivery of FORD-Q programs and services. They play an active role in setting departmental priorities and policies and in adapting programs and services to the regional context. FORD-Q teams working in the regions represent the Department in dealings with local bodies and hold consultations in the community on specific issues. The regional offices enable the federal government to publicize its regional economic development policies and activities.

FORD-Q also administers the Community Development Program (CDP), which is centred around 55 Community Futures Development Corporations (CFDCs), the CFDC network in Quebec and eight Community Economic Development Corporations (CEDCs).

The Resource Management Branch provides advice and counsel with regard to budgetary planning, and is responsible for the annual updating of reference levels, Part III of the Principal Budget and the Public Accounts. It ensures liaison with the Auditor General of Canada, and is responsible for the management of all administrative and technical services.

This branch offers a whole range of services for managers and employees, as well as professional services, in co-operation with its partner, Public Works and Government Services Canada (PWGSC), with regard to classification and staffing, manpower and employment equity planning, training and development, work relations, official languages, remuneration and fringe benefits. The branch also offers access to a career assistance and orientation program.

The Resource Management Branch is also responsible for providing the Deputy Minister and senior management with advice and recommendations on the implementation of major programs, policies, and initiatives which affect FORD-Q personnel. These programs and policies reflect Central Agency policies and guidelines.

The Branch also facilitates strategic and operational changes, formulates recommendations in several sectors of responsibility and ensures that all employees are treated equitably.

♦ Strategic Activities and Product Development

This branch is responsible for designing and setting up programs and services and regional strategic activities that respond to the needs of FORD-Q clientele as well as to the concerns of the department and the government. In order to address Quebec's needs, the branch equally proposes regional strategic activities that support measures put forward by the federal government.

♦ Strategy and Liaison

This branch defines FORD-Q's orientations in terms of regional development in Quebec and is responsible for program evaluation. It also ensures joint federal-provincial activities in Quebec. The branch prepares partnership strategies with a variety of federal, provincial and private stakeholders in the area of regional development. Lastly, it analysis the status of and trends in the economy of Quebec and its regions.

The Strategy and Liaison Branch also defends and promotes Quebec's interests at the federal level with regard to the preparation of national policies and initiatives. In addition, the branch works to maximize industrial and regional spinoff in Quebec from government contracting and major government projects. It is responsible for monitoring free trade issues at the international (Gatt-WTO Agreement), continental (NAFTA) and national (Domestic Trade Agreement) levels.

The Strategy and Liaison Branch is responsible for the ongoing improvement of services and for evaluating client needs.

The Canada Business Service Centre (CBSC) Initiative was introduced to provide Canadian firms with easier access to a wide range of information on government services, programs and regulations. There are currently 21 federal business departments and agencies participating in this initiative, as well as other levels of government and non-governmental organizations.

Three regional development agencies and Industry Canada are designated as federal managing partners and are responsible for the development and management of the CBSCs in their areas. The Atlantic Canada Opportunities Agency (ACOA) manages the centres in the four Atlantic Provinces; the Federal Office of Regional Development — Quebec manages the centre in Quebec, Industry Canada manages the centre in Ontario and the Department of Western Economic Diversification manages the centres in the four western provinces.

A national CBSC Secretariat provides centralized support to the network of regional CBSCs and promotes development of the CBSC initiative. The Secretariat is located at Industry Canada. Guidelines for operation of the Secretariat are issued by the Assistant Deputy Ministers' Managing Partners Committee, with representatives from ACOA, WD, IC and FORD-Q. It acts as the secretariat for the Managers Operating Committee, the Information Management Committee and the Information Specialists Committee. It also coordinates the dissemination of information from participating federal business departments.

Fisheries and Oceans Canada

Chapter 46

General Information

Background

The Constitution Act, 1867 gives Parliament jurisdiction over "Sea Coast and Inland Fisheries." The Fisheries Act, 1868 was enacted in accordance with this responsibility. The Fish Inspection Act of 1914 provides jurisdiction over interprovincial and international trade of fish and fish products. The Department of Fisheries and Oceans Act, 1978 — 79 established the Department and provides jurisdiction over sea coast and inland fisheries, fishing and recreational harbours, hydrography and marine sciences and the coordination of policies and programs of the Government of Canada respecting oceans. The Canadian Coast Guard, formerly a part of Transport Canada, merged with the former DFO on April 1, 1995. The Constitution Act, 1982, the Canada Shipping Act, the Arctic Waters Pollution Prevention Act, the Navigable Waters Protection Act, the Department of Transport Act and the National Transportation Act are the principal Acts governing marine transportation activities. Legislative authorities concerning the integration of Coast Guard were finalized last year.

Responsibilities

While other government departments contribute to the management of Canada's water-based activities, the primary focus of Fisheries and Oceans is on water and the resources it contains. It has responsibility for all matters respecting oceans not by law assigned to any other department. The scope of this responsibility and the extent to which it is exercised by the federal government have been determined by judicial interpretation, agreements with provinces and the evolution of public policy.

Specific responsibilities include:

- Administration of inspection programs to meet national standards for quality and safety of domestic and imported fish and seafood products along with commercial fishing, recreational small craft harbours and fishing vessel insurance programs.

- Conservation, protection, control, enforcement and fisheries resource management to ensure economic and ecological interests in Canadian oceans and inland waters are protected.

- Development and administration of fish marketing initiatives in support of international fisheries negotiations along with industrial renewal and economic and policy analysis.

- Provision of operational policies and programs for the use of water transportation interests contributing to safe, efficient and economical conduct of marine activities, protection of the marine environment in Canadian waters and, where appropriate, undertaking development, operation and maintenance of specific elements of the marine transportation system.

- Scientific research respecting primary production, physical oceanography and limnology (studies in freshwater), hydrographic surveying and charting, environmental issues and the behaviour and effects of marine contaminations, and administration of various Federal acts, regulations and policies designed to conserve and protect the aquatic habitat.

Organization

There are six major Activities under the departmental mandate which are administered by Assistant Deputy Ministers who are responsible for broad policy formulation, strategic and operational planning, resourcing, scientific and technical services and functional guidance to the Regional Directors General who provide for Program delivery.

♦ ADM, CORPORATE SERVICES

The ADM, Corporate Services provides executive direction, coordination, corporate administrative services and human resource planning in support of Program objectives and is responsible for:

- Access to Information and Privacy — provides Departmental focal point for responding to requests under the Access to Information Act and the Privacy Act.
- Corporate Review, Evaluation and Audit — assesses the appropriateness and strength of the management framework and makes suggestions for improvement; evaluates policies and programs and makes recommendations for their confirmation, modification or discontinuation. Focal point for Auditor General Audits and Quality Services to the Public Initiative.
- Finance and Administration — provides advice and services in areas of resource management, financial planning, accounting and reporting, policy and systems, contracting and procurement, asset and facility management (not including Small Craft Harbours) and administration.
- Information Management and Technology Services — provide advice and services in the areas of application development, information and data management (including libraries), computer processing and telecommunications.

- Personnel — provides human resource management, advice and services for human resource planning, classification and organization, staffing and workforce adjustment, executive resourcing, staff relations, compensation, training and development, employment equity, official languages, occupational health and safety, incentive/merit awards, employee assistance program, career counselling, and personnel management information systems.

- Strategic Policy and Planning — provides corporate policy development and coordination, strategic planning, economic analysis in support of policy development, market analysis and intelligence, federal/provincial relations, legislative and regulatory review.

♦ ADM, FISHERIES MANAGEMENT

The ADM, Fisheries Management is responsible for:

- International Affairs — advances Canada's international fisheries interests in conservation and trade and includes negotiation and administration of international fisheries treaties and agreements, representation of Canada's position regarding fisheries trade policy, settlement of boundary disputes and market-access questions and participates on international scientific and conservation fisheries commissions.

- Aboriginal Affairs — develops Native fisheries policies, administers the Aboriginal Fisheries Strategy in British Columbia, the Atlantic provinces and Arctic Canada, negotiates fishing provisions of land claims settlements in British Columbia, the Northwest Territories, Newfoundland and Quebec offshore, implements land claims of the Tungavik Federation of Nunavut and the Council of Yukon Indians and negotiates Aboriginal self government.

- Assistance to the Sealing Industry Program — coordination of the annual seal hunt.

- Atlantic Fisheries and Pacific Region Licensing Appeal Boards — hear appeals from fishermen dissatisfied with departmental licensing decisions and consider general problems on licensing policy.

- Conservation and Protection — ensures compliance with legislation, policies and programs in support of conservation and sustainable fisheries resources through educational and enforcement programs in both tidal and non-tidal waters except in Ontario, Quebec and the Prairie Provinces. Fishery management plans, policies, programs and regulations ensure self-generation of stocks and fair distribution of harvestable surpluses.

- Licensing — provides a means for regulating participation in and access to the fishery to ensure that the harvest remains within conservation limits and promotes economic viability.

- Resource Management and Development — including Salmonid Enhancement Program — contributes to the stability and viability of fishing and fishing related industries, including more cost effective exploitation of the fisheries resource, productivity and quality related improvements to fish harvesting and processing practises, new product development, introduction of more selective harvesting technology and value-added processing technology.

◆ ADM, INDUSTRY SERVICES

The ADM, Industry Services is responsible for:

- Inspection — assures value, wholesomeness and marketability of fish products for both domestic and export consumption including: development and promotion of appropriate product and process standards that contribute to the achievement of acceptable quality, safety and identity of fish and fish products; assurance of compliance through the National Fish Inspection Program under the Fish Inspection Act and Regulations as well as the Management of Contaminated Fisheries Regulations.

- Newfoundland Bait Program (NBP) — unique to Newfoundland, the NBP was established in 1934 and operates under the authority of the Terms of Union between Newfoundland and Canada and provides fishers with a source of affordable bait.

- Small Craft Harbours — management and upkeep of harbours to provide clients with safe and accessible harbour facilities to launch and moor vessels and from which to undertake fishing operations and recreational boating.

◆ ADM, MARINE SERVICES/COMMISSIONER, CANADIAN COAST GUARD

The ADM, Marines Services and Commissioner, Canadian Coast Guard, develops and operates the national marine transportation system and is responsible for:

- Coast Guard College — prepares Officer Cadets for a career in the Coast Guard, provides training in search and rescue, marine traffic regulation, radio operations, marine engineering, navigation, shipboard management and provides residential facility for conferences and meetings in the Maritimes.

- Icebreaking and Arctic Operations — provides, operates and maintains icebreaking ships, facilities and services, manages a program of ice management, coordinates an annual Eastern Arctic Sealift, supports other government departments and agencies in safe and efficient movement of marine traffic in ice-infested waters, supports other government marine related activities, including sovereignty in the Canadian Arctic and operates a program to minimize the effect of flooding caused by ice jams on the upper St. Lawrence River.

- Marine Navigation System — provides, operates and maintains a system of short and long range aids to navigation, waterways development, maintenance and protection, vessel traffic services and safety and public correspondence communications.

- Marine Technical and Support Services — provides marine users with support to aids to navigation, search and rescue operations, civil construction and modernisation of Coast Guard facilities, design, development, acquisition and repair of electronic, communications, navigation network, radar and computer systems and coordination of matters dealing with environmental issues.

- Rescue and Environmental Response — provides marine search and rescue capability within the Canadian area of responsibility as defined under International Maritime Organization agreements and in Canadian waters of the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence system, promotes safety to the marine public in order to minimize loss of life and injury as well as the loss of property, provides emergency planning and environmental response to clean up pollution from shipping incidents, on a cost recovery basis and carries out a monitoring and oversight role as part of the joint Industry/Government partnership on spill response.

◆ ADM, POLICY

The ADM, Policy is responsible for:

- Economic and Policy Analysis — responsible for economic and policy reviews of major departmental issues and programs in the fisheries and oceans sector; management of international trade issues and provision of trade policy advice; recreational fisheries and aquaculture policies; functional guidance to the national departmental statistics program; management of the IRIS project; development of an oceans policy for Canada; management of Atlantic income replacement adjustment programs including the Plant Workers Adjustment Program, the Northern Cod Early Retirement Program, and the Atlantic Groundfish Strategy; and policy advice on the Employment Insurance Program.

- Strategic Planning and Liaison — responsible for strategic policy, planning and Cabinet affairs, legislative review, federal/provincial relations, sustainable development policy coordination, Official Languages Act Part 7 implementation, new DFO client relations development, MOU negotiations for fish inspection transfer to the new agency; and gender equality issues.

◆ ADM, SCIENCE

The ADM, Science ensures the highest standard of scientific information for use in developing policies, regulations and legislation regarding oceans and aquatic life and is responsible for:

- Fisheries and Oceans Science — provides a reliable scientific basis for the conservation of marine and anadromous fishery resources, for aquaculture and for protecting the health of wild and cultured fish stocks in oceans and coastal waters, supporting fisheries management, integrated resource management, offshore development, climate prediction, marine services, coastal engineering, defence and shipping.

- Habitat Management and Environmental Science — design, development and coordination of policies, plans and programs related to the protection and conservation of aquatic habitats; investigation and monitoring of chemical and physical conditions which affect the quality of the aquatic environments; compiling information in support of sustained economic utilization of Canada's renewable aquatic resources; and monitoring the management of the quality of the aquatic habitat.

- Hydrography — enhances the safety and efficiency of navigation for vessels operating in Canadian waters by undertaking field surveys to measure water depth, bottom morphology, bottom type and composition, tides, water levels, near surface currents, sound velocity and turbidity. Accurate charts and navigational publications of Canadian and adjacent international waters are compiled and published.

◆ OFFICE OF THE DEPUTY MINISTER

In accordance with section 3 of the Department of Fisheries and Oceans Act the Deputy Minister of Fisheries and Oceans is the deputy head of the Department. The Office of the Deputy Minister develops, coordinates and implements the Departmental Program consistent with the powers, duties and functions outlined in section 4 of the Act and provides administrative support to Crown Corporations for which the Minister has responsibility. Program objectives are carried out by one Senior Assistant Deputy Minister (SADM) and six Assistant Deputy Ministers (ADMs) located at headquarters in Ottawa, Ontario and five Regional Directors General (RDGs) located across the country. In addition to the SADM, ADMs and RDGs, the Director General, Communications and General Counsel also report directly to the Deputy Minister.

- Communications — develops communications strategies and supports the initiatives of all sectors as well as scientific publications.

- General Counsel — Department of Justice legal services attached to DFO provide legal counsel on all matters touching the operation and administration of the Department.

- The Freshwater Fish Marketing Corporation — advice and analysis of issues relating to the operations and mandate of this Crown Corporation are provided to the Minister on an ongoing basis. The Department coordinates on an annual basis the development and approval by Treasury Board and the Department of Finance of the corporate plan and operating and capital budgets of this Corporation.

◆ OFFICES OF REGIONAL DIRECTORS GENERAL (RDG)

Regional Directors General are responsible for Program Delivery in meeting the mandate of the Department under the functional guidance of the Deputy Minister, the SADM and the ADM's. Each Region is described hereunder:

- Central and Arctic Region — encompassing Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario and the Northwest Territories, it contains about 67% of Canada's freshwater and seven of the 14 largest lakes in the world, emphasizing cleanup and preservation initiatives in the Great Lakes. It accounts for about 60% of Canada's recreational fishing which exceeds the commercial fishery catch. Some 50% of the commercial catch is marketed through the Freshwater Fish Marketing Corporation. In marine transportation it directly supports shipping with nearly 200 icebreaking responses, over 1,300 search and rescue responses and it maintains nearly 5,900 navais. It provides primary marine pollution response North of 60 as well as the Eastern Arctic Sealift which resupplies coastal communities in the Arctic. Search and rescue services in the Great Lakes are provided to the highest concentration of pleasure craft in the country and the Region supports commercial marine traffic to the North American heartland.

- Laurentian Region — encompassing the Province of Quebec, it covers more than 6,000 kilometres of coastline. Fisheries sector includes over 5,000 fishermen, nearly 1,800 vessels, nearly 100 processing plants and over 380 small craft harbours. A marine science research centre, the Maurice-Lamontagne Institute, Mont-Joli, provides fisheries, oceanographic and hydrographic research. A modern fish inspection centre, the René Poirier Laboratory near Montreal, is the second largest point of entry and export of fish in Canada. DFO manages the entire marine fishery in the region except for anadromous and catadromous species which are managed by the Province. In marine transportation it directly supports shipping with nearly 500 icebreaking responses, over 1,200 search and rescue responses and it maintains more than 2,550 navais. It ensures year-round access to the Port of Montreal and other ports on the St. Lawrence. Due to its icebreaking program, it safeguards susceptible water-side communities which may experience the effects of floods.

- Maritimes Region — encompassing the three Maritime provinces, it borders on the Gulf of St. Lawrence, the Scotia Shelf and the Bay of Fundy. This vast ecological and socio-economic complex is the source of livelihood for some 1,000 small communities in the Gulf of St. Lawrence and the region's commercial fishery includes some 16,000 fishermen, 5,800 vessels, 300 active harbours and over 350 processing plants. In marine transportation it directly supports shipping with over 500 icebreaking responses, over 1,300 search and rescue responses and it maintains nearly 6,600 navais.

- Newfoundland Region — comprising the Province of Newfoundland and Labrador along with adjoining marine waters, the economic and social complexion of this region is dominated by the fishery with the entire population holding a deep sense of the vital importance of the fishing industry. Traditionally, cod has been the dominant species in the commercial groundfish fishery however since the various moratoria on cod and other groundfish species, shellfish (crab, lobster, scallops) have gained prominence. A small but growing high-tech oceans science and technology industry is evident. In marine transportation it directly supports shipping with nearly 300 icebreaking responses, over 400 search and rescue responses and it maintains nearly 1,000 nav aids.

- Pacific Region — comprising British Columbia and the Yukon, it is entrusted with managing and protecting marine fish stocks and Pacific salmon and covering 105 river systems in B.C., as well as three northern transboundary rivers, the Stikine, Taku and Yukon. This region supports major commercial, recreational and aboriginal fisheries and a large segment of Canada's oceans science and technology industry. In marine transportation it directly supports shipping with over 2,200 air and marine search and rescue responses and it maintains more than 1,950 nav aids.

◆ SENIOR ASSISTANT DEPUTY MINISTER

The Senior Assistant Deputy Minister (SADM) is responsible for managing all aspect of the Department, in cooperation with the Deputy Minister, through a "single box concept". The SADM has direct responsibility for:

- The Project Management Team — which plans and monitors the progress of all issues relating to Transition, i.e. meeting Program Review targets and the merger of the "former" Department of Fisheries and Oceans and the Canadian Coast Guard. Specifically:
 - addressing areas of overlap in programs/responsibilities within the Department
 - bringing a greater corporate perspective to the management of DFO and reducing intersectoral and regional/headquarters concerns
 - increasing the focus on management of people within DFO by strengthening internal communications, implementing upward feedback, redesigning Training and Development, and broadening the awards program.
- Director of Employee Transition — who
 - addresses issues affecting employees of the Department that are specifically related to the merger of Coast Guard and Fisheries and Oceans and the impacts of Program Review
 - plays an integral part in the Department's National Advisory and Regional Advisory Committee structure
 - conducts special projects for the SADM including those related to internal communications and manager/employee relations.

Statistics Program

Description: The Department collects commercial fishing "Catch and Effort Data" from commercial fish buyers and vessel skippers. The information identifies individual vessel and commercial buyers, species sold/purchased, amount paid, area of catch and fishing effort where applicable, on a trip by trip basis. The operational and statistics system is decentralized, operating from regional offices. Class of Individuals: Commercial fish buyers and vessel skippers. Purpose: Stock assessment and quota monitoring purposes. Consistent Uses: In support of enforcement and the conduct of investigations in accordance with Canadian fisheries legislation, data is linked with the Commercial Fishing Licence Databases (DFO PPU 010) and DFO Violations (DFO PPU 060). Also used for economic analysis and program evaluations of various segments of the fisheries and for fisheries management purposes as authorized by the Fisheries Act and other related acts of Parliament. Some personal information maintained in the bank is shared with the Nova Scotia

Department of Fisheries with the written consent for disclosure from the individual to whom the information relates. In all the above areas, data are produced in reports containing no personal information. However, personal information is maintained in the bank. Retention and Disposal Standards: Information in this bank will be held indefinitely due to the historical value of the information. TBS Registration: 003622 Bank Number: DFO PPU 055

Surveys

Description: From time to time, surveys are carried out by the Department to obtain information. These surveys include: Commercial Fishing Registration and Licensing Data; Domestic Quota System; Permis-pêcheur-bateau; Commercial Fishing Licence Data; Tidal Water Sport Fishing Licence Data; Licensing; Foreign Licensing and Surveillance System Flash; Aquaculture Licence; Complaint Control System; Import Rejection; Plant Capacity Survey; Vessel Performance Studies; Angler Diary; National Survey of Recreational Fisheries; Coûts et revenus des entreprises de Pêche; Costs and Earning Survey of Commercial Fishermen; Survey of Pacific Costs and Earnings; Fisherman's Income Survey; Atlantic Canada Sport Catch Data. Other similar surveys may occur as the need arises. Information may be gathered through the Catch and Effort Data (DFO PPU 055) and Commercial Fishing Licence Database (DFO PPU 010) banks. Much of this data is published in a statistical format, with all personal identifiers removed. For example, Newfoundland region publishes annually its "Costs and Earnings" Survey; and the Pacific region publishes the "Recreational Mail Surveys". Class of Individuals: Information in this bank relates to clients of departmental fisheries programs and sports fishermen. Purpose: The information is compiled to provide the Department with the statistical or economic information it requires to manage its programs effectively. Retention and Disposal Standards: The length of retention varies with each survey. TBS Registration: 003626 Bank Number: DFO PPU 075

Foreign Affairs and International Trade Canada

Chapter 47

General Information

Background

The Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade had its origin in an Act of Parliament in 1909 to deal with Canada's relations with other governments within the British Empire and with foreign states. In 1981, the foreign operations of the immigration service were brought into the Department. In January 1982, there was a fundamental reorganization to include the foreign trade policy and international trade component of the Industry, Trade and Commerce Department. In 1992 the Immigration component of the foreign service was transferred to Employment and Immigration Canada and certain other non-core functions, such as the World Exhibition program and international sport program, were transferred to other departments. In 1993 the Investment Development Division of Investment Canada was merged with the Department.

The Department of External Affairs Act, which came into force on December 7, 1983, sets forth the mandate of the Department and provides for three ministers, the Secretary of State for External Affairs (SSEA), a Minister for International Trade, and a Minister for External Relations. Since June 25, 1993 there has been no appointment to the latter position. The name of the Department was subsequently changed to External Affairs and International Trade Canada. In the fall of 1993 the Department assumed its present title, the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade (DFAIT), and the SSEA's title became Minister of Foreign Affairs. Two new Secretaries of State were appointed, for Latin America and Africa, and for Asia-Pacific.

Responsibilities

The Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade has the primary responsibility for the promotion and protection of Canada's interests abroad and the conduct of Canada's relations with other countries. Its main functions are: to ensure the effective representation of Canada in other countries and in international organizations including close contact, communications and negotiation with other governments and organizations through Canada's extensive network of representatives abroad; to evaluate information about political, economic and other developments likely to affect Canada's interests; to give advice to the government, often in consultation with other departments, on the formulation and implementation of policies and programs with international dimensions; to ensure the coordination of the external aspects and application of national policies for export trade promotion, defence and security, development assistance, immigration, and cultural and scientific exchanges; to reflect to peoples abroad the bilingual and multi-cultural character of Canadian society; and to provide protection and assistance to Canadian citizens abroad.

Organization

Department headquarters in Ottawa supervises missions abroad, and provides service to the public and support to Ministers and the Prime Minister in the area of foreign policy and trade policy. Within Canada, the international trade centres co-managed by the Department and the Department of Industry support the Government's export promotion program.

Autonomous agencies:

Reporting to Parliament through the Minister of Foreign Affairs include the Foreign Claims Commission, the International Boundary Commission, the International Joint Commission, the Roosevelt Campobello International Park Commission, the Canadian International Development Agency, the International Development Research Centre, and the Asia-Pacific Foundation. With government-wide restructuring, the Export Development Corporation has been added to the responsibilities of the Minister of Foreign Affairs and Ministerial responsibility has been delegated to the Minister for International Trade.

Headquarters organization:

The Department's headquarters in Ottawa is organized into the Office of the Under-Secretary and 10 branches, each under an assistant deputy minister, which supervise the work of the Department on a geographic, functional or administrative basis. Each branch is divided into bureaux under directors general; the bureaux in turn are separated into divisions, each under a director. Most branches also have divisions and work units that do not form part of bureaux.

International Organizations:

Canada has permanent missions to a number of international organizations. There are missions to the United Nations (UN) in New York and in Geneva, the latter also accredited to the Secretariat of the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) and to the five UN specialized agencies located there. There are permanent representatives to the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) in Vienna; to the UN Centre for Human Settlements (HABITAT) and to the UN Environment Program (UNEP), both in Nairobi; and to the Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) in Rome. There is also a permanent delegation to the UN Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) in Paris. There are permanent missions to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) in Brussels; to the European Communities (EC), also in Brussels; to the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD) in Paris; and to the Organization of American States (OAS) in Washington. There is a representative to the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO), with headquarters in Montreal.

Missions abroad:

There are at present 110 Canadian Diplomatic Missions abroad (including Embassies, High Commissions, Consulates-General and Consulates), a figure which may vary slightly from time to time. Many ambassadors and high commissioners are accredited to several countries in the same region. There are, in addition, 47 Honorary Consuls in cities with no other resident Canadian representative. Full details may be found in the publication Canadian Representatives Abroad, issued annually. 112 countries have diplomatic missions in Ottawa and another 41 have non-resident accreditation. In addition, a number of countries have consulates in principal cities throughout Canada.

♦ Office of Protocol

The Chief of Protocol is the principal point of contact between the Government of Canada and foreign representatives accredited to Canada. The Office of Protocol is responsible for the accreditation and appointment of foreign diplomatic and consular representatives to Canada, and that of Canadian heads of diplomatic and consular missions to other countries. The Office manages all questions of privileges and immunities in respect to both foreign representatives in Canada and Canadian representatives abroad, as set out in the Foreign Missions and International Organizations Act, the State Immunity Act and the Vienna Conventions on Diplomatic Relations. The Office plans, organizes and manages state and official visits to Canada and participates in the logistical planning and conduct of travel abroad by the Governor General, the Prime Minister, the Minister of Foreign Affairs and the Minister for International Trade. The Office also organizes, arranges, and manages official hospitality functions for ministers and senior officials of this and other departments at Foreign Affairs Headquarters and at 7 Rideau Gate, the official Government guest house.

◆ Office of the Senior Coordinator for Federal-Provincial Relations

Works closely with the provinces and territories, providing an information service which keeps them abreast of international developments affecting their interests and ensuring that those interests are taken into account in decisions reached by the Department. The Office assists provinces wishing to open or close international offices and coordinates the co-location of provincial trade and/or immigration offices in Canadian missions abroad. In addition, it acts, when necessary or appropriate, as point of contact for provincial requests for departmental services.

◆ Office of the Under-Secretary

The Under-Secretary, as Deputy Minister, bears general responsibility for departmental policy and objectives. An Associate Deputy Minister works in tandem with the Deputy Minister in day-to-day management of the department. There is also a Deputy Minister for International Trade who has general responsibility for the trade and investment development functions of the department. There are special ambassadors, based in Ottawa, for Fisheries Conservation, the Environment and Sustainable Development, for Disarmament, and for Air Negotiations.

Communications Bureau

The Communications Bureau consists of the Media Relations Office, the Foreign Policy Communications Division, the Trade Communications Division, and the Corporate Communications Division. The Bureau is responsible for increasing awareness and understanding of Canada's foreign policy and trade agenda, and of the department's role in shaping and carrying out that agenda; ensuring quality communications advice to ministers and officials on issues, events and initiatives; ensuring Canadian and foreign media, as well as other groups and individuals, receive timely and accurate information; providing the department with environmental research data to assist in understanding public opinion; liaising with the Privy Council Office communications secretariat; promoting public understanding of the historical background of Canadian foreign relations; and managing an internal communications program.

Geographic Branches

For the conduct of external relations, the world has been divided into five geographic branches, each under an assistant deputy minister. These are: Africa and the Middle East; Asia and the Pacific; Europe; Latin America and the Caribbean; and the United States. Each branch is divided into sub-regional bureaux, with further separation into divisions. The responsibilities and activities of the geographic bureaux have much in common and are best described together.

Each bureau is responsible for the management and coordination of the full range of relations with its region. Included are the operations of the Canadian posts abroad in its area, their guidance and instruction, and the provision and allocation of resources to them. Under the Department of External Affairs Act, a head of mission is defined as responsible for the management and direction of the mission and the supervision of the official activities of the various Canadian departments and agencies in the country in question.

The work of the geographic bureau is generally distributed into two types of divisions: relations and trade development. The relations divisions handle bilateral political and economic relations; country, sub-regional and regional analysis and policy; and, where appropriate for developing countries, aid relations. Trade development divisions, which are the main point of contact for the Canadian business community, handle export promotion and country-specific market access and trade policy issues. Most of them undertake tourist promotion in conjunction with Tourism Canada, fairs and trade missions, and some are concerned with investment development and science and technology. Some branches also have divisions or units dealing with regional or specialized issues. Within the Europe branch there is a Bureau dealing with bilateral technical assistance, and humanitarian and multilateral assistance, to Central and Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union.

Policy Staff

The Staff performs a variety of policy related functions. It has a responsibility for analysis, evaluation, and formulation of policy options, and provides advice to senior management in both the political/security and the trade/economic policy areas. The Staff provides support for the department's management of relations with Parliament and the Cabinet system. It is also responsible for coordination of Canadian participation in the G-7 Summit process.

Corporate Services Branch

This Branch provides central administrative support services for the Department's headquarters operations and the 150 missions and offices worldwide. These services include resource planning and management, financial, administrative and personnel services, information storage and retrieval, informatics development and support, audit and evaluation and physical resources (real property) services.

◆ Client Services Bureau

The Bureau provides personnel and financial administration services to employees and responsibility centres. It comprises six divisions: Financial Services; Foreign Service Directives and Travel; Compensation Services;

Staff Relations; Data Management; and Administrative Services. The Bureau also includes a Services Centre which provides one stop shopping to employees across the entire range of services offered by the Bureau.

◆ Information Resources Bureau

The Bureau is responsible for the Ministry's data banks and electronic and conventional registries. It supports the production, retrieval and delivery of timely information to staff and outside clientele. It is also responsible for mail management, diplomatic courier and messenger services for the Ministry and all the departments with officers abroad.

◆ Information Systems Bureau

The Bureau provides secure and unclassified communication services for voice, electronic mail, fax, data and telex for all Government of Canada communications abroad. Its new SIGNET system provides secure global communications to all departmental employees at missions, headquarters and wherever they travel abroad. The implementation of this system continues and by 1995 will provide interconnection to some 8,000 Canadian and locally-engaged staff through personal computers.

◆ Office of the Inspector General and Internal Audit and Evaluation

This division ensures the full accountability of ministerial employees and efficient operation of management systems and policies.

◆ Physical Resources Bureau

The Bureau is a Special Operating Agency which is responsible for the Department's Long Range Capital Program directed at increasing Crown ownership of properties abroad, and for the provision of chanceries and official residences through lease, purchase or design and construction. In addition, the bureau is responsible for interior design services for accommodation abroad; the acquisition of all materiel assets; and supervision of maintenance of overseas government properties. It performs a number of administrative functions relating to staff quarters at missions, and administers the Department's collection of Canadian works of art.

Human Resources Development Bureau

The Bureau, which is concerned with the whole range of the Department's human resources, handles recruitment, training and development, staffing and service abroad, appraisal and promotion. Some headquarters personnel are classified as non-rotational but many of the Branch's functions relate specifically to the operations of the Foreign Service, such as assignment to missions outside Canada. One division is responsible for all aspects of the Department's official languages program. The Branch is also responsible for personnel policy and planning.

◆ Resource Planning and Management Secretariat

This unit provides corporate resource planning and management services, including resource allocation, salary and position control and management, financial analysis and reporting and support to senior management through the Program Management Board of the Department.

◆ The Canadian Foreign Service Institute

The Institute plans and delivers training and development programs to departmental employees. The programs are designed to facilitate career development and improve the effectiveness of employees in the delivery of the department's programs in Canada and internationally. They include training in official and foreign languages and a broad range of work-related skills. Organizational Development services are also provided to assist the Department in managing change. A research function also exists.

International Business Development Branch

◆ International Business Programs Bureau

The bureau is responsible for development and implementation of policies on market intelligence. Through its four divisions, it advises on the creation and management of international business programs and services, international technology services and fairs and missions. The bureau creates and maintains productivity and performance tools for efficient delivery and measurement of these programs and services. It is responsible for all aspects of the Program for Market Development (PEMD), World Market Trade Fund (WMTF), the Investment Development Program (IDP) and the Technology Inflow Program and the Going Global Investment Program (GGIP). It manages the gathering and dissemination of information and intelligence on R&D collaboration and foreign technology acquisition. It also coordinates and manages the Investment Counsellor/Science and Technology officer networks abroad. It works with the Export Development Corporation (EDC) and the Canadian banking community to enhance export financing and provides input on EDC's corporate plan and priorities. It formulates policies on international arrangements for officially supported export credits (OECD consensus) and advises the Minister for International Trade on the management of the Canada Account. It assists Canada's business community to improve Canada's share of procurement at International Financial Institutions and advises on related policy issues. It develops and manages the department's trade informatics applications including the World Information Network (WIN) Exports, the Trade Planning and Tracking Systems and tools to manage the Fairs and Missions Program. It develops the department's Market Intelligence and Information policy as well as supports its computerized systems. It develops and manages an international business program for Canada's tradable services. It formulates policies for and participates in bilateral air services negotiations and maritime and surface access negotiations. It manages a matchmaker/trading house program, sovereignty access program (air, maritime) and economic sanctions (transportation services only).

◆ Investment Bureau

The Bureau is the focal point for the Federal Government's efforts to attract international business investment to Canada and to assist Canadian companies in expanding through international investments and investment partnerships. Through its three divisions, it monitors and analyzes investment trends and perceptions of Canada as an investment site. It assists Canadian companies in finding international investment partners and in accessing international sources of capital. It supports the efforts of CEOs of Canadian subsidiaries of multi-nationals seeking to attract manufacturing and R&D mandates to Canada. It supports the posts' corporate liaison program and responds to enquiries regarding opportunities in Canada. It prepares company-specific briefs which make the case for investing in Canada and, with provincial and municipal governments, assists potential investors in defining their requirements, in visiting potential sites and meeting with potential partners. It introduces sources of international venture capital to Canadian opportunities and works with the CEOs of Canadian subsidiaries to attract manufacturing and R&D mandates to Canada. It assists Canadian companies in finding investment partners. Such opportunities are brought to the attention of international investors through a full suite of communication approaches including multi-media technology. It monitors and analyzes investment trends, competitor programs, and perceptions of Canada. It creates and disseminates a variety of promotional materials. It provides investment briefings to media specialists and publicizes Canadian investment success stories.

◆ Trade Commissioner Service Strategic Planning Division

The division engages in medium to long term strategic planning for international business development. It works with other divisions to evaluate existing programs, to generate new programs and services and to develop alternate methods to deliver TCS services. It provides analysis and advice on the allocation of international business development resources within the department and across government to develop more focus and complementarity.

◆ Trade Planning and Operations Bureau

The Bureau, through its two divisions and two secretariats, builds partnerships to bring international business opportunities to Canada and to help Canadians compete in world markets. It establishes and manages the dialogue within the federal government to coordinate and rationalize resources dedicated to international business development. It represents sectoral interests in international business development program issues. It manages the consultative process which develops the strategic direction of the International Trade Business Plan (ITBP), including the coordination of the sector strategies. The ITBP is the strategic partnership between the private sector and all federal government departments active in support of Canada's international business development objectives abroad. The bureau liaises with and provides functional direction to the TCS both at home and abroad. It develops guidelines on the TCS roles, responsibilities, standards and levels of service. It manages the Canada Export Awards Program, and export awareness and preparedness programs as well as the Centre for International Business Studies Program. It manages, coordinates and is the secretariat for the International Trade Advisory Committees (ITAC) and the Sectoral Advisory Groups on International Trade (SAGIT), including interdepartmental liaison. It prepares and disseminates globally aggregated market information reports and capability guides and publishes Global Market Opportunity Reviews.

Legal and Consular Affairs Branch

In addition to the Bureaux listed below, the Legal and Consular Affairs Branch includes a unit of the Department of Justice which provides general legal services to the Department and is the central authority for the administration of the Hague Convention on the Civil Aspects of International Child Abduction.

◆ Consular Affairs Bureau

The Consular Affairs Bureau has the sole responsibility for the assistance and protection of Canadian citizens abroad, the provision of training to Consular staff, the operation of an information program aimed at travelling Canadians and all other related Consular services including passport services provided under the umbrella of the Consular Policy Division and the Consular Operations Division. Both Divisions are under the direction of the Director General, Consular Affairs Bureau and coordination is effected by the Strategic Planning Section. The Consular Affairs Bureau sets overall policy and ensures the application of the Vienna Convention on Consular Relations and related multilateral and bilateral agreements to its consular activities.

◆ Legal Affairs Bureau

Economic Law Division:

Provides advice on subjects such as investment, transport and communication, energy, intellectual property, extraterritoriality, science and technology, and services. It is also concerned with the protection of Canadian citizens' property interests abroad and with claims arising from the nationalization of property by foreign governments.

Legal Advisory Division:

Provides services related to private international law, such as the authentication of Canadian certificates and documents, and advice on sovereign immunity, recognition of states, protection of Canadian citizens, and diplomatic and consular privileges and immunities. The Treaty Section of this division provides advice on the drafting of treaties and treaty-making procedures and it maintains a registry of all Canadian treaties and international arrangements. The Bureau houses an extensive international law library.

Legal Operations Division:

Handles legal issues related to the UN and other multilateral institutions, peace and security, human rights and humanitarian law, maritime boundaries, the environment, fisheries and the law of the sea.

Trade Law Division:

The Trade Law Division, a combined unit of the Department of External Affairs and the Department of Justice, has responsibility for domestic and international aspects of trade law. Specifically, the division is responsible for legal interpretation of existing bilateral and multilateral trade agreements, legal advice on the negotiation and conclusion of new trade agreements, coordination of drafting legislation and regulations to implement trade treaty obligations into domestic law, legal aspects of Free Trade Agreement (FTA) Chapter 18 panels and their equivalent in NAFTA, dispute settlement panels under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), and panels under Chapter 19 of the FTA (antidumping and countervailing duty cases) and their NAFTA equivalent.

◆ Office of the Coordinator for Environmental Assessment and Stewardship

This unit is responsible for ensuring that the Department is in compliance with the requirements of the Canadian Environmental Assessment Act, the Canadian Environmental Protection Act, and the government Guidelines on policies, programs, and stewardship.

◆ Office of the Coordinator, Access to Information and Privacy Protection

This unit, headed by a Coordinator, is responsible for the Department's compliance with the Access to Information and Privacy Acts.

◆ Passport Office

The Passport Office is a semi-autonomous Special Operating Agency which manages its own financial and personnel matters. Its administrative headquarters is located in Hull. The agency operates issuing offices (mail and personal service) in Hull and personal service counters at nearly 30 regional offices across Canada. It also develops, promulgates, and monitors entitlement and issuance policies and procedures for application within Canada as well as at missions abroad.

Political and International Security Affairs Branch

◆ Cultural Affairs and Higher Education

This Bureau promotes Canada abroad and helps achieve foreign policy and trade objectives, by assisting Canadian scholars and artists in pursuing international interests and by facilitating the export of cultural products and education services. It is responsible for the Canadian Commonwealth Scholarship and Fellowship Programme, the Government of Canada Awards Programme and educational exchange programmes with the USA and China. It coordinates international tours by Canadian performing artists, writers and film directors, as well as the Cultural services provided by Canadian missions abroad.

◆ International Organizations Bureau

This Bureau coordinates Canada's participation in the United Nations and most of the specialized agencies and institutions that form part of the UN system. It is also responsible for coordinating Canada's multilateral relations with Commonwealth countries and Canada's role and activities in la Francophonie. It ensures effective monitoring of human rights, women's equality and social development issues world- wide and the integration of these considerations into all relevant aspects of bilateral and multilateral relations.

◆ International Security, Arms Control and CSCE Affairs Bureau

This Bureau is responsible for the coordination and preparation of policy proposals on cooperative security and defence aspects of Canada's foreign policy, including peacekeeping, NATO, NACC, the CSCE and other regional and global organizations. It coordinates bilateral defence relations with the USA through NORAD, as well as other bilateral defence relations with the countries of Central and Eastern Europe, the former Soviet Union, Latin America and Asia. It is also responsible for the preparation of policy on arms control and non-proliferation issues and the development of verification methodologies and confidence- building measures.

◆ Security and Intelligence Bureau

This Bureau is responsible for providing timely and critical intelligence on world events. The Operations and Intelligence Centre provides information to the public and the Department on a 24 hour basis. The Bureau also conducts a programme of interviews to obtain first-hand knowledge from Canadian residents about foreign countries. The Security Division is responsible for providing protection for Canadian personnel and their families and government premises and information.

Trade and Economic Policy Branch

◆ Economic Policy Bureau

The Bureau is responsible for the development and coordination of policy on international economic, environment and energy issues. It consists of the International Economic Relations Division, the Environment Division, the Services, Investment and Intellectual Property Division, the Energy and Nuclear Affairs Division, and the Economic Relations with Developing Countries Division.

♦ Export and Import Controls Bureau

This Bureau is responsible for policy development, and implementation and administration of import and export control measures under the authority of the Export and Import Permits Act and Regulations. The Bureau consists of the Import Controls I Division (textiles and clothing), the Import Controls II Division (agricultural goods, steel and other commodities) the Export Controls Division (military, nuclear and strategic goods), and the Administration and Data Processing Division.

♦ Trade Policy Bureau

This bureau consists of the Agriculture and Resource Trade Division, the Tariffs and Market Access Division, the Multilateral Trade Institutions Division, the Trade Remedies Division and the Technical Barriers and Regulations Division. The Bureau is responsible for the development and implementation of trade policy, including the coordination and management of Canada's participation in the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade and the North American Free Trade Agreement, and inter alia providing government support to Canadian exporters with respect to foreign antidumping, countervail and safeguard actions affecting Canadian trade interests.

When job opportunities arise, a search is made to find suitably qualified candidates. Consistent Uses: This bank is used to provide names, telephone numbers, and employment experience to employers, on request. Retention and Disposal Standards: Records are retained ten years, unless updated or deleted by the person concerned. Records are deleted in the event of divorce, separation, retirement or departure of the employee from the Department. TBS Registration: 002506 Bank Number: EAC PPU 045

In the course of conducting the programs and activities of the Department of Foreign Affairs and International Trade, categories of personal information may be accumulated which are not contained in the specific information banks described in this entry. This information exists in a fragmented form throughout the subject files of the Department, which are described in the program records. This information is stored as part of the general subject files, where records are not normally retrieved by name of individual or other personal identifier. This form of information is retrievable only if specifics are provided concerning the subject matter, related departmental activity, the date on which the information was received by the Department and to whom it was addressed. The personal information contained in these subject files is retained for the same period of time as the related subject information and is disposed of according to the appropriate subject record schedules. The classes of personal information listed below describe particular program records which, because of their nature, are more likely to contain personal information.

International Security, Arms Control and CSCE Affairs Bureau

Personal information may be held by the bureau concerning individuals who have been involved in defence activities with NATO, NORAD, or other international defence or arms control organizations, or in conferences or visits. Personal information might include personal biographies, tours of defence colleges, military travel and training, and nominations of Canadians for positions in international defence organizations concerned with defence or arms control. Persons seeking access should specify the subject of the enquiry, country and/or city, contacts, incident, conference/organization, visits, dates and circumstances which may have led to the establishment of a record.

Legal Affairs Bureau

The Legal Affairs Bureau handles a number of important functions including multi-lateral legal issues, peace and security law, humanitarian law, economic law, trade agreements, treaties, international law and individual legal and legal-protocol cases. Personal information held by the bureau may include enquiries from Canadian residents seeking advice about international and foreign legal systems, and claims by Canadian citizens for possible support by the Canadian government. Other personal information would relate to specific issues handled by the bureau. Persons seeking access must specify the subject of the enquiry, as well as country and/or city, legal firm, contacts, incidents, dates and circumstances which may have led to the development of a record.

Office of Protocol

The Office of Protocol is responsible for the administration of protocol-related programs of the Department and for the development of policies and procedures which direct the administration of protocol programs. Personal information in this class would pertain to individuals who have participated in, or have been the subject of protocol-related activities within programs such as accreditation and ceremonies, privileges and immunities, government hospitality, protection of foreign representatives and foreign decorations, and awards and honours to Canadians. Persons seeking access should specify the subject of the enquiry, country and/or city, contacts, incident, visits, conference, delegation, dates and circumstances which may have led to the establishment of a record.

Freshwater Fish Marketing Corporation

Chapter 48

General Information

Background

The Freshwater Fish Marketing Corporation (FFMC) was established in 1969 under the authority of the Freshwater Fish Marketing Act. The Act gives the FFMC the exclusive right to interprovincial and export trade in designated products of the freshwater fisheries supplied from the three Prairie Provinces, the Northwest Territories, and part of northern Ontario. The FFMC is a federal crown corporation listed under Schedule III, Part I of the Financial Administration Act.

Responsibilities

The objectives of the Corporation are: to market fish in an orderly manner; to increase returns to fishermen; and to promote markets and export trade in fish.

The Act requires the FFMC to purchase all legally caught fish offered for sale by licensed fishermen, subject to price and terms and conditions of purchase (including quality provisions). It must conduct its operations on a self-sustaining financial basis without appropriations by Parliament.

Legislation

- Freshwater Fish Marketing Act (1969)

Organization

The FFMC is managed by an eleven member board of directors composed of a Chairman, a President, one director for each participating province/Territories and four other directors. The Chairman and the President are appointed by the Governor-in-Council. The remaining directors are appointed by the Minister of Fisheries and Oceans with the approval of the Governor-in-Council. Directors from a participating province are appointed on the recommendation of the Lieutenant Governor in Council of the participating province. The board of directors is supported and advised by an Advisory Committee composed of fifteen members appointed by the Governor-in-Council.

Great Lakes Pilotage Authority Canada

Chapter 49

General Information

Background

As a result of recommendations made by a Royal Commission on Pilotage in Canada, the Pilotage Act was assented to by Her Majesty and the Governor-in-Council and proclaimed in force February 1, 1972.

The Pilotage Act created four pilotage regions with specific authorities, thereby replacing a large number of local pilotage districts. The four Pilotage Authorities — Atlantic, Laurentian, Great Lakes and Pacific — are Crown corporations, responsible to Parliament through the Minister of Transport.

The Great Lakes Pilotage Authority, Limited was established and incorporated in 1972 as a subsidiary of The St. Lawrence Seaway Authority. For the purpose of the Financial Administration Act, the Authority is a Crown corporation specified in Schedule III, Part I of that Act.

Responsibilities

The role and objectives of the Authority are to establish, operate, maintain and administer, in the interest of safety, an efficient and economical pilotage service within its geographical boundaries; all waters in the Province of Quebec south of the northern entrance to St. Lambert Lock and all Canadian waters in and around the provinces of Ontario and Manitoba. (Pilotage in the international waters within the boundaries is shared with United States of America Pilot Corporations, which are under the direction of the United States Coast Guard, as agreed under a memorandum of arrangements between Canada and the United States.) Further, the Authority prescribes tariffs of pilotage charges that are to be fair, reasonable and consistent with providing revenues sufficient to permit the Authority to operate on a self-sustaining financial basis.

Legislation

- Authority By-Laws
- Canada Shipping Act, RSC, 1985, c. S-9
- General Pilotage Regulations
- Great Lakes Pilotage Regulations
- Memorandum of Arrangements between the Minister of Transport, Canada and the Secretary of Transportation, U.S.A.
- Pilotage Act, RSC, 1985, c. P-14

Organization

The Great Lakes Pilotage Authority, Limited consists of a chairman and six members appointed by the Governor in Council. The Authority's head office is located in Cornwall, Ontario. The Eastern District operations office is located at headquarters and the Western District operations office in St. Catharines, Ontario. All management, administrative, personnel, financial contracts and purchasing services are provided by the Cornwall office. The Authority is a Crown corporation, responsible to Parliament through the Minister of Transport.

♦ Administration Branch

This Branch provides administrative and financial services as required to operate within accepted corporate business procedures.

♦ Operations Branch

This Branch provides pilotage service by assignment, and dispatches qualified pilots to ships navigating within the boundaries of the Great Lakes Pilotage Authority, Limited.

Hazardous Materials Information Review Commission

Chapter 50

General Information

Background

The Hazardous Materials Information Review Commission was established by the Hazardous Materials Information Review Act, assented to on June 30, 1987 and proclaimed on October 1, 1987. The Commission is part of the Workplace Hazardous Materials Information System (WHMIS) which requires that information about the hazards of materials produced or sold in Canada or used in Canadian workplaces be provided by suppliers to employers and, in turn, by employers to employees.

Responsibilities

The mission of the Commission is to ensure the balance between industry's right to protect confidential business information and workers' right to know about the hazardous materials they are exposed to and their corresponding preventive health and safety measures.

To achieve its mission, the Commission carries out the following mandate under the authority of the Hazardous Materials Information Review Act: it makes decisions concerning the validity of claims for exemption on the basis that the information is confidential business information; it makes decisions on the compliance of labels and material safety data sheets of products related to a claim; and it convenes independent boards to hear appeals on the Commission's decisions and orders.

Legislation

- Hazardous Materials Information Review Act Appeal Board Procedures Regulations (SOR/91-86, January 7, 1991)
- Hazardous Materials Information Review Act, S.C. 1987, c. 30 (Part III)
- Hazardous Materials Information Review Regulations (SOR/88-456, August 25, 1988; amendment: SOR/88-510, September 29, 1988; SOR/89-288, June 1, 1989; SOR/91-419, June 20, 1991; SOR/93-234, May 11, 1993)

Organization

The Commission is headed by a President, appointed by the Governor-in-Council, and is governed by a Council of Governors consisting of members nominated by representatives of the federal, provincial and territorial governments and suppliers, employers and workers. The Council is responsible for recommending, to the Minister of Health, regulatory changes to the Commission's fee structure and procedures for the screening of claims and procedures to be followed by appeal boards. The Commission is organized around two principal activities: reviewing and making decisions on claims for exemption and administering an independent appeals process. These activities are carried out through three organizational units: The Operations Branch, which includes claims registration, application assessment, management services and communications; the Compliance Branch, which is responsible for reviewing the claims for exemption and making decisions on their validity, as well as deciding whether labels and material safety data sheets comply with WHMIS requirements; and the Appeals Branch, which is responsible for convening independent, tripartite appeal boards to hear appeals on decisions or orders of screening officers filed by claimants and affected parties, in addition to providing administrative support to appeal boards.

Organization

National Forum on Health

The Forum, chaired by the Prime Minister and vice-chaired by the Minister of Health, is comprised of 24 citizens, volunteers, professionals and consumers, who are knowledgeable about health and the health care system. The mandate of the Forum is to: inform Canadians and advise government on innovative ways to improve the health of the population; carry out a dialogue with Canadians about health and the health care system in order to ascertain their views and obtain their commitment to renewal; and identify priorities for the future and develop consensus for change.

Departmental Secretariat

The Departmental Secretariat is responsible for coordinating the management of the interface between the executive and political levels of the Department; preparing the Minister for Question Period; liaising and coordinating services between the Deputy Minister and the Regional Directors General; directing the process of ministerial correspondence; coordinating executive corporate decision-making process, plans and priorities as well as providing a focal point for major corporate initiatives.

Corporate Services Branch

Provides services to the Department in the areas of planning and financial administration, human resources, information management, internal audit and assets management.

◆ Assets Management Directorate

The role of this Directorate is to support all aspects of physical assets management, occupational health and safety, and security issues within the Department of Health. The Directorate is responsible for the provision of a wide range of business services in support of departmental programs, including those associated with material acquisition and utilization, custodial and leased property acquisition, maintenance and disposal, building and tenant services, occupational health and safety, and security. In addition, the Directorate develops and maintains policies, systems and procedures governing the management of these business services within the Department of Health.

◆ Departmental Planning and Financial Administration Directorate

The focus of this Directorate is the management of Departmental resources. Its role is to implement, interpret and administer the regulations, policies and processes associated with resource planning and utilization and financial administration across the Department. Directorate activities include the provision of direct services such as financial planning, accounting, functional and advisory assistance to managers, and financial systems support and training to all branches.

◆ Human Resources Directorate

The role of this Directorate is to support the effective management of the Department's human resources. To this end, it provides advice and a wide range of programs and services to support managers in the identification, acquisition, development, and deployment of employees. Through its programs and services, the Directorate's goal is to ensure values which promote fairness, recognize competence and encourage opportunities for growth and development. The Directorate also has a continuing and critical role in ensuring integrity and good judgement in the application of legislation and policies concerning the management of human resources.

◆ Information Management Services Directorate

The mandate of the Information Management Services Directorate (IMSD) is to provide the Department with a range of Information Management and Information Technology Services. These services include: computer network, telecommunications and computer centre operations and support; co-ordination and advisory services with respect to informatics and information management planning and development; information policy and security; Internet; the development of guidelines and standards on electronic data processing, telecommunications and office automation; records and document management and operations; and library services.

In addition to these Department-wide services, IMSD provides line management functions for regional libraries, records management, and informatics.

◆ Internal Audit Directorate

The role of Internal Audit is to ensure that the Department has an independent review of its operations, activities, systems and functions which support the delivery of departmental programs to make sure that they are conducted in an economic, efficient and effective manner. Internal Audit coverage, objectives and scope, as well as follow-up on findings, and the monitoring of the implementation of approved appropriate action is overseen by a Departmental Audit and Evaluation Committee.

◆ Office of the Senior Assistant Deputy Minister

The Office of the Senior Assistant Deputy Minister (SADM) is responsible for providing overall direction to CSB Directorates, for coordinating Branch input to departmental initiatives, and for liaising with the offices of the Deputy Minister, Assistant Deputy Ministers and Regional Directors General on a range of issues. The SADM provides guidance and advice to senior management on the management and administration of the Department.

◆ Special Projects Directorate

This Directorate provides support to the Senior Assistant Deputy Minister by undertaking special projects as required to monitor, assess and adjust Departmental programs, including Corporate Service activities. Working closely with Departmental managers and with central agencies, these projects include the development of program service measures and the monitoring and reporting of progress made relative to plans.

Health Promotion and Programs Branch

The responsibilities of the Branch are to develop, promote and support measures designed to preserve and improve the health of Canadians by encouraging and assisting them to adopt a way of life that enhances their physical, mental and well-being.

◆ Health Promotion and Programs Branch Regional Offices (HPPBROs) Atlantic, Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba / Saskatchewan, Alberta / NWT, British Columbia / Yukon)

The Regional Directors continue to report to the Assistant Deputy Minister. The six HPPBROs represent the Health Promotion and Programs Branch in the regions. They act as a source of expertise and information to community groups, NGOs and other levels of government on health promotion and seniors issues, provide information and advice to headquarters on regional issues, and deliver a variety of programs. PPBRO staff deliver grant and contribution programs at the local and provincial/territorial level on behalf of the Population Health Directorate. These include Health Promotion Contribution Program, the AIDS Community Action Program, the Community Support Program of Canada's Drug Strategy, the Community Action Program for Children, the Community Action Initiatives of the Tobacco Demand Reduction Strategy, the Canada Prenatal Nutrition Program and the Aboriginal Head Start Program. As well, "Nobody's Perfect", a parenting skills development program for disadvantaged single mothers, is delivered in conjunction with provincial/territorial governments using contracts initiated and monitored by HPPBROs. HPPBRO staff also deliver contribution programs at the local and provincial/territorial levels on behalf of the Division of Aging and Seniors (former Seniors Directorate) through New Horizons.

◆ Management Planning and Coordination Directorate

This directorate provides Branch level planning coordination and administration functions for the Health Promotion and Programs Branch and is divided into three main areas: coordination functions, administration and regional support services.

Planning and coordination functions include: correspondence, parliamentary relations, briefing notes, Treasury Board submissions, Memoranda to Cabinet, Departmental Planning, the Government planning cycle, Main Estimates and special projects.

Administration functions include: coordination of Access to Information requests, operations of the Management Services Section, informatics services, and Grants and Contributions processing.

Regional Support Services is responsible for meeting the requirements of the Regional Directors on day-to-day matters related to administration, communications, resources and liaison with the Assistant Deputy Minister.

◆ Population Health Directorate

The Directorate develops and implements programs which promote health and encourage the avoidance of health risks. Its focus encompasses health issues (family violence prevention; tobacco; alcohol; and other drug use; and AIDS), the special needs of certain population groups (families; children and youth; women; seniors).

Major program activities include, knowledge/information dissemination, program development, research, promotion of best practices, provision of policy and expert content advice, intersectoral consultation/coordination/negotiation and funding community based projects which advance health and well-being. PHD is responsible for coordination of strategies.

HIV/AIDS Prevention and Community Action Programs:

Programs provide leadership for the development of national prevention policies, strategies and initiatives to stop the transmission of HIV. The AIDS Community Action component of this Program provides national leadership in Government efforts to support community-based action against HIV/AIDS Care, Treatment and Support Program takes a multi-disciplinary approach to care, treatment and support. This Program builds and enhances capacities to respond to the changing needs of persons living with HIV/AIDS their caregivers family and friends.

The Childhood and Youth Division:

Serves as a centre of expertise, leadership and coordination within the federal government and the Department of Health for issues, activities and programs concerning children and youth. Its mandate is to monitor and improve the broad determinants of health and well-being that influence the state of childhood and youth in Canada. To achieve its mandate, the Division delivers programs in areas such as child development, children's mental health, parent support and coordinates the Community Action Program for Children, Canada Prenatal Nutrition Program and Aboriginal Head Start.

The Division of Aging and Seniors:

Provides federal leadership in areas pertaining to aging and seniors. Serves seniors and aging Canadians as a centre of expertise and catalyst for change by providing advice, information, education, research and innovative programming in partnership with other sectors. Provides operational support to the National Advisory Council on Aging, administers the New Horizons: Partners in Aging program and manages the Seniors Independence Research Program. It is understood that in executing all of its roles and responsibilities inherent to its mandate, the Division will ensure the meaningful participation of seniors in federal decisions and activities that affect them.

The Family Violence Prevention Divisions and Tobacco Reduction Division:

Develop and promote non-legislative approaches to address the health consequences of violence and of tobacco use. Through the National Clearinghouse on Family Violence it develops and distributes video and print material to frontline workers, policy makers, health care professionals and individuals.

Efforts on tobacco are focussed on preventing young Canadians from using tobacco through prevention programs and on supporting, through cessation and education programs, those population groups who are the major users of tobacco, including adolescent girls, women, francophones and aboriginals. The Division works with employers, schools, health care professionals as well as with NGOs.

The HIV/AIDS Policy and Coordination Office (APCO):

Is responsible for providing strategic advice on the implementation of the National AIDS Strategy as a whole and ensuring effective and coordinated implementation of the Strategy.

The HIV/AIDS Policy, Coordination and Programs Division:

Oversees the implementation, coordination, and evaluation of Canada's Drug Strategy.

Initiatives are related to reducing the harm caused by alcohol and other drugs to individuals, families and communities. These activities include research, information dissemination, community action, prevention programs; policy development, national coordination and international cooperation.

The division also administers the national component of the Health Promotion Contribution Program (HPCP) and coordinates activities with the regional components of the program. HPCP provides time-limited funding to non-profit voluntary organizations for innovative health promotion projects that advance renewal of Canada's health system.

The division also coordinates grants and contributions and policy matters which cross the Directorate.

♦ Research and Program Policy Directorate

The Research and Program Policy Directorate (RPPD) guides and supports knowledge development and evidence-based decision-making that maintains and improves the health of Canadians. RPPD integrates Health Canada's extramural research capacity with program policy, planning, intergovernmental relations, social marketing and health promotion development functions.

The Directorate acts as a department-wide resource providing expertise through peer review of extramural research, expertise in contracts and contributions, social marketing, partnership development, and expertise in health promotion for strategic initiatives. Specializing in the analysis and dissemination of information, the Directorate provides strategic analysis that influences both policy and program decision-making within the Health Promotion and Programs Branch.

♦ Systems for Health Directorate

The Systems for Health Directorate works with provincial and territorial governments, national non-governmental organizations including national voluntary health organizations and the academic community to ensure and improve capacity for preventive health practices, disease prevention, and healthy living.

Health Protection Branch

The purpose of HPB is to protect Canadians against current and emerging health risks. Threats to health arise from environmental or industrial hazards, communicable diseases, unsafe food, licit and illicit drugs, medical devices and other consumer products.

The Branch plays a role in ensuring the safety of food, drugs, cosmetics, chemicals, medical or radiation-emitting devices and other hazardous consumer and industrial products. HPB activities also include environmental health and disease surveillance. In assessing and managing these public health risks, the Branch: conducts regulatory field visits to food and drug manufacturing plants; conducts pre- and post-market evaluations of products; oversees the removal of unsafe products from the marketplace; negotiates agreements concerning hazardous materials in the workplace; undertakes research and provides national reference and diagnostic laboratory services; and carries out surveillance and investigation of disease outbreaks.

The Branch has offices and laboratories in Ottawa and in five regional locations. There are also twenty district offices.

♦ Drugs Programme

The Drugs Programme's mission is to assure that drugs available in Canada are safe, effective and of high quality. This is done by assessing their benefits and risks effectively, continually, and in a timely manner (benefit/risk assessment); by managing their risks appropriately (risk management); and by developing and disseminating information that encourages their optimal use (information management). The Drugs Programme also acts to reduce harm and manage risk to health associated with drugs of abuse, by supporting the investigational, evidence, and intelligence needs of drug enforcement at both the national and international levels.

The strategic objectives are to ensure that Canadians have timely access to effective medicines, are never put at undue risk by drugs available on the Canadian market, and are fully informed about the risks and benefits of those drugs. This will be done by fostering a regulatory climate in which Canadian scientists, health professionals, and industry may continue to make significant contributions to world medicine; by creating a drug regulatory environment that facilitates the high standards of health and safety Canadians have come to expect; by ensuring that the drug regulatory system in Canada does not become a barrier to the introduction of effective medicines into the Canadian market or place Canadian industry at a competitive disadvantage in the world standards, and to ensure that they are met in Canada; by setting internationally competitive service standard in all aspects of work and by striving to meet and surpass them; by working to ensure that drugs contribute to an efficient and affordable health care system in Canada; and by providing national and international leadership in drug regulation from a science-based foundation of intelligent programming, constructive partnerships, full and open communications, and a productive organization.

The ultimate Programme results will be: timely, comprehensive, evidence-based decisions, information, and action on the safety, effectiveness, and quality of drugs manufactured and/or used in Canada and the continuous monitoring and control of both legal and illegal drugs on the Canadian market. The results will have a positive impact on Canadian society by ensuring that: Safe, effective, high quality drugs are accessible to and used appropriately by Canadians; a drug regulatory regime conducive to drug product development exists in Canada; and the availability and use of drugs subject to abuse is reduced. Ultimately, this will have the effect that Canadians will be healthier and the Canadian health care system will be more cost effective.

◆ Environmental Health Directorate

The function of the Environmental Health Directorate is to protect the public from health and safety hazards associated with chemicals in the environment, radiation, medical devices, consumer products, tobacco and hazardous materials in the workplace, and thereby improve the well-being of Canadians. To achieve this, the Directorate investigates, monitors and assesses the health risks arising from both natural and technological hazards and then provides Canadians with health and safety information. The Directorate's work revolves around main project areas involving such subjects as environmental pollutants, tobacco, electromagnetic fields (e.g. power lines), medical devices including inspection of medical device manufacturing plants, drinking water, air quality and product safety and emergency response to major nuclear accidents affecting Canada — all issues of great concern to the public.

The Directorate is responsible for the development and implementation of programs for radiation safety and medical devices under the Radiation Emitting Devices Act, the Food and Drugs Act and the Canada Labour Code. The prohibition or regulation of hazardous consumer products, and the development of mandatory labelling and material safety data sheet requirements to inform workers of the hazards associated with products used in the workplace are done under the Hazardous Products Act. The potential risks of environmental chemicals are evaluated under the Canadian Environmental Protection Act. The Directorate is responsible for the administration of tobacco legislation. The Directorate is also responsible for coordinating the federal response to a major nuclear accident affecting Canada under the Federal Nuclear Emergency Response Plan.

◆ Food Directorate

The Food Directorate's function is to protect and improve the health and well-being of the Canadian public by defining, advising on and managing risks and benefits associated with the food supply. Areas of work include food additives, agricultural chemicals, veterinary drugs, chemical and microbiological contaminants, nutrients, novel foods and food components and food processes, such as irradiation.

The Directorate is responsible for the development of appropriate policies, procedures, regulations and guidelines directed towards the achievement of a high standard of safety and nutritional quality of foods. These responsibilities are carried out through coordinated programs of scientific research, evaluation, analytical and regulatory activities under the authority of the Food and Drugs Act and Regulations.

◆ Laboratory Centre for Disease Control Directorate

The Laboratory Centre for Disease Control (LCDC) carries out national disease surveillance, risk assessment and control of diseases of national importance and concern. This is achieved through monitoring, investigating and managing risks to the health of Canadians, and protecting the public from health risks posed by microbial, foodborne, drug-related and environmental hazards. LCDC is Canada's only national public health and disease control agency and its activities are fundamental to the protection of the health of Canadians.

Expert surveillance and investigative abilities in microbiology, epidemiology and disease prevention and control ensure significant national leadership in public health. LCDC is the hub of specifically created national networks which include more than 7,000 professionals across Canada; the first line of public health defence. These professionals include scientific staff of public health laboratories, acute care hospitals, research agencies, public health units and epidemiologists. LCDC is leading the Department in strengthening the public health intelligence network across Canada to address national and international demands including new and emerging diseases and other disease areas requiring more focus.

◆ Office of Scientific and Regulatory Affairs

The Office of Scientific and Regulatory Affairs provides support to the branch executive and to the program directorates in the areas of policy development, strategic and operational planning, informatics and information management. It establishes and refines mechanisms and processes for identifying and setting program priorities for cost recovery initiatives. The office manages common program support services e.g. library services; implementation of revenue generation activities and service standards; and coordination of Branch Program Review Action Plan Projects.

Medical Services Branch

The objective of the Branch is to promote, improve and preserve the health of Canadian citizens whose care, by legislation or custom, is the responsibility of the Department. The clients are the Inuit and status Indians, all residents of the Yukon, federal public servants, international travellers, civil aviation personnel, and disaster victims.

◆ First Nations and Inuit Health Programs Directorate

Responsible for ensuring the provision of community health services to First Nations living on reserve and to the Inuit. In addition, OEHS provides a range of regulatory services and health services to visiting VIPs. Provides medical advice on policy aspects of the immigration program to Citizenship and Immigration.

Responsible for the provision of services and advice in the fields of civil aviation medicine, emergency services and provides medical advice to Human Resources Development.

◆ Program Policy, Transfer Secretariat and Planning Directorate

Supports the transfer of resources for community health programs to First Nations and Inuit communities south of the 60th Parallel and provides support to the transfer of health services to the Yukon Territorial Government. It also provides assistance, advice and coordination on policy issues, the Branch planning cycle, audits and evaluations, informatics and executive services.

Pest Management Regulatory Agency

To protect human health and the environment by minimizing the risks associated with pest control products, while enabling access to pest management tools, namely, these products and sustainable pest management strategies.

Policy and Consultation Branch

The Branch provides advice and support to the departmental executive and to program branches in the areas of policy development, communications, evaluations, intergovernmental affairs, information and strategic planning via research on health, well being, income and economic policy issues. Policy proposals are developed and analyzed, and recommendations are made to the Deputy Minister and the Minister.

◆ Communications Directorate

The Directorate is responsible for public awareness of the Department's objectives and programs and for development of departmental communications objectives and plans. It also provides communications advice, coordinates departmental communications activities, conferences, ministerial speeches and media relations and provides audio-visual services in support of the Department's communications responsibilities.

◆ Health Policy and Information Directorate

The Directorate initiates and coordinates research and analysis of health policy issues in support of the policy development responsibilities of the Department.

The Information Access and Coordination Division coordinates corporate activities related to the collection and dissemination of information, including the administration of the Access to Information Act and Privacy Act.

◆ Intergovernmental Affairs Directorate

Oversees the operations of: the Health Insurance Division, which administers the Canada Health Act, and the provision of advice to the Minister on matters pertaining to the interpretation of the Act; and the Federal — Provincial Relations Division, which coordinates and provides strategic advice on federal — provincial — territorial relations within Health Canada.

◆ International Affairs Directorate

The Directorate has responsibility to initiate, coordinate and monitor departmental policies and strategies and activities in the international health field.

◆ Management Services Directorate

This Directorate develops and provides management services in support of priority setting and planning, coordinates operations across the Branch, provides leadership in the management of cross-branch projects, problem solving and management of change. It also coordinates Branch input to the various Departmental corporate requirements and leads Branch management in the adoption of a culture that will integrate sound management principles and a client-based approach to the policy development process.

◆ Strategic Planning and Review Directorate

Responsible for the development and coordination of a corporate strategic planning process and for providing functional advice and support for the development of strategic planning process at the branch level.
